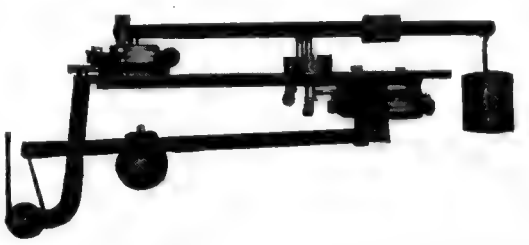
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The New Bedford Horticultural Society held its rose show at Odd Fellows hall June 23 and scored a fine success. Occupying the center of the hall was an oval of ferns, palms and shrubs. Ranged around it were six green tubs, holding wonderful rambler roses, exhibited by M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole. Besides running his own garden of roses, Mr. Walsh superintends the wonderful gardens of Miss Sarah B. Fay, whose collection is the largest private collection of roses in the country, and who also was a large exhibitor, as was H. H. Rogers estate. There was a large showing of bottles of cut roses. The show was free to the public, and was largely attended, both afternoon and evening. In the evening the cut flowers were sold at auction.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The Holmes Seed Co. recently had a window decoration which was said to be unusually attractive in its scenic effect. It represented a well kept lawn and was intended as an advertisement of lawn mowers and other lawn requisites.

Lincoln, Ill.—Otto Heimbreiker, formerly of the firm of Schmalzl & Heimbreiker, has started business on his own account and proposes to make a specialty of raising young chickens during the winter months, as well as growing vegetables. He now has four greenhouses and eight chicken houses ready for business.



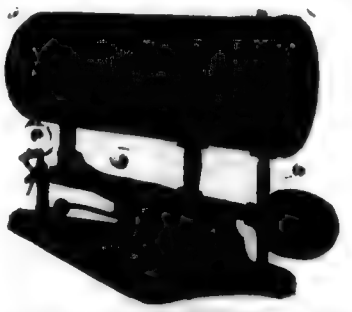
Would You Save One-Quarter of Your Coal Bill?
INSTALL
A Kitts Improved Hydraulic Damper Regulator.

Florist Peter Crowe, Rose Place, Utica, N. Y., voluntarily writes:—

"I am very much pleased to let you know that the Damper Regulator I bought from you last fall is by far the best apparatus for greenhouse purposes. I had my book-keeper compare my coal bill of last with that of this year and I find a saving of one quarter the amount of this year's coal over last year's; also the past winter was a great deal colder and longer than the winter before.

"There is another very good feature about the Damper Regulator, as it keeps a uniform heat in all the houses at all times by putting on and shutting off pipes. And I find that my Roses and Ferns did far better this winter than any winter so far, as the temperature was so uniform at all times.

"My reason for writing you is to let you know, and also to thank you for bringing my attention to the Regulator, and I assure you I cannot speak too highly of this machine."



Are not facts like these worth an investigation?

"DETROIT" AUTOMATIC RETURN STEAM TRAPS

"We have been using two of your 'Detroit' Traps the past winter on a Gravity System and find they keep the pipe clear of condensation, therefore making the return do as much as the flow. We are able to heat with less number of pipe than formerly and keep the houses far more even in temperature."

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

AS A MEDIUM FOR

The Allied Trades

AN ADVERTISER IN THE ALLIED TRADES—a firm which makes an article used by nearly all Florists—recently wrote, at the expiration of his first order:

"Replying to yours of the 9th, you may continue the Adv. in your publication until forbid.

"We are rather surprised at the large number of inquiries secured from the small Adv. in the comparatively short time you have had the order. Up to this time, we feel that the inquiries received are proof that it is money well spent."

THERE ARE TWO REASONS for advertising. One of these is to add to your business, but an equally important one is to hold that which you already have—to keep your competitor, who advertises, from winning it away from you.

You achieve both these objects when you tell your story to the whole trade through The Review.

FLORISTS' PUBLISHING CO.

Caxton Building, 334 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO

WEST GROVE, PA.

The career of the Dingee & Conard Co. is a good illustration of what has been done by many florists in pioneer work—the work of beginning business in sparsely settled districts, growing up with the community and repaying the patronage received from the community by contributing liberally to the community's prosperity. The business world has been slow to give florists the credit which is due them for what they have accomplished in this line. It has been difficult to realize how such a frail, flimsy and perishable product as flowers could give such substantial aid to the world of industry.

When Charles Dingee came to West Grove he found but one house. A frog pond covered a large part of what is now a thriving borough. Its facilities were weekly mails and railroad connections at Port Deposit. The first partners in the enterprise were Isaac Jackson, J. B. Gray and Charles Dingee. The first location was nearly opposite the residence of Mr. Dingee. Mr. Dingee soon afterward formed the firm of Dingee, Conard & Co., with Alfred Conard and Mark Hughes. The sending of growing plants by mail or express was not at that time thought of. After many experiments, many failures and endless study, the firm succeeded. Cigar boxes were used for packing the living plants. Agents were sent scouring the country for the empty boxes, which were used for this purpose until a few years ago, when the present neat packages were devised.

There are now none of the above-mentioned men associated with Mr. Dingee. Alfred P. Reid, president of the First National Bank of West Chester, is now the president. M. Henry Lynch is vice-president and is in active charge of the business. P. J. Lynch is treasurer and James D. Headley is cashier. Charles Dingee, at the age of 85, watches the growth of the business in the hands of others, and his interest is unabated, although he is no longer active in the work. He is still hale and hearty.

The business was founded in 1850. The company now has a large plant also in New Castle, Ind., and one at Charlotte, N. C.

Tewksbury, Mass.—Larkin T. T. Chandler is building a greenhouse here and will grow violets for the trade.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Last week was a record breaker for high temperature for June. At times the mercury stood as high as 96 degrees and it was not below 90 degrees during the entire week. The heavy rains we had a week ago started everything growing most vigorously and nothing more so than weeds. Carnations are short and generally poor, and roses are a glut and thousands are thrown on the dump. There have been numerous June weddings, but few big ones. Commencements have held the stage and will continue to do so for several days, and the consequent call for bunches of all kinds of flowers has been large.

Some extra fine gladioli are to be seen and find a ready sale, while sweet peas are flooding the market. The suburbs of the city are now most beautiful with their bedecked arbors and porches. Crimson Rambler roses, Clematis Jackmani. honeysuckles, and many other vines and bushes are covered with masses of color. These, together with the porch and window boxes, now at their best, make altogether an earthly paradise.

Various Notes.

James C. Boone, whose supervision extends over all the squares as well as Clifton park, has planted over 600 beds of various sizes and designs, and in many instances is using crotons and others of the rarer plants, in addition to the old standbys, the geraniums and coleus, and there is no denying the fact that Mr. Boone has achieved unusually satisfactory results. The planting of the flower beds in general is about completed and the prospects are for some effective and tasteful displays.

James Hamilton, of Mt. Washington, is erecting two large houses, each 25x150, for roses and carnations.

Charles H. Cook, of Catonsville, has finished two of his new houses and has them planted to mums. He has two more that are being glazed for carnations.

Chrysanthemums are not being planted so heavily this year, due mostly to the low prices of last season. Q.

Electric Hose

(CORRUGATED)

In the last few years our sales to florists have increased faster than the sales of any other hose ever made.

There can be only one reason. Florists don't create such records for any manufactured article unless it is to their advantage to do so.

If you haven't tried Electric Hose, you'd better have some put in the greenhouse. Both economy and increased efficiency will result.

The Market.

The weather conditions are favorable at present, with plenty of sunshine after a season of rain. Trade is keeping up well. Outdoor planting and veranda boxes are still keeping the florists busy. June weddings have been plentiful, with the usual elaborate decorations. Beautiful gloxinias in the various shades are seen in the display windows, while valley and cattleyas have been holding sway a long time.

Various Notes.

W. O. Baur, of Pittsburg, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Baur. Mr. Baur will remain in Erie most of the summer and will attend the University of Pennsylvania this fall, for the study of law.

George and Edward Gleichsner have returned from Put in Bay, where they had gone with the Knights of St. John to take part in a competitive drill. The Erie boys made a fine showing and were warmly applauded.

Mrs. John Kallenbach and children have gone to stay with Mrs. Kallenbach's parents since Mr. Kallenbach was so painfully injured a few weeks ago. Mr. Kallenbach is at St. Vincent's hospital, where his broken leg is being cared for.

Fred Lembke, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was in Erie June 21.

The Baur Floral Co. is adding a new house to the large plant on West Twenty-first street.

Miss Mary Gleichsner, daughter of John V. Gleichsner, became the bride of Joseph C. Gebslein on Wednesday, June 22. The bride carried a huge bouquet of white roses, while the bridesmaid carried pink roses. Anna Gleichsner was bridesmaid and Frank Gebslein acted as best man.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

W. H. Gullett & Sons are making improvements of a thorough nature in their large range of glass at the corner of Logan and Tremont streets. The four greenhouses extending from the firm's office on Tremont street to the Logan street line have been torn down, and in their place three larger houses are to be built. The ground, which is a low corner, will be graded up two to two and a half feet. The walls of the new houses will be of concrete blocks on a solid concrete foundation, up to a height of four feet, the remaining three feet of wall being of glass. The houses will be of the uniform width of twenty-seven feet, and will stand sixteen feet above the ground at the ridge.

When these houses are finished, the Gullett firm will have a plant of which more than two-thirds has been rebuilt within six years. There is not a better built greenhouse plant in central Illinois, and few in this section that equal the Gullett establishment in extent. Their plants are shipped all over the country now, and their cut flower product finds a market in the principal cities of the middle west.

YONKERS, N. Y.

The first annual June show of the Yonkers Horticultural Society was held on Friday afternoon and evening, June 17, in the hall of Hollywood Inn. The exhibits consisted of potted plants, cut flowers, fruit and vegetables.

All were attractively arranged and the many varieties of flowers formed a symphony of color. Roses, orchids, sweet peas, peonies, flowering and foliage plants and herbaceous flowers were included in the display. Strawberries—the big, red, delicious, shortcaky-looking kind—composed the fruit exhibit, while the vegetables were many and fine.

That the show was a success there can be no doubt, judging from the way the many visitors praised the various exhibits, and the society has great hopes of making even a greater success of the fall show, which is to be held in the first part of November.

During the evening the excellent music of Butler's orchestra added much to the enjoyment of the visitors.

The judging was done by Robert Angus, of Tarrytown; James Stewart and Thomas Aitchison, of Mamaroneck.

The principal exhibitors and prize winners were: H. Scott, gardener on the Lilienthal estate; J. Goff, gardener on the Oppenheimer estate; R. Cummings, gardener on the Cochrane estate; John Woodcock, gardener for E. A. McAlpin, of Ossining; J. Canning, gardener for Adolph Lewisohn, of Ardsley; H. Wells, gardener for Mrs. T. W. Wheeler; H. Nichols, gardener for Mrs. J. B. Trevor; R. Cochrane, gardener for Mrs. A. C. Ewing; J. Butler, R. E. Prine and William Hebach.

Special prizes were awarded to the following members of the trade: Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., for a display of orchids; Scott Bros., Elmsford, display of roses; Yonkers Nursery Co., display of palms, cut flowers and flowering plants; Peter Macdonald, centerpiece of roses and lily of the valley and graduation of gladioli and carnations; F. Milliot, wedding decoration of palms and roses, occupying the entire stage and constituting one of the best specials. Lee Whitman, Cor. Sec'y.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

YOU can at once see that the plan of this range at New London, Conn., is a most excellent one, as each house is arranged so that one will not shade the other. The little eleven-foot connecting houses give additional compartments that are very useful for growing small lots, or for experimental work.

That center house is one big compartment for roses. The Superintendent has some choice orchids in the right-hand house just back of the grapery.

The construction is iron frame throughout; the kind that has stood over two score years of test. Send for circular.

How to Save Money

No. 2

BUY your Greenhouse Material from a responsible concern. You don't need to pay for the reputation when you do so, for most people nowadays are honest, and charge for only what they give. You will save money in the end. Here's a little story that illustrates our point: "Two men bought wind-mills from two different firms and both wind-mills when set up failed to work. Both men wrote the people they bought from. One firm sent out a man and fixed the mill and everything was lovely. The other firm wrote a letter and said the mill wasn't set up right and that it was up to the man himself to make it work. It cost the man $50.00 to fix it." We think nothing more need be said.

ROSE SAFRANO.

Old-time gardeners remember well how popular the Safrano rose was in their day. With such good sorts as Bon Silene, Niphetos and Mme. Falcot, it was grown in large quantities. To American growers some of these are now mere memories, but all are still to be found, some as popular market sorts in Europe. Safrano was sent out by Beauregard as long ago as 1839. That popular outdoor bedder, Hermosa, came the following year; Louis Philippe and Cloth of Gold in 1843; the next year that grand old variety, Niphetos; Fortune's Yellow in 1845; Mme. Bravy in 1848, and five years later those two wonderfully popular varieties, Gloire de Dijon and General Jacqueminot. Mme. Falcot followed in 1858; Marechal Niel not until 1864.

When we consider that the Bride was only introduced in 1885 and Bridesmaid in 1893, and that each is likely to be little grown in America under glass a couple of years hence, we are tempted to ask if half a century hence any grower will have the temerity to grow even a few plants of either sort. Yet Safrano is 71 years old, and, while small compared with present-day teas and hybrid teas, its bright apricot buds are pleasing and make charming boutonnieres.

As grown by William H. Elliott at Madbury, with 18-inch to 24-inch stems, this grand old rose shows no signs of decrepitude or running out, and the better class Boston stores have quite a number of critical customers who regularly buy this rose.

ROSE BEETLES.

I am sending a sample of bugs that are playing havoc with my field roses, especially the white varieties. Can you tell me what they are and give me a remedy? F. G. H.

The specimens were quite lively when received. They are the common rose beetles, better known as rose bugs. We know of no way of fighting these, except by hand picking. When they are present in large numbers, mosquito coverings are sometimes used to keep them out. They have a marked partiality for light-colored flowers; pure white ones, like Frau Karl Druschki, Margaret Dickson, Clothilde Soupert, Mme. Plantier and White Maman Cochet, are especially attractive to them. As these are slow moving creatures, it is not much of a task to pick over a number of bushes at the flowering season.

In addition to roses, some other plants, such as grape vines, Syringa Japonica and hardy hydrangeas, are often attacked by these rose beetles. Poisonous sprays seem to have no effect whatever on them. C. W.

FEEBLE ROSE PLANTS.

I am sending you a specimen rose plant, showing a trouble which extends all over my Perle des Jardins and Yellow Cochet. Can you tell me the cause and the remedy? F. T.

It would be much easier for me and leave me less room for guesswork if querists would be more explicit and give me some data to work on. The stating of a few facts, such as when the stock was planted and how it has been treated since then, and especially the temperature it has been subjected to, would give me a chance to find the cause of the trouble and possibly enable me to point a remedy. Most of the specimens reach me in such a condition that even with a magnifier of high power I am unable to detect any trace of trouble by the leaves, which are usually too much dried up and shriveled to bear close inspection. With a few particulars as to treatment and environment, sometimes a fair diagnosis can be made and a remedy suggested, while the bare specimen, if in the condition I have described, conveys no meaning.

The specimens in this instance are, to say the least, too weak for planting. They also, evidently, have not received sufficient ventilation, as the few leaves left intact show signs of scalding. The soil is not of a good quality for roses and will require cultivating every week to keep it in fair condition.

Keep on a good crack of air on all favorable occasions. Stir the surface of the soil to the depth of an inch. Syringe twice a day during bright weather and keep the night temperature at 56 to 58 degrees. The day temperature in cloudy weather should be 60 to 65 degrees, and in bright weather 74 degrees. This treatment should start them into health. Refrain from feeding until the plants are well established and showing vigorous growth. Ribes.

EELWORMS AND KNOTTED ROOTS.

I am sending by mail a sample of Bride rose plants which I received some time ago, said to be fall propagated and winter rested. I cannot get them to do a thing and, if you examine them, you will see that the roots have small knots all through them. This is characteristic of the whole batch. Kindly tell me the cause of it. J. P. K.

The specimen sent was badly affected by eelworms. Your best course will be to clean out the bench, put in fresh, clean soil and replant with new stock. Ribes.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

AN ELECTRIC CAR.

Most of the retail florists who have adopted the automobile for delivery purposes have chosen gasoline motors, but A. Lange has just put an electric delivery car on the streets of Chicago. He figures that the required service may be had at a cost for operation and upkeep considerably less than the outgo on a gasoline car.

Lange's is a Studebaker product. It has a speed of twelve miles an hour and a battery capacity of forty-five miles on one charge. The car has 2½-inch solid rubber tires, fine coach finish on the body and all lettering in gold. The carrying space is 44x60x82 inches and there are two removable racks that may be used as needed. There are front and rear doors, ventilators and electric heating device, as well as electric lights inside and out.

DECORATING AUTOS.

If, as many allege, the automobile has done an injury to the flower business, the way to get even is to encourage the parades of decorated autos. These seem to make a hit wherever they occur, and the fad for them already has reached the smaller cities. A few days ago there was an automobile parade at Xenia, O., and it fell to a florist at Jamestown, a neighboring city, to carry away first prize of $100. The car was decorated by H. C. Fenker, to whom the owner gave the prize money. Mr. Fenker used hardy cut ferns as the basis of his decoration, literally covering the car with them and creating an excellent effect, as will be shown by the accompanying illustration. Smilax was used where ferns did not meet the need. The flowers were 500 short, well opened Beauties. This was all the material used, except for some ribbon, a stuffed eagle and a dove, which was attached to the top of the canopy over the rear seat.

Mr. Fenker says that the advertising value of his success has been worth to him fully as much as the money gained by it.

OBERTIN AND HIS OUTFIT.

At Kenosha, Wis., not long since there was a parade of decorated delivery and other vehicles in which a large part of the city's business houses were represented. The accompanying illustration shows the wagon of Peter M. Obertin decked out as a florist's outfit always should be for such an event. It took first prize. Mr. Obertin stands at the left in the picture.

MOSCHOSMA RIPARIUM.

I wish to know if Moschosma riparium is a profitable plant commercially. I never see it advertised in The Review and believe it is comparatively a new plant and that its blooming season is during the winter. C. M. W.

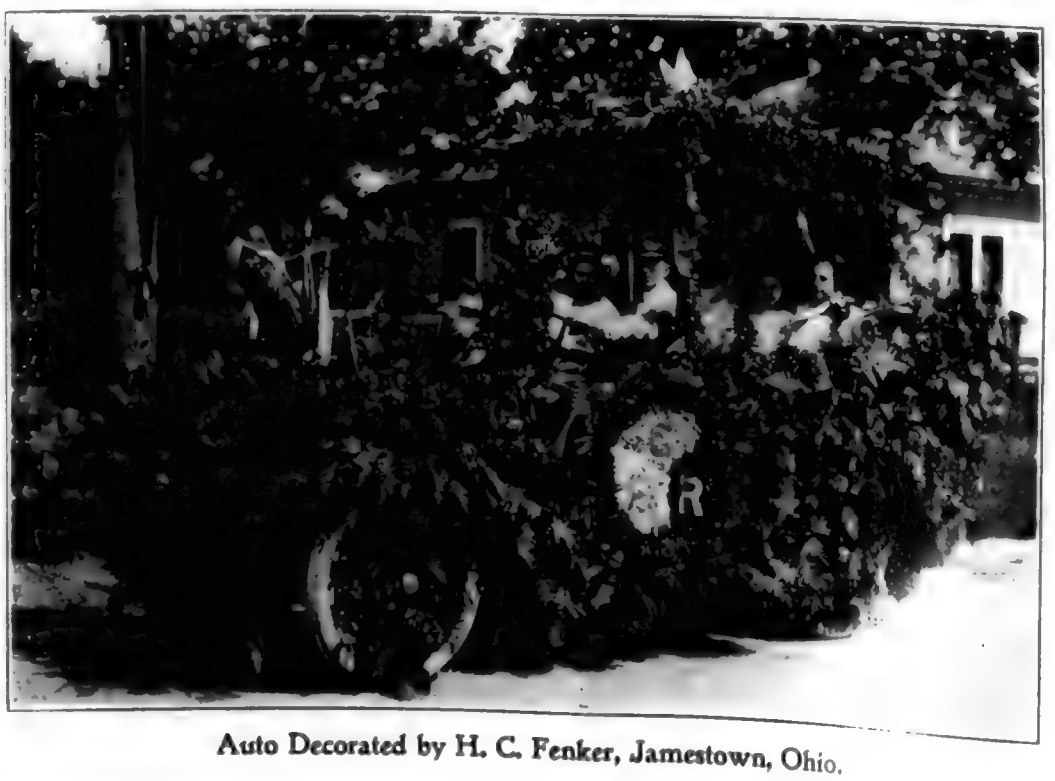
This winter-blooming plant was introduced to the American trade by C. H. Totty three or four years ago. It makes a neat pot plant, but is better adapted for culture on private than on commercial establishments. The flowers soon fade when cut and the plants keep poorly in living-rooms. In a cool greenhouse they last well. While this plant blooms at Christmas, I do not consider it of much commercial value. It is occasionally advertised in The Review under classified advertisements. W. C.

SALVIAS FROM SEED.

Will Salvias Zurich and Bonfire come true from seed? J. M.

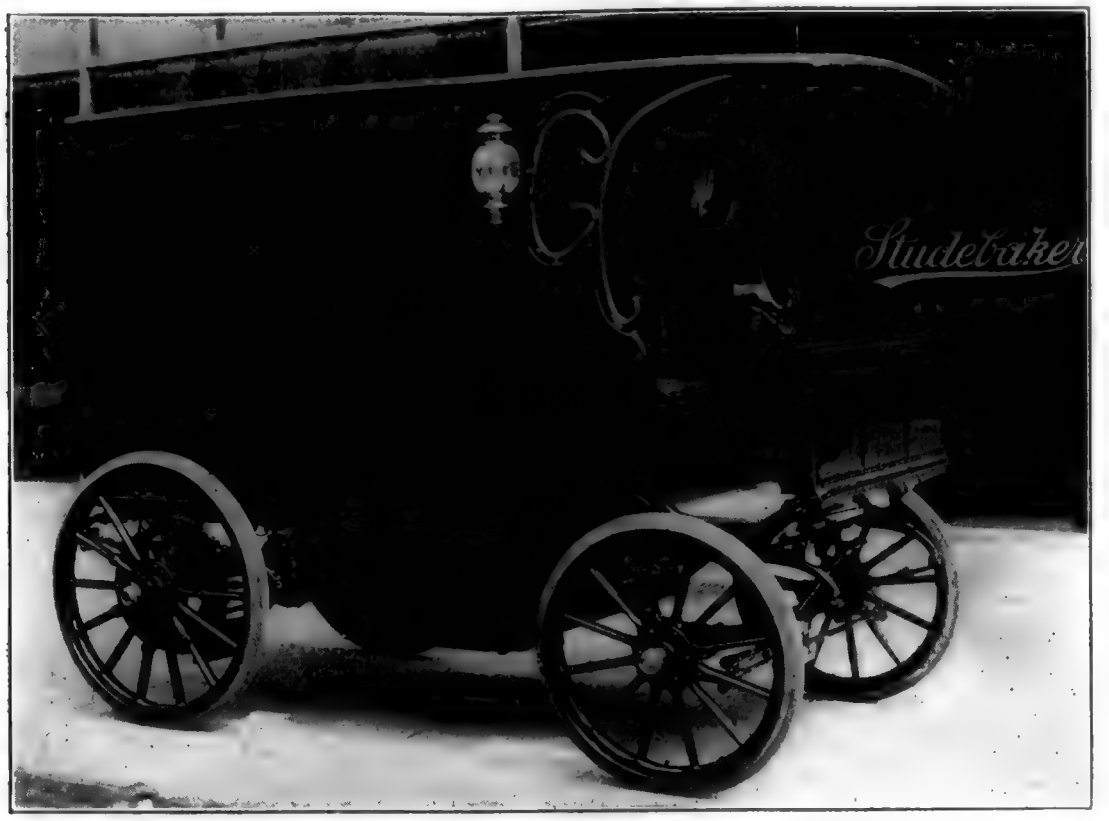
We have found Salvias Zurich and Bonfire come true from seed. It is, of course, necessary that your seed be purchased from a thoroughly reliable source. Plants propagated from cuttings are somewhat dwarfer and start to bloom earlier than seedlings. We have not found that they possess the same vigor, however. It has often been a wonder to us that so many growers persist year after year in propagating their salvias from cuttings. The old plants take up considerable room and are excellent breeding places for mealy bug. Seedlings are so easily and inexpensively raised that it does not pay to carry over these old stock plants. Be sure, however, that you get your seed from a gilt-edged house. Cheap seed never pays in the end, nor does it pay to trade with firms of whose reliability you know nothing. C.

BUILDING A PIT.



I am in a quandary and appeal to you for advice. I have no greenhouse here; in fact, there is not even a conservatory in town. Our winters in this southern latitude, except in two extreme cases, when the oranges were all killed in Florida, have been extremely mild. I have been carrying my plants in a pit, without any artificial heat. My pit is six feet six inches wide, five feet to top of ground and twenty-five feet long. It is curbed with 2-inch lumber and has a roof like a lean-to, covered with hotbed sashes eight feet long. As a matter of course, I ran the back or north side up much higher than the front, so as to get the proper slope.

When I ordered "Greenhouse Construction," by L. R. Taft, from you some time ago, I was thinking about building a small concrete greenhouse, myself, on top of the ground, and thought I could make it thoroughly warm by being particular with it, without any artificial heat, and could thus save my old pit for more hardy things which I am obliged to winter. But, on looking through the book, I find Mr. Taft says that concrete would be a great conductor of heat. Artificial heat being quite expensive here, it would not pay me to use any, so I have abandoned the idea.



I have been wondering recently whether it would be feasible for me to widen my pit ten or twelve feet and build it up with concrete, instead of wood curbing, to the surface of the ground, putting on a three-quarter-span roof. I would protect the higher north wall with soil. Now, the question is, would that be too close and damp with only my top ventilators in the roof, or would I have to build eighteen or twenty inches above ground for side lights and ventilators, and would there be air enough, even with that, for mums, etc., in the summer time?

E. H. S.

The difficulty referred to, loss of heat by radiation from solid grout walls, applies in the northern states, where the temperature may remain below zero for days at a time during the winter, but would be of little importance in the extreme south, where the thermometer seldom reaches the freezing point.

Auto Decorated by H. C. Fenker, Jamestown, Ohio.

Lange's New Electric Delivery Outfit.

By building the walls of hollow cement blocks or building a grout wall with a core, so as to form a 2-inch air space, the loss of heat would be comparatively small.

If the pit is constructed with an even-span roof, the walls need not extend much above the general level of the surface, and if the soil is mounded against the grout there will be little loss of heat, even from a solid grout wall. If preferred, there would be no objection to the three-quarter-span house, and, especially if hollow cement blocks are used, the walls could be carried three or four feet above the surface without appreciable loss of heat. This would greatly lessen the labor of caring for the house.

NATIONAL SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The second annual convention and exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society of America will be held at Saint Nicholas rink, New York, July 12 and 13. The judges will be W. T. Hutchins, of California; A. C. Beal, of Cornell, and W. C. Kerr, of Philadelphia. There also will be papers by Mr. Hutchins and others.

A large exhibition is expected, as there is an unusually attractive list of special prizes, as follows:

Harry Turner Cup, for the best 25 vases of sweet peas.

Burpee Cup, for the finest and largest collection of sweet peas.

Burpee Prize, for the best vase of waved or Spencer type sweet peas introduced 1910; first prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2.

W. W. Rawson & Co. Prizes—Silver Gilt Medal, for a vase of sweet peas never before exhibited or disseminated, of American origin; Silver Medal, for the best 25 vases Spencer or Unwin types, open to the trade only; Silver Medal, for the best 20 spikes of Rawson's Snowflake; Bronze Medal, for the best three vases comprising white, lavender and pink, open to amateurs only; Silver Medal, for the most successful exhibitor among the amateur classes.

Watkins & Simpson's Prize, for the best vase of Nora Unwin, Frank Dolby, Mrs. A. Watkins, A. J. Cook, E. J. Castle.

Arthur T. Boddington Cup, second prize $15, third prize $10, for a collection of 25 varieties.

Henry A. Dreer Prize, for the best 21 vases of sweet peas, the 21 incomparable standard varieties as enumerated in Dreer's Garden Book for 1910; first prize $20, second prize $5.

Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. Prize, for the best vase of white sweet peas; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

Henderson & Co. Prize, $10 gold, to be awarded the amateur exhibitor of the best and most distinct collection of 25 varieties of sweet peas, including not less than six of the Spencer type. Also $10 gold to be awarded the amateur exhibitor of the two best vases of our George Washington and Martha Washington, each vase to contain not less than 25 sprays.

Henry F. Michell Co. Prize, for the best vases of Frank Dolby, White Spencer, Mrs. Alfred Watkins; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

C. C. Morse & Co. Cup, for the finest collection, open to the trade only.

Florists' Exchange Prize, for the best vase Countess Spencer; first prize $3, second prize $2.

F. R. Pierson Co. Prize, for the best 12 vases of sweet peas; first prize $10, second prize $5.

Aphine Mfg. Co. Prize, for the best collection of sweet peas, open to the florists only; first prize $15, second prize $10.

Anton Zvolanek Prize, for the best 10 vases of Spencer and Unwin types, $10.

John Young Prize, for the best vase of sweet peas never before exhibited, $5.

Stumpp & Walter Prize, for the best three vases of sweet peas Spencer type; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

J. M. Thorburn Co. Prize, for the best vase of pink sweet peas; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

John Lewis Childs Prize, for the best vase of white sweet peas; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

Sutton & Sons Cup, for the best table of sweet peas to be arranged on a space 4x3 feet and not to exceed three feet in height.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

There was a meeting of the executive committee of the American Gladiolus Society June 27, in New York, and the following exhibition committee was appointed to take charge of the coming show at Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19: H. Youell, chairman, Syracuse, N. Y.; Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.; E. H. Cushman, Sylvania, O.; L. Merton Gage, secretary, Orange, Mass. It was also decided that amateurs or private gardeners would not be required to pay for space for their exhibits, and that such space would be paid for by the society.

President Hendrickson has appointed a membership committee, composed of the following gentlemen: J. B. McArdle, 50 Barclay street, New York; Wm. Cahill, Bolton street, South Boston, Mass., and E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.

There are now twenty-one prizes offered for the exhibition, eight of which are in the amateur class, including two added since my last report, namely: Silver cup by Montague Chamberlain, Groton, Mass., for six best named varieties, one bloom each, exhibition by an amateur; and silver cup by L. Merton Gage, Orange, Mass., for best collection of blue gladioli, exhibited by an amateur.

The following awards have also been placed in the amateur class:

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., $5 in gold for best collection of white throated named varieties; $5 in gold for best collection of mottled and striped varieties.

Stumpp & Walter Co., New York city, $10 in gold for twelve best varieties, three spikes each.

A. T. Boddington, New York city, $5 in gold for best collection of yellow named varieties.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., $5 in gold for best vase of America, not less than twelve spikes.

RULES GOVERNING THE EXHIBITION.

1. All entries must be made to the recording secretary, L. Merton Gage, three days before the first day of the exhibition, on blanks provided by the secretary for the purpose.
2. Exhibits in competition for prizes must be of the exhibitor's raising.
3. Exhibits must be in place before 12, noon, each day on which exhibits are to be judged.
4. Exhibitors are requested to keep their flowers in fresh condition during the time the exhibition remains open.
5. Exhibitors will be awarded but one premium in each class in which they compete, and then only when the exhibits on their merit warrant the judges in making awards.
6. While the society will take reasonable care of the property of the exhibitors, yet it will not in any way be responsible for the loss or damage of anything exhibited.
7. Exhibits, after being staged, cannot be removed until the exhibition is closed, without the consent of the exhibition committee.
8. The society requests exhibitors to attach labels to exhibits. Correct naming of varieties is very important.
9. Exhibitors will be required to provide tables and everything else necessary for table decorations.
10. In entering, every exhibitor agrees to be governed by the rules.

This was all the material used, except for some ribbon, a stuffed eagle and a dove, which was attached to the top of the canopy over the rear seat.

OBERTIN AND HIS OUTFIT

At Kenosha, Wis., not long since there was a parade of decorated delivery and other vehicles in which a large part of the city's business houses were represented. The accompanying illustration shows the wagon of Peter M. Obertin decked out as a florist's outfit always should be for such an event. It took first prize. Mr. Obertin stands at the left in the picture.

MOSCHOSMA RIPARIUM.

I wish to know if Moschosma riparium is a profitable plant commercially. I never see it advertised in The Review and believe it is comparatively a new plant and that its blooming season during the winter. C. M. W.

This winter blooming plant was introduced to the American trade by C. C. Forty three or four years ago. It makes a neat pot plant, but is better adapted for culture on private than on commercial establishments. The flowers soon fade when cut and the plants keep poorly in living rooms. In a cool greenhouse they last well. While this plant blooms at Christmas, I do not consider it of much commercial value. It is occasionally advertised in The Review under classified advertisements. SALVIAS FROM SEED

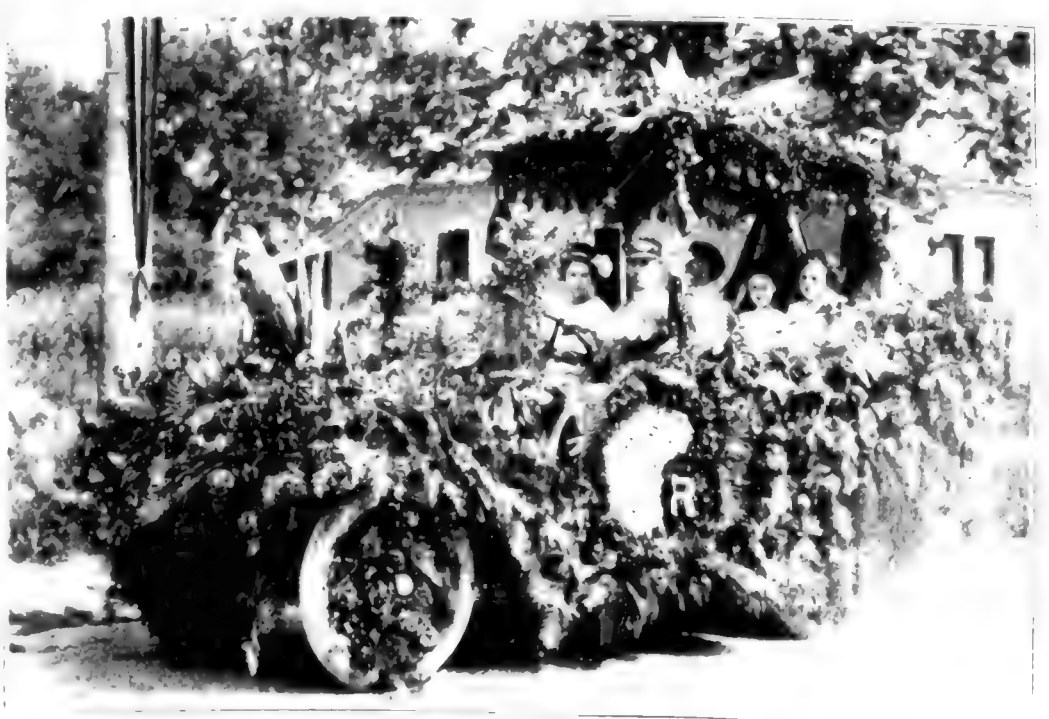
Will Salvias Zurich and Bonfire come true from seed? J. M.

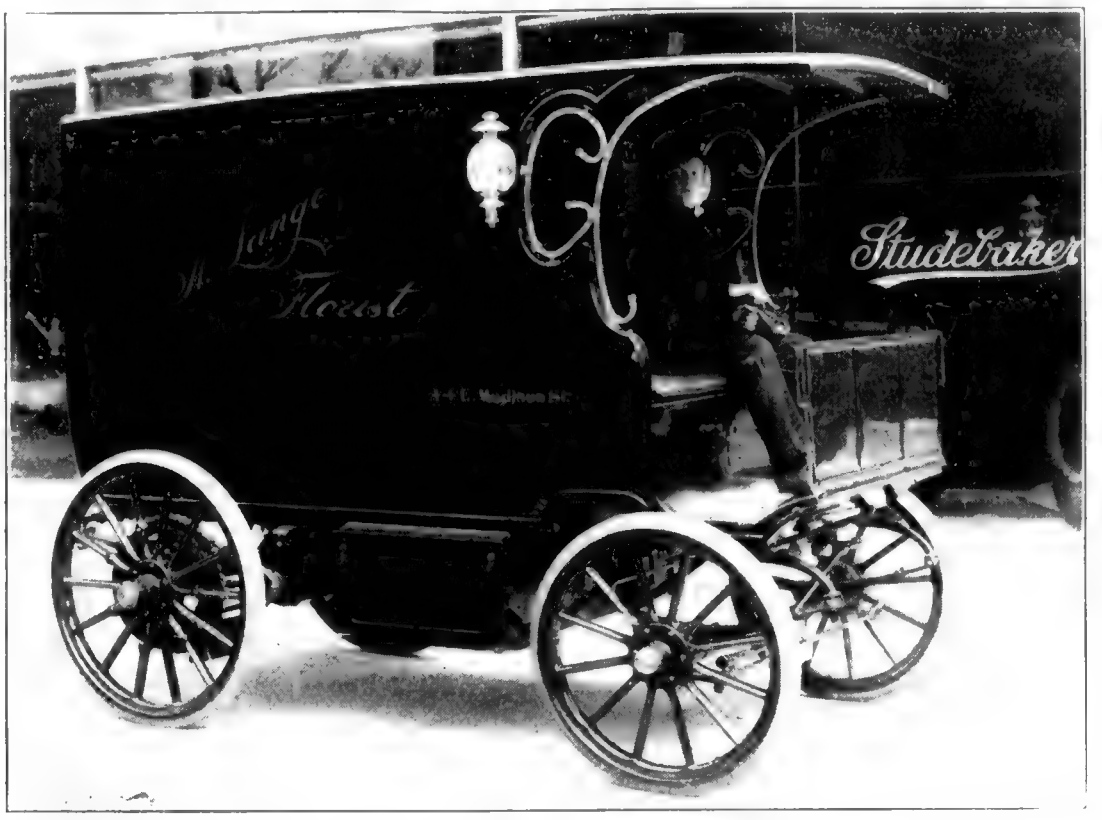
We have found Salvias Zurich and Bonfire come true from seed. It is, of course, necessary that your seed be purchased from a thoroughly reliable source. Plants propagated from cuttings are somewhat dwarfer and start to bloom earlier than seedlings. We have not found that they possess the same vigor, however. It has often been a wonder to us that so many growers persist year after year in propagating their salvias from cuttings. The old plants take up considerable room and are excellent breeding places for mealy bug. Seedlings are so easily and inexpensively raised that it does not pay to carry over these old stock plants. Be sure, however, that you get your seed from a gilt-edged house. Cheap seed never pays in the end, nor does it pay to trade with firms of whose reliability you know nothing. C.

BUILDING A PIT.



I am in a quandary and appeal to you for advice. I have no greenhouse here; in fact, there is not even a conservatory in town. Our winters in this southern latitude, except in two extreme cases, when the oranges were all killed in Florida, have been extremely mild. I have been carrying my plants in a pit, without any artificial heat. My pit is six feet six inches wide, five feet to top of ground and twenty five feet long. It is curbed with 2 inch lumber and has a roof like a lean to, covered with hot bed sashes eight feet long. As a matter of course, I ran the back or north side up much higher than the front, so as to get the proper slope.

When I ordered "Greenhouse Construction," by L. R. Taft, from you some time ago, I was thinking about building a small concrete greenhouse, myself, on top of the ground, and thought I could make it thoroughly warm by being particular with it, without any artificial heat, and could thus save my old pit for more hardy things which I am obliged to winter. But, on looking through the book, I find Mr. Taft says that concrete would be a great conductor of heat. Artificial heat being quite expensive here, it would not pay me to use any, so I have abandoned the idea.



I have been wondering recently whether it would be feasible for me to widen my pit ten or twelve feet and build it up with concrete, instead of wood curbing, to the surface of the ground, putting on a three-quarter-span roof. I would protect the higher north wall with soil. Now, the question is, would that be too close and damp with only my top ventilators in the roof, or would I have to build eighteen or twenty inches above ground for side lights and ventilators, and would there be air enough, even with that, for mums, etc., in the summer time?

E. H. S.

The difficulty referred to, loss of heat by radiation from solid grout walls, applies in the northern states, where the temperature may remain below zero for days at a time during the winter, but would be of little importance in the extreme south, where the thermometer seldom reaches the freezing point.

Lange's New Electric Delivery Outfit.

By building the walls of hollow cement blocks or building a grout wall with a core, so as to form a 2-inch air space, the loss of heat would be comparatively small.

If the pit is constructed with an even-span roof, the walls need not extend much above the general level of the surface, and if the soil is mounded against the grout there will be little loss of heat, even from a solid grout wall. If preferred, there would be no objection to the three-quarter-span house, and, especially if hollow cement blocks are used, the walls could be carried three or four feet above the surface without appreciable loss of heat. This would greatly lessen the labor of caring for the house.

NATIONAL SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The second annual convention and exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society of America will be held at Saint Nicholas rink, New York, July 12 and 13. The judges will be W. T. Hutchins, of California; A. C. Beal, of Cornell, and W. C. Kerr, of Philadelphia. There also will be papers by Mr. Hutchins and others.

A large exhibition is expected, as there is an unusually attractive list of special prizes, as follows:

Harry Turner Cup, for the best 25 vases of sweet peas.

Burpee Cup, for the finest and largest collection of sweet peas.

Burpee Prize, for the best vase of waved or Spencer type sweet peas introduced 1910; first prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2.

W. W. Rawson & Co. Prizes Silver Gilt Medal, for a vase of sweet peas never before exhibited or disseminated, of American origin; Silver Medal, for the best 25 vases Spencer or Unwin types, open to the trade only; Silver Medal, for the best 20 spikes of Rawson's Snowflake; Bronze Medal, for the best three vases comprising white, lavender and pink, open to amateurs only; Silver Medal, for the most successful exhibitor among the amateur classes.

Watkins & Simpson's Prize, for the best vase of Nora Unwin, Frank Dolby, Mrs. A. Watkins, A. J. Cook, E. J. Castle.

Arthur T. Boddington Cup, second prize $15, third prize $10, for a collection of 25 varieties.

Henry A. Dreer Prize, for the best 21 vases of sweet peas, the 21 incomparable standard varieties as enumerated in Dreer's Garden Book for 1910; first prize $20, second prize $5.

Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. Prize, for the best vase of white sweet peas; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

Henderson & Co. Prize, $10 gold, to be awarded the amateur exhibitor of the best and most distinct collection of 25 varieties of sweet peas, including not less than six of the Spencer type. Also $10 gold to be awarded the amateur exhibitor of the two best vases of our George Washington and Martha Washington, each vase to contain not less than 25 sprays.

Henry F. Michell Co. Prize, for the best vases of Frank Dolby, White Spencer, Mrs. Alfred Watkins; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

C. C. Morse & Co. Cup, for the finest collection, open to the trade only.

Florists' Exchange Prize, for the best vase Countess Spencer; first prize $3, second prize $2.

F. R. Pierson Co. Prize, for the best 12 vases of sweet peas; first prize $10, second prize $5.

Aphine Mfg. Co. Prize, for the best collection of sweet peas, open to the florists only; first prize $15, second prize $10.

Anton Zvolanek Prize, for the best 10 vases of Spencer and Unwin types, $10.

John Young Prize, for the best vase of sweet peas never before exhibited, $5.

Stumpp & Walter Prize, for the best three vases of sweet peas Spencer type; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

J. M. Thorburn Co. Prize, for the best vase of pink sweet peas; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

John Lewis Childs Prize, for the best vase of white sweet peas; first prize $5, second prize $3, third prize $2.

Sutton & Sons Cup, for the best table of sweet peas to be arranged on a space 4x3 feet and not to exceed three feet in height.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

There was a meeting of the executive committee of the American Gladiolus Society June 27, in New York, and the following exhibition committee was appointed to take charge of the coming show at Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19: H. Yonell, chairman, Syracuse, N. Y.; Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.; E. H. Cushman, Sylvania, O.; L. Merton Gage, secretary, Orange, Mass. It was also decided that amateurs or private gardeners would not be required to pay for space for their exhibits, and that such space would be paid for by the society.

President Hendrickson has appointed a membership committee, composed of the following gentlemen: J. B. McArdle, 50 Barclay street, New York; Wm. Cahill, Bolton street, South Boston, Mass., and E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.

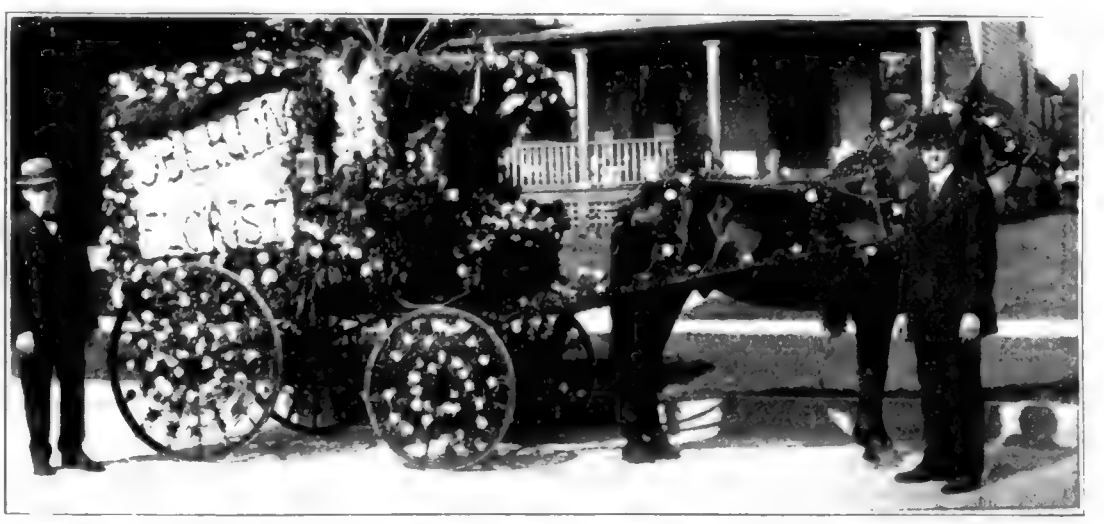
There are now twenty-one prizes offered for the exhibition, eight of which are in the amateur class, including two added since my last report, namely: Silver cup by Montague Chamberlain, Groton, Mass., for six best named varieties, one bloom each, exhibition by an amateur; and silver cup by L. Merton Gage, Orange, Mass., for best collection of blue gladioli, exhibited by an amateur.

The following awards have also been placed in the amateur class:

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., $5 in gold for best collection of white throated named varieties; $5 in gold for best collection of mottled and striped varieties.

Stumpp & Walter Co., New York city, $10 in gold for twelve best varieties, three spikes each.

A. T. Boddington, New York city, $5 in gold for best collection of yellow named varieties.



John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., $5 in gold for best vase of Ameriea, not less than twelve spikes.

RULES GOVERNING THE EXHIBITION.

1. All entries must be made to the recording secretary, L. Merton Gage, three days before the first day of the exhibition, on blanks provided by the secretary for the purpose.
2. Exhibits in competition for prizes must be of the exhibitor's raising
3. Exhibits must be in place before 12, noon, each day on which exhibits are to be judged.
4. Exhibitors are requested to keep their flowers in fresh condition during the time the exhibition remains open.
5. Exhibitors will be awarded but one premium in each class in which they compete, and then only when the exhibits on their merit warrant the judges in making awards.
6. While the society will take reasonable care of the property of the exhibitors, yet it will not in any way be responsible for the loss or damage of anything exhibited.
7. Exhibits, after being staged, cannot be removed until the exhibition is closed, without the consent of the exhibition committee.
8. The society requests exhibitors to attach labels to exhibits. Correct naming of varieties is very important.
9. Exhibitors will be required to provide tables and everything else necessary for table decorations.
10. In entering, every exhibitor agrees to be governed by the rules.

BESIDE THE POTTING BENCH

THE MEN AND THE BOSS.

There Are Two Points of View.

While working in the potting-shed I heard some one say, "I can pot 10,000 plants a day." The statement created an hour's discussion. It always seemed to me that sometimes it is quite immaterial whether one plants fast or slow; the point is that it be well done. But the Boss doesn't always agree. He thinks we have to hurry up if our work is to bring him any profit.

We young fellows always believe we are getting the small end of the deal. We have all the rough work to do, cleaning up the houses each evening, washing old pots, mixing one or two of the standard ingredients together and naming it "liquid fertilizer," or some other such work. It's mighty healthy work, though, because most florists live to be 80—more or less.

And so it goes. We are seldom satisfied. We can all aspire to be a Burbank, a Peter Henderson, or a Bailey, but of what good is it when we haven't the money to show what we can do? It used to be that a man could start a business on $500 and get rich in a few years, but now, so we think, the man who succeeds is the man who works, and works hard. There is a whole lot in that word work, fellows.

Ever stop to think that your employer has just a little to look after, and that he has just a little responsibility resting on his shoulders? Ever stop to think, Mr. Employer, that your men might appreciate a little more consideration than you were giving them? I tell you, fellows, I haven't much use for the man, the employee, who doesn't do his best; neither have I much use for the employer who thinks only of his men as a slave-driver would his slaves. I worked for a man one time. Fired the boilers for his twelve houses when the temperature would descend to 30 degrees below zero. He appreciated it—not, it seemed to me. He gave me $1.50 a day, board myself and pay my own car fare. Did I get rich on the remainder? However, later he asked me to become a partner in the business.

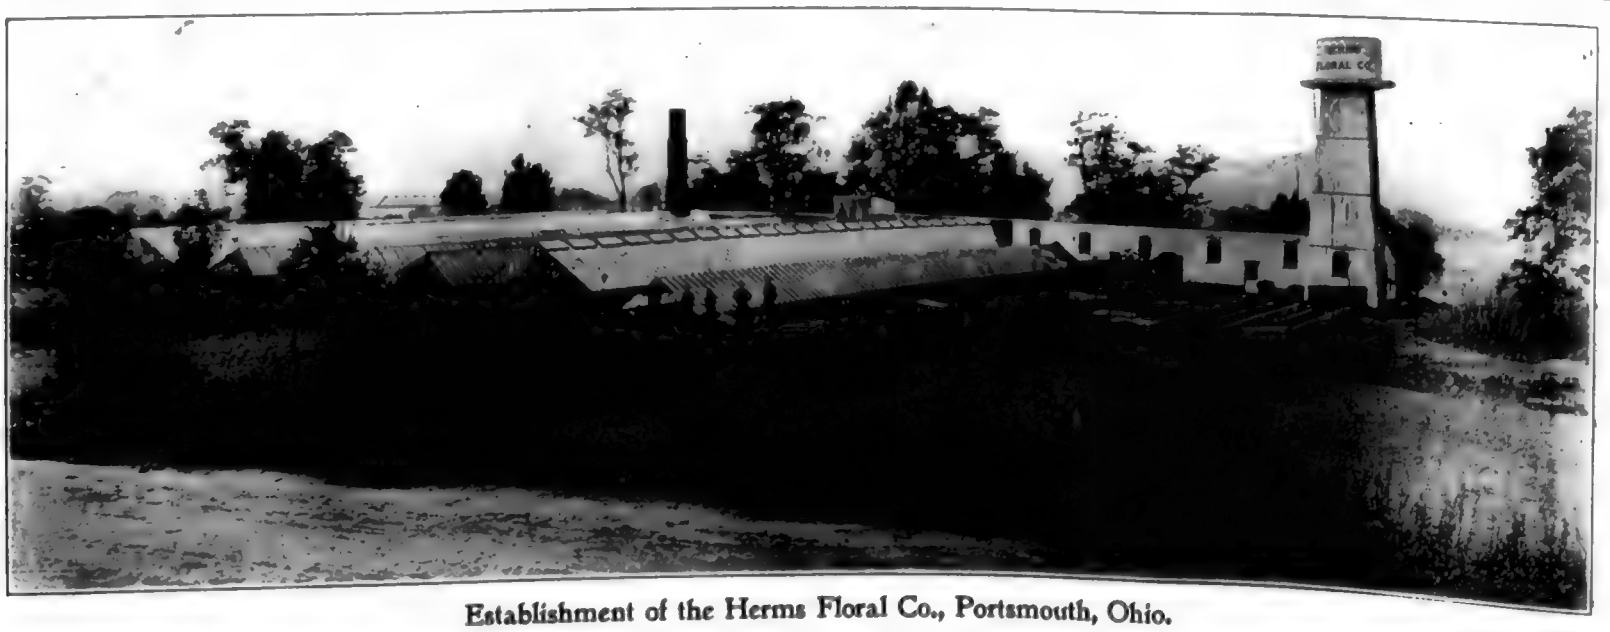
I have read most of the articles on "The Relation Between the Man and His Boss," or something to that effect. There's a whole lot in this question, or it wouldn't create so much discussion. But I have reached the conclusion that if we practice the golden rule all will be well.

The Employer's View.

Looking at the question from the employer's point of view, we find that his ideas are vastly different from those of the man below. He is the Head, and must have full control of all situations. Like a general, he must command. He may be occasionally wrong, but who is not? Most of us are only human. Of course, some few have arrived at the point wherein they fancy (it's only fancy) they are "It, with a big I." We should be thankful that they are few and far between. They are not the employer we shall discuss.

As I said before, the golden rule must be given an opportunity to get in its work whenever possible. Give the employer his due, for he is the Boss of his own place. The man who sometimes is wrong is not always so. Give him what credit he deserves. Did you ever stop to think that maybe your employer had made plans to boost you as you made good? An ideal employer is one who knows not only his own position in the business, but his men's position as well. Once in a while we find that the Boss has planned to increase our salary. He doesn't run to us with gladsome news, but bides his time and gives it when it is least expected.

The employer occasionally has bills to meet. Seems strange, doesn't it? The "hired help" doesn't have to worry. Not he! The Boss does that, without saying much about it. And did you ever stop to think, Mr. Employee, that the Good-natured Foreman is the man who holds your future in the hollow of his hand? He talks for the Head. He reflects the Head's ideas to such an extent that you can understand them. There is quite a moral to this. It consists principally of a half dozen words, "Don't try to bulldoze the foreman." It seldom pays.



Don't Be a Knocker.

Once in a long while the employee may reflect on the way the business is being run, and proceeds to convey his thoughts to his fellows. That is a delightful method to instill harmony into the rest of the "bunch." You have such a delightful time telling the fellows how you love the Boss, how you would run the business if you had it, and a lot of other interesting things. There is nothing like a good camp-meeting at noon time. The fellows perch on chairs, tables, or what not, and proceed to open the discussion by taking a shot at the Bosss. He isn't there, but what's the odds? You'd tell him just the same. Don't do it, fellows; 'twill do no good. Why can't you cheer up the "Old Man" occasionally? Make your department the best in the place. Don't be envious if someone else gets the raise when you were expecting it. I've been there. I know.

Give the Men a Chance.

The knowing ones say that the employer must not think his men are mere machines. The florists' business is the one business that requires some little intelligence to succeed. An intelligent employee is a valuable asset in the business. Encourage, not discourage your men. Give them to understand that there is some incentive for them to do their best. Don't cuss every time something goes wrong. You may be at fault yourself. Don't send a man to repair a broken glass in the plant house with the temperature 30 below and then cuss because he is slow. It doesn't improve your standing with him. You need not be too intimate with your men. It doesn't pay. It pays, however, to give every man the courteous treatment to which he is entitled.

Another thing: If you have occasion to reprimand a fellow, call him to one side—to your office when no one is around—and have it out with him. Of course you might, as some still do, ball him out before his fellows, but it hardly pays in the end. It gives the bunch something new to talk about, and is a good example of—your temper.

Another thing, Mr. Employer; when a man wants to talk to you regarding the question of salary, don't laugh it off, or put him off with no definite understanding. He is entitled to courteous treatment; if you can afford to increase his salary—and he is worthy—do so, and you will be repaid a hundred per cent. If you can't afford it, tell him why; don't fool him. Your own reputation is always at stake. I mean the reputation you bear with the men.

It is a fine test of your manners, Mr. Employer, to fail to acknowledge a pleasant "Good morning" when you enter your place of business. The atmosphere seems so inspiring during the rest of the day! One more thing, Mr. Employer: Whenever a man happens to break something, proceed to give him a tongue-lashing. It improves the workmen's environment! Not!

There's a lot to this question, all right.

The best I can say is: Think, Mr. Employer, of your men. Put yourself in their place, and things may seem different. And to you, Mr. Employee, work for the Boss' interest at all times. Let harmony prevail in your relation with the other fellows—and you'll be happy. F. K. B.

WINTER STOCKS.

Will you please inform me whether double white stocks can be grown profitably in the winter? If so, in what temperature should they be grown and when should they be started to have flowers by Thanksgiving and Christmas? C. M. W.

Stocks for winter flowering are only fairly profitable. The sale for them in the big markets is somewhat limited in winter, but improves toward spring and is especially good for Memorial day. If, however, you have a good local trade, calling for this class of flowers, they would probably pay you well. Sow seeds of any of the winter-blooming sorts early in August for Thanksgiving, and in the middle of the same month for Christmas. A night temperature in winter of 45 to 50 degrees is suitable. The latter figure should not be exceeded. C.

FORMULA FOR PUTTY.

A subscriber wants to know "the formula for a greenhouse putty, for use in a putty bulb, that will not run in warm weather or heave in cold weather and that will be pliable at all seasons." Can anyone supply it?

AN INSIDE GLAZED HOUSE.

Home-made greenhouses are the exception, now that the manufacturers of structural material have reduced their business to an exact science. They furnish mill work that goes together with the utmost ease, while the quality of the material and the prices made possible by a large output make it practically out of the question for the local planing mills to compete. But now and then some grower builds a house for himself to work out some long cherished plan, now and then achieving a result of such practical character that the ideas employed come into general use.

There are several points of special interest about the house built by the Herms Floral Co., Portsmouth, O., and shown in the accompanying illustration. The roof construction, on which a patent recently has been granted, embodies inside glazing with a cheap form of iron roof construction, using glass 16x48, with no putty. Wood is steadily dropping out of greenhouse construction. Perhaps the day will come when cypress will be so scarce other roof materials will become a necessity. At any rate, the Herms house, which contains no wood whatever, not in walls, benches or even in ventilating sashes, is interesting as a step in that direction. Mr. Herms describes the house as follows:

"The picture does not show the ventilators, which are not quite completed, but will be of small galvanized iron frame and will add no noticeable shade to the house. We used ordinary tee-iron bars, 1¼x3/16, and the glass is butted and laid underneath, using double 'V' galvanized iron drip conductors to support the glass, and secured by brass thumb screws. There is no drip to this roof, and leakage is trifling, though no putty or filling of any kind is used. Lead washers are used to butt the bottom lights, and though last winter was a severe one, we had no cracked glass, showing perfect allowance for expansion. This method may not be practicable on wide roofs, where purlins are necessary, but we see no advantages over the short span, as the heavier ridge and purlins make up for the small iron gutters. There is no climbing over the roof, and the glass can be laid in half the time of the tack-and-putty methods. We have two lights 16x48 on a side, which means only one butt, and this can be made a good one, and large glass is laid quicker. You can readily see the danger by blowing out of glass is eliminated by this method, as the pressure is uniform along the bars and there is no putty to crack off, leaving the tack pressure against the glass. I also wish to emphasize that this roof was designed for cheapness as well as for durability, and so far is no disappointment."

The smaller illustration shows the Herms plant as it appears from the Chillicothe pike. The location is three miles north of Portsmouth.

You can readily see the danger by blowing out of glass is eliminated by this method, as the pressure is uniform along the bars and there is no putty to crack off, leaving the tack pressure against the glass. I also wish to emphasize that this roof was designed for cheapness as well as for durability, and so far is no disappointment."

LILIUM TIGRINUM SPLENDENS.

The old tiger lily, L. tigrinum, introduced over a century ago from China, is a familiar feature in almost every hardy herbaceous garden. The form splendens, here illustrated, is a decided improvement on the type. It grows taller, often attaining a height of six feet or more, and carries, when well grown, twenty-five to thirty flowers to a stem. There are fewer spots on the flowers than in the case of the ordinary form, but they are of larger size. Grown side by side, the splendens form is vastly superior in every way.

For large masses in the garden or in rows for cutting, no lily can surpass this for beauty. It succeeds better in the open than in the shade and does not run out as do many other lilies. In New England it has escaped from cultivation and is often seen flowering superbly along the roadways in ground of a stony or gravelly nature. To grow it well the bulbs, which are cheap, should be planted in November nine inches deep. In August and September masses at the backs of borders are effective. For cutting where orange red flowers are wanted, nothing can be finer. W. N. Craig.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Clivias.

Clivias, or imantophyllums, are less grown by florists than their beauty and lasting qualities warrant. They are of easy culture and do well in any ordinary greenhouse. The old C. miniatum is still mostly seen, but it is far outclassed by the newer hybrids, which have much larger trusses of flowers, and richer in coloring and of increased size as compared with the type.

The best summer location for these is outdoors in the shade of some trees. The water supply must not be excessive. The plants have large, fleshy roots and the leaves have great substance, so it is safer to underwater rather than overwater them. If drainage is not good the plants will become waterlogged and, as a consequence, the plants are liable to rot off in hot, moist weather. A syringing once a day and a watering when they have dried out well, which may be only once a week, even in midsummer, will keep the plants in good condition. If a suitable outdoor location is not at command, the plants will do well in an airy greenhouse, well shaded.

Hollyhocks.

Reports from the east say the abundant moisture of the first half of June caused hollyhocks to make remarkably good growth, and there is, happily, less disease than usual among them.

About the time the plants come into flower is a good time to make a liberal sowing of seed for next year's supply. There is no better strain than Chater's. Sowing may be made either outdoors or in a coldframe. The latter is best, as the seed can be watered and protected by lath shadings until the seedlings germinate. Sown thus early, strong plants will be had before fall. Plantsmen find that there is a growing demand for these old-time favorites for mixed flower borders. Dotted in lines or groups, nothing is more stately or effective.

Empty Flower Pots.

With the end of the bedding-out season, a large quantity of empty pots may be lying around. These, on all systematic places, are kept in assorted sizes and are not mixed up haphazard, as is too often seen, entailing needless breakage and an everlasting turning over and shifting when particular sizes are wanted. Every size should be stacked separately. Take advantage of stormy weather or hot waves, when the heat is too overpowering for greenhouse work, to get sizes you are likely to need cleaned and in readiness. The inside of a pot should always be clean before any plant goes into it. A rubbing out will answer, but washing is better. Plants will not thrive in dirty pots any more than humans will in unwashed bodies.

Perennial Lupines.

Lupines, the beautiful and stately herbaceous perennials, are always in strong demand. Now is a good time to sow a batch of seeds in a coldframe. They will be fit to transplant within a month, or even less, and will make strong, salable plants before fall. The best known varieties of these are Lupinus polyphyllus, blue, and the white variety, alba, but there is now a beautiful pink form named roseus, just as vigorous as the older sorts and which attracts the immediate attention of everyone. Sow seeds of this now, and the plants will flower well next season. You can easily save your own seed of any of these perennials and sow them as soon as gathered, which will insure an abundant crop of seedlings.

Perennial Larkspurs.

What a gorgeous show the delphiniums are now making! They embrace about every shade of blue imaginable, and their long, stately spikes in clumps or masses in the hardy borders surpass in beauty almost any other hardy perennial grown. It is a good plan to save seed from some of the finest spikes. Tie such spikes up and mark them. Many growers think that seedlings thus raised are stronger and of equal quality to the best imported. It is not even now too late to sow a good batch of seed in a coldframe. It will germinate within a week and, if transplanted in cool, moist weather and kept well cultivated among, the seedlings will make strong plants before the time for fall planting arrives.

In addition to the tall delphiniums, do not overlook the dwarfer growing Chinese larkspurs, D. Chinense, deep azure blue, and D. Chinense alba, pure white. These flower quickly from seed and are splendid for cutting. Among the tall delphiniums, the variety formosum, dark blue, white eye, and formosum cœlestinum, pale blue, large flowers, are especially fine.

Late Outdoor Annuals.

A last sowing of a number of annuals suitable for cutting may still be made, and, unless you get an early frost, all of them will flower. Among suitable varieties to sow now are any of the annual larkspurs and lupines, sweet alyssums, mignonettes, candytufts, clarkias —the variety Salmon Queen is fine— coreopsis in variety, calendulas and Shirley poppies. If these can be sown where some water can be given to start them, and if the hoe then is used freely among them, they will make surprisingly rapid growth. Mignonette, to succeed best when sown now, wants a somewhat shaded location.

Antirrhinums.

From plants set out early, a nice batch of antirrhinum cuttings should now be procurable. These, if rooted and kept potted along, will make nice 4-inch pot plants by the middle of September.

If you have any plants in small pots you want to bench early, do not allow them to become potbound. Pinch out the flowering stems as the buds show. Keep the plants in a frame without any sashes over them. If they can be partially plunged in fine coal ashes, they will require less water and grow much better.

From a good strain of seed plants will come very true to color, and if no cuttings are procurable, sow some seed now. It is not possible to get as even a strain in color or character as from cuttings, but the seedlings possess great vigor and if kept potted along they will make strong plants before any of the early mum benches are cut over. In using seedlings it is a good plan to mark a few of the finest varieties and select cuttings from these to grow along for another season.

Bulb Compost.

It will be some time before the French or Dutch bulbs arrive, but it is better to prepare a pile of compost for them now, rather than when they are on the place. If you stacked up a pile of sod and cow manure last fall, chop this down and throw it in a heap. Bulbs like a light and rather rich soil. One-third of the whole should be decayed manure. If you have any spent hotbed manure, or such as has been used in the make-up of a mushroom bed, either of these is excellent for bulbs. A few shovels of soot and some sharp sand should also be added. It is much better to leave out bone and all chemical fertilizers. These are more likely to be harmful than helpful. Turn the pile over twice or thrice to thoroughly mix it, and it will be in a fine mechanical condition when you want it in September and October.

Summer Lilies.

The Lilium speciosum bulbs potted last December and growing in a cool house will soon be coming into flower. In the summer months, while the demand for flowers is comparatively light, there is nevertheless a fairly constant call for choice blooms, especially for funeral work. L. speciosum album is one of the most useful of all pure white flowers for this purpose, and by retarding some of the plants a quite long succession of flowers is possible. The stalks also are well adapted for cutting, as the buds will open up nicely in water. Be sure that green aphis is not allowed to gain a foothold at this time, or the result will be seen in discolored and deformed blooms. For L. speciosum rubrum the call is less than for the pure white variety, but there is also a fairly good call for it. Keep the glass well shaded where these lilies are growing and be sure to afford them an abundant water supply.

The present is a suitable time to secure and pot up a batch of retarded bulbs of L. longiflorum and speciosum. The former can go singly in 5-inch pots; the latter three to five in a 7-inch or 8-inch pot. Stand them on a cellar floor, or in a coldframe. Water well and keep dark. In a cellar the pots need not be covered, but in a frame, where the pots will dry out more, cover with some short, littery straw or excelsior.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

For days it has been close to 100 degrees in the shade. Monday, the holiday, after the morning market, was generally observed, nearly all the wholesale and retail stores being closed. The price of American Beauties for selected stock holds at last week's quotations, and this applies also to all other selected stock, but for anything inferior it is useless to quote any valuation. The question is how to get rid of it at any price. Quality has depreciated with the abnormal spell of hot weather, which, coupled with humidity, is causing many prostrations and adding to the mildew and deterioration of stock at an alarming rate. There is no advance in the price of carnations. In quantity, the best have sold as low as $10 per thousand, while of the sleepy and inferior grades the sales are made in bulk; the street merchants hand carnations out at 5 cents a dozen, and sweet peas at 5 cents a bunch. For the latter they pay as low as $5 per thousand bunches. The selected sweet pea stock, however, maintains its value and the limited supply of the best grade meets with a ready sale.

There is no let-up in the shipment of orchids, and prices are seeking their summer level. Lilies and valley are abundant and prices are low. Gladioli are arriving in larger quantity daily, and prices are fast receding. It will not be long until the local growers begin their immense daily shipments at $5 per thousand.

ORCHIDS

CALANTHES.

Calanthes are now in active growth and, as the roots are filling the pots and pans nicely, a little weak liquid manure once a week should be applied. It is better not to use it too strong just now. A little later, as the roots become more matted in the pots, the strength can be increased a little. Avoid the use of all chemicals. We have never seen any benefit from their use on calanthes, but, on the contrary, have seen considerable harm. Calanthes like lots of heat while growing, with moisture in the atmosphere in abundance. Go slowly, however, on overhead syringing and let it be done lightly when applied at all. Ventilate freely on every favorable opportunity, but never allow cold drafts to strike the plants. If you use any fire heat in summer, you will find that a little every night in the year will suit the calanthes; even on the hottest nights a slight warming of the pipes, with a chink of air on, seems exactly to their liking.

SEASONABLE ORCHID NOTES.

Is Interest in Orchids Declining?

This query has been raised by a writer in a horticultural journal, who cites England as a terrible example. The fact of the matter is that the said writer knew little about the subject on which he wrote and the opinions of dealers over there are at utter variance with his conclusions. Orchid culture is steadily increasing in Great Britain among all classes. Auction sales indicate no slump in valuations, and at exhibitions they are still the star features. In the United States it is tolerably safe to say that orchid culture is still in its swaddling clothes, and this in spite of the tremendous increase in sales of both plants and flowers of late years. While orchids will never rival carnations and roses as the flowers of the masses, their sale will show a striking increase in the next decade, notwithstanding all pessimistic talk to the contrary.

Are Orchids Difficult to Grow?

A popular but erroneous delusion is that orchids are hard plants to cultivate. There are, of course, many fussy subjects among them and anyone with an extensive collection needs all his wits about him to keep it in good shape, but in America, with a tendency to restrict the culture to a few sorts, the methods are much simplified and it is safe to say that anyone possessing brains enough to grow good roses, carnations, palms or ferns can as easily grow orchids. A few hours of neglect may ruin a house of roses. A house of cattleyas or cypripediums is less sensitive to such conditions. The fact that a large proportion of our best orchid growers were not trained specialists goes to show that there is no royal road to success in their culture. The man who can handle hard-wooded plants successfully in the United States is a more skilled grower than any orchidist, climatic conditions being considered.

Many orchid specialists with European training are comparative failures here. They fail to break away from their cherished cultural calendar, which needs considerable modification here. Oh, no! Orchids are not one whit more difficult to handle than many other greenhouse flowers. Common sense will enable anyone to handle them successfully, and the delusion that trained specialists only can grow them properly has been long ago exploded. No other plants, with the possible exception of cacti, are slower to resent neglect than orchids; on the other hand, none show greater improvement by intelligent culture.

LILIUM CANDIDUM.

I planted a lot of candidums in beds outdoors last fall, which were already in growth when I got them, ranging in size from three and one-half inches to eight inches in circumference. I manured the bed with two or three months' old horse manure, put two inches of unmanured soil on top, dipped the bulbs in flower of sulphur and put them about nine inches apart. I then covered them with three inches of unmanured soil and covered that with three or four inches of old manure and when cold weather set in I covered the whole thing with leaves. Still in the spring ten or fifteen per cent did not come up. Then the cold spell we had in May seemed to have killed quite a few, for in one bed more were exposed than others, and not half are left. Few flower stalks are up, probably ten per cent of the whole, and lately the lower leaves are turning yellow and brown. Would Bordeaux mixture do them good? Is there anything wrong about the treatment to keep them from sending up flower stalks or cause them to die and now turn brown? I have watered them a couple of times before and after they were up with laundry water and diluted night-soil around the roots. Would that hurt them? They do not suffer for want of water. I also have sprinkled some nitrate of soda around them.

J. J. H.

The bulbs of Lilium candidum should be planted as soon after being received as possible, as they quickly commence to make both roots and leaves. I consider four to five inches sufficiently deep to cover the bulbs, and it is a good practice to dip them in flower of sulphur prior to planting. It is better not to bring any fresh manure in direct contact with the bulbs of either these or any other lilies. Some well decayed manure properly incorporated in the soil will prove beneficial. Cover the bulbs with sand when in the ground before covering with earth. Lilium candidum, while one of the most beautiful lilies, is uncertain outdoors and not infrequently all the foliage will disappear before the flowers open. To check this disease, which seems to be started not infrequently by late sharp frosts, spraying with Bordeaux mixture as soon as the spikes start to push up should be done once a week. A good water supply is appreciated. Laundry water is good, but chemicals and manures are unnecessary and liable to be injurious.

OBITUARY.

Louis A. Smith.

Louis A. Smith, of Wheeling, W. Va., died June 27, at his home, 600 South Huron street. He was 48 years of age and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, pioneer residents of the Island. He was born May 4, 1863, at the old Smith homestead and resided there all his life. His father was one of the best known gardeners of that section. About twenty years ago the young man establish a florists' business, in which he was quite successful.

Mr. Smith was married in 1891 to Miss Jennie Cowl, of Wheeling, and to the union was born one son, Robert, now 16 years old. In addition to his wife and son, he is survived by the following brothers and sisters: George Smith, Harry Smith, Charles Smith, Miss Emma Smith and Mrs. Thomas Meek, all of Wheeling.

Mrs. Gus A. Geng.

Mrs. Malvina Sapina Geng, wife of Gus A. Geng, passed away at the family home in Livingston street, Youngstown, O., Monday, June 27. Death resulted from a complication of ills of several weeks' duration. She was 42 years of age.

Mrs. Geng was born in Butler county, Pa., and moved to Youngstown thirty-seven years ago. She was married to Mr. Geng October 11, 1888. She is survived by her husband and by four sisters and one brother. She also leaves a nephew, William Hook, who made his home with the Geng family.

Mrs. Geng was a woman who believed in doing good. Many a sick room bore testimony to Mrs. Geng's charitable disposition in the flowers which she always sent to her friends who were ill. A devoted wife, a kind neighbor and a good Christian woman, she will be mourned by a host of friends.

Funeral services were held Thursday, June 30, with interment at Belmont Park cemetery.

Oakland, Md.—The H. Weber & Sons Co. has closed up its branch at Piedmont, W. Va.

Stafford Springs, Conn.—Robert Demond has entered the employ of the Stafford Floral Co.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Anderson, Ind.—J. E. Stuart, of Stuart & Haugh, has gone to Monroe, Wash., for his vacation.

Youngstown, O.—A new flower store was recently opened at 41 North Phelps street, by W. A. Wittman.

Montgomery, Ala.—H. L. Von Trott is now proprietor of the Fernhill Greenhouses, formerly conducted by S. B. Stern & Co.

Logansport, Ill.—C. Kielsing & Son will erect two connected iron-frame greenhouses, each 32x325. The Geo. M. Garland Co. material will be used.

Logan, Utah.—V. A. Armstrong and daughter are building a greenhouse here and will carry on business under the firm name of the Cache Valley Floral Co.

Wading River, N. Y.—E. S. Miller is able to be about, but still feels the effects of his bicycle accident. It will be some time before he is completely recovered.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Two greenhouses, each 21x87, will be erected on the new estate of J. D. Larkin, near Delaware park. The contract has been awarded to the King Construction Co.

Rochester, N. Y.—A. F. Vick, who is chairman of the convention sports committee, says that preparations are being made for an old-time bowling tourney and that some especially handsome prizes will be offered.

Akron, O.—James R. Norton has had an excellent season's trade, with a steadily increasing patronage. He has sold more plants and done more funeral work than ever before. Plants are looking well and growing fast.

Sioux City, Ia.—The formal opening of the Chicago Flower Store, in the Mondamin block, was largely attended, and G. Pagones, the proprietor, is much pleased with the outlook. J. Freeburg, the new manager, came here from Minneapolis and is an expert florist of long experience.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—W. J. & M. S. Vesey expect to make a specialty of orchids and fancy plants, in addition to their other lines. They have engaged Samuel Hudson to take charge of this line of the business. Mr. Hudson comes highly recommended from the Harvard Botanic Gardens.

Paterson, N. J.—The Paterson Floral Co., at 304 Main street, lost $1,500 worth of stock in a fire which started late in the evening of June 28 and swept away a block of buildings before it was got under control at three o'clock the following morning. The fire was the most destructive that has visited this city in eight years.

Cumberland, Md.—Weber Bros. have closed their store and moved to Clarksburg, W. Va.

Superior, Wis.—A new greenhouse is being built by Wright & Johnson, at 1920 Lackawanna avenue.

Fulton, Ill.—John Aggen recently discontinued his branch store in Lyons, which had been in charge of Garrett Kettler.

Eau Claire, Wis.—O. R. Demmler is preparing for a two months' trip to Germany, combining business with pleasure.

Thorsby, Ala.—Howard Bros. are erecting another greenhouse, 25x100, which is regarded as good evidence that they have done a successful business with the house they have had for the last two years.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Charles W. Bourne, with C. F. Adams & Co., has had plans prepared for a large greenhouse which he will build on the west side of Hudson street between Solvay street and Bellevue avenue.

Nashua, N. H.—Work has been started on another greenhouse, 35x160, for George E. Buxton, on Concord street. The walls and benches will be built of reinforced concrete, and the house, when finished, will be devoted to carnation culture.

Olean, N. Y.—E. A. Llewellyn has purchased the greenhouses formerly owned by Fred Johnson and will continue them in connection with his other houses. Mr. Johnson, who had been in business some thirty years, has removed with his wife to Port Arthur, Tex., where they will reside permanently.

Freeport, Ill.—John Bauscher, Jr., has just completed two new greenhouses, each 310 feet long, making a total of 100,000 square feet of glass and one of the most modern greenhouse establishments in that part of the state. He has also erected a new boiler room and a smokestack which is 100 feet high. Mr. Bauscher expects to go into the wholesale business next year.

Hartford, Conn.—The last meeting of the Hartford County Horticultural Society was known as rose night. A fine exhibit of roses from the estate of James J. Goodwin was staged by J. F. Huss, president of the society, who also made some interesting remarks on the flowers shown. Excellent rose displays were also made by Alex. Cumming, Jr., head gardener of Elizabeth park, and by Gardener Mason, of the private gardens of the Pope place, in Farmington. Aside from these exhibits, the principal feature of the meeting was an able paper by Mr. Cumming.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The McFarland people, who do much work for the trade, are doubling their plant here this summer.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Baker recently made a trip to San Bernardino, Cal., and were the guests of a friend on what is known as the Waterman ranch, near that city.

New Castle, Ind.—P. J. Lynch, of the Dingee & Conard Co., West Grove, Pa., is reported to be more than pleased with the volume of business done since his firm acquired the Heller Bros. Co.

Clinton, Mo.—A. Woerner says he plans to go out of business, because advancing years and ill health render it impossible for him to keep up with the demands made upon him by the steady increase in the business.

North Abington, Mass.—Public indignation is strong against the vandals who, as already reported in The Review, recently entered the premises of the Bay State Nurseries and destroyed much valuable stock, presumably on account of a political grudge against the proprietor, W. H. Wayman. A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the arrest of the criminals, one-half of this sum being subscribed by the selectmen of the town and the other half by a committee of the citizens.

Milton, Mass.—At the Education Society's annual spring exhibition of flowers and fruits, held here recently, the following were conspicuous among the prize winners: John McKenzie, gardener for Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes; James Gibbs, gardener for Mrs. W. M. Forbes; Carl Olanson, gardener for Mrs. H. J. Gilbert, and Samuel McMullin, gardener for E. M. Brewer. The judges were: W. N. Craig, of the Langwater Gardens, North Easton, and J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston. The committee announces that the autumn show will probably be held September 24.

Jacksonville, Fla.—An important business change took place here recently, when Mills The Florist, Inc., took over the greenhouse properties at Greenwood cemetery of the Jacksonville Floral Co., and the latter company took over the greenhouse property at Oak and Osceola streets, Riverside, of the Mills company. The transaction involved approximately $15,000. The reason for the exchange is given by C. D. Mills, president of Mills The Florist, Inc., as being a matter of convenience, and so that his company may have control of all the cemetery work, which heretofore has been divided, and which can be better attended to by having it all done by one concern.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two copies.

ADVERTISERS never should permit an offer to stand after they have sold out of stock, and if orders come after stock is gone the golden rule requires that notice be sent immediately.

THE larger cemeteries now nearly all have greenhouse departments and cater actively for the business florists formerly secured from lot-owners, in the majority of cases prohibiting outside florists from doing work in the cemetery.

SOUTHERN mill owners say that the demand for pecky cypress is strong. Under such a condition they do not seek orders from florists, or for stock for florists' benches, as other trades will take random widths and the bench builder wants only 6-inch boards.

N. H. BOLLER, of Darling & Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, says that all the fertilizers that are by-products of the abattoirs will, in his opinion, be short of the demand for an indefinite time, because of light supply of raw material.

IN CASE OF DOUBT—

Ask The Review.

The Review always is glad to reply to inquiries concerning any part of the flower business, but please don't ask us to decide bets—the sporting editor is on vacation—or to say which is right in a business dispute—everyone knows the fate of the peacemaker, and we wish to avoid it.

Q.—I am building a greenhouse 18x 60; what make of boiler should I buy? Ans.—We are not in the habit of recommending any boiler as best adapted to any given situation. All the boilers advertised in The Review are good boilers, and the advertisers sell them on their merits. Write to them, and they will give you all necessary information to enable you to make a choice for yourself.

Q.—I find it difficult to get trade prices from some of the houses that are best worth dealing with; how shall I proceed? Ans.—Probably if you used a printed letter-head that showed your connection with the florists' business you would have no further trouble—a business man may reasonably be expected to have business stationery.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Separate Sections at Convention.

At the mid-Lent meeting of the executive board the following resolution was passed: "Resolved, That if five or more members write to the secretary expressing an especial interest in any floricultural topic and request the organizing of a section devoted to that subject, the secretary shall assign a place on the program to that topic and shall designate it by a suitable name as a separate section."

A place on the program has been reserved for such sections and the secretary will be pleased to hear from any members who wish the organization of such a section.

LADIES S. A. F.

Miss Meinhardt, president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, has appointed Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., on the board of directors to fill out the unexpired term of Mrs. W. J. Vesey, deceased.

Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Sec'y.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Orders have not decreased in the same proportion that the supply of good stock has fallen off. Business, though not rushing, is good for July. Receipts are nearly at the lowest ebb, and the quality of stock is that typical of midsummer.

Those houses which have made special provision for a summer cut are getting some first-class stock, but the small growers, whose facilities are not equal to running a part of the place for summer, are just between seasons; a good many are cutting nothing and many others are cutting either the last from the old stock or the first from the early replanted houses, and in neither case is the stock equal to the needs of the shipping trade. Within the last week not a few orders for roses have been turned down because the wholesalers could not find flowers of the quality necessary to stand an overnight journey. At the same time there were plenty of short and open roses that were sold cheaply. White Killarney is beginning to come in heavily, and with a few growers would be capable of competition with Kaiserin except for the fact that White Killarney is not clear in color until cool weather comes. The Beauties are mostly from young stock, or from stock planted specially for a summer crop. The quality is good for this time of year, but the demand is not extensive.

The receipts of carnations have become light, and the demand even lighter. Buyers already are inquiring for asters, but the prospect for these is not especially bright. Locally the weather through June was too dry. Outdoor gladioli from southern Illinois are coming in heavily, together with a few asters from that section. The glads, though not of specially good quality, are selling quite well. Sweet peas, now all from the open ground, have been far in excess of the demand. Many are well sold at 5 cents a bunch, for not all can find a buyer at any price.

The peonies in storage have been narrowed down to practically two lots. The holders of both these have shoved off their poor stock along with the quantities stored by other growers, so that the stock remaining is of pretty fair quality, especially by comparison with that taken out of storage in the last few days of June and the first few days of July. Many of the flowers showed frost marks when they went into storage, and many heads dropped promptly upon being brought again into summer heat. The holders believe that the flowers now in the cooler will not fall off and that they will be, in the next fortnight, the most satisfactory stock on the market. They are anticipating good sale because of the shortage of other first-class flowers, but wholesalers quite generally agree that the buyers this season are refusing to enthuse over peonies; they are not in request, selling only when brought to the attention of the buyer.

Easter lilies are no longer in excessive supply. They sell steadily, and better prices are being realized than a fortnight ago. Shasta daisies became abundant in the last days of June, and the price suffered accordingly, though much of the stock is fine. The passing of the wedding season ended the special demand for valley and left the growers with some stock unmarketed.

The supply of green goods is in every way equal to the demand.

Fourth's Fatality and Fire.

The one fatal accident in Chicago's sane Fourth occurred in the greenhouses of Peter Reinberg. Some of the men worked a while in the morning, one of them known to the rest as "Big John" Gawrys bringing an old revolver with him. While another employee named Richard Weber was examining the weapon he accidentally discharged it, the bullet piercing "Big John's" brain. Weber was arrested pending the inquest.

The largest loss in the city from fire started by fireworks, was sustained by Adam Zender, 6638 Ridge avenue, Rogers Park. He estimates his loss at $6,000. The fire started in the hay in the barn adjoining the greenhouses and completely destroyed one house, with considerable damage to the house next to it. The replanting of these rose houses had just been completed.

June Business.

June was not an especially good month in this market, although the volume of business as measured by dollars and cents doubtless exceeded any other June. The first ten days were excellent. Then came unseasonable heat, greatly increasing production. For a few days cash receipts increased with the increase in suplies, even while average prices fell, but soon conditions became such that values were forced so low that sales fell below last year's records. In the last days of the month business settled down to the usual summer character.

Weather in June.

The first part of June was cool, while the latter two-thirds of the month were much warmer than usual. The rainfall was less than one inch, which is not one-fifth of last year's June record and less than one-third the normal. The percentage of possible sunshine was eighty, which is far above normal. On eleven days of the month there were over fifteen hours of sunshine, while the least sun on any day of the month was two hours and eighteen minutes.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Union tonight, July 7. Dinner will be served at 7:30 sharp.

One of the special booklets issued by Rosehill cemetery is in the interest of its greenhouse department. Eight pages illustrate the plant houses, while others describe the florists' services rendered lot-owners.

Peter Risch, speaking for Weiland & Risch and other greenhouse owners, recently appeared before the city council at Evanston opposing the new rates for city water, which he said would compel large users like the cut flower growers to sink artesian wells. Several other classes of users also complained. Assurances were given that an adjustment will be made. Mr. Risch recently has visited his daughter, Mrs. P. J. Olinger, at Cincinnati.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. reports that business has been unusually good this spring; shipping trade has been excellent and spring stock is practically cleaned out. This firm has just received a large importation of palms, dracænas, etc., which it is growing on for the fall trade.

An adjourned session of the regular quarterly meeting of the Horticultural Society of Chicago will be held July 19 at the Art Institute. A special order of business will be the election of a president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. E. Kelley. A number of amendments to the by-laws also will be voted on, principal of these being one to establish the office of chairman of the executive committee.

Andrew Benson, superintendent at Bassett & Washburn's, has invented a simple contrivance for vaporizing nicotine extracts. In a large house it is difficult to apply these to the heated steam pipes with an oil can, as most growers do, and get the whole house treated before the fumes become too strong for the men on the job. Mr. Benson's contrivance is merely a piece of pipe with a little trough on the top. This is to be inserted in one of the pipes at each of the usual joints. When it is desired to fumigate, the steam is turned off from this pipe, the insecticide is put into the troughs while the pipe is cold, and the steam is turned on again, vaporizing the material.

A. L. Randall has gone to his farm in Michigan for the summer.

E. C. Amling says he does not recall a season when the demand for peonies has flattened out so quickly as this year. He finds the principal demand to be for Beauties, Killarney, White Killarney and Kaiserin roses.

C. W. McKellar and wife are planning an automobile tour of the east, to occupy several weeks.

F. F. Benthey, with Kyle & Foerster, says he does not recall a year in which July has started off so well as at the present season.

Adam Zender has completed replanting his range on Ridge avenue, though some houses remain to be dried off. One of these is now giving a fine cut of Killarney, 1,500 being cut in one house July 2.

Tim Matchen says Peter Reinberg's summer cut will be larger this year than usual, and that July is starting off better than in recent years.

The Mandel Bros. department store is being fitted out with window boxes, filled in the usual fashion.

The E. F. Winterson Co. has recently received several large shipments of cut sprays of Crimson Rambler roses. Upon occasion these have sold excellently, but when no advance arrangements for special wedding orders had been booked they were slow sale.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., returned July 1 from a hurried trip as far west as Oklahoma City. He did not have time to call on all of the firm's supply customers in the section covered, but reports the biggest business he ever has had on the road. He says every customer called upon reported a fine spring season and a good prospect for fall.

A. L. Vaughan and family are in the woods ten miles north of Woodruff, Wis.

John Sinner says the June business of Sinner Bros. was ten per cent ahead of last year, in spite of the rather disorganized condition of things at the Flower Growers' Market, resulting from rebuilding operations.

A. E. Hunt, of Evanston, has returned from a trip to Portland and Seattle, visiting Denver, Salt Lake City and other places on the way. Hunt & Co. are the originators of Carnation Mary Tolman, and he placed some good orders for field-grown plants, though primarily out for pleasure.

Kennicott Bros. Co. has been showing some excellent Golden Glow chrysanthemums, but E. E. Pieser says they are slow sale, not bringing anything like the ordinary October or November price. He adds that he feels sure growers will make a mistake if they bring this variety into market all summer, there being little sale in hot weather, with almost a certainty of destroying the novelty and popularity of the flower in autumn.

Charles Ernie, of E. H. Hunt's, is suffering his annual attack of hay fever.

J. A. Budlong and Wietor Bros. are about the only growers for this market who have given the Mrs. Jardine rose a thorough trial. Both these firms are much pleased with the variety and are planting it in larger numbers this year. N. J. Wietor says his firm is putting in 15,000.

Charles J. Bond, formerly orchid grower at a famous Philadelphia estate, who recently bought the Saylor place at Naperville, sent his first shipment of cattleya blooms to Vaughan & Sperry July 2. Mr. Bond will make a specialty of orchids, being the first grower in this vicinity to devote his energies exclusively to producing cut blooms for the Chicago market.

Mons Olson is the first of the city store force of Poehlmann Bros. Co. to go his recreative way. Each one of the staff there gets a fortnight's leave of absence.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Hot weather continued throughout the last two weeks and business has been nothing to brag of, although there has been plenty of stock, the quality of which is good for this season of the year. Prices have been quite low and much of the stock spoils.

This section of the country was visited by a much needed rain the early part of last week. This is the first rain we have had for some time, and, of course, crops were suffering badly, so the rain was quite a blessing.

Various Notes.

Quite a number of our Dayton florists seem to have the building fever this summer. Among them is John Boehner, who has torn down a section of his plant and in its place is erecting three large and modern houses. Mr. Boehner reports that business this last season has been exceptionally good.

The Heiss Co. is also tearing down part of its range and erecting one large new house. This company reports that, although business is a little quiet now, the past season was quite satisfactory.

The new addition to Mrs. B. Haschke's plant is now under course of construction, and promises to be a great improvement to her present establishment.

Jos. Furst has also added quite extensively to his range. The material for his new houses was furnished by the Foley Mfg. Co. Mr. Furst started in business in a small way a few years ago, at his present location, and has been quite successful, his business growing so that it was necessary for him to enlarge his place.

The five new houses, each 32x240, of the Miami Floral Co. are now completed, and make a fine appearance. The mill work for this range was furnished by the John C. Moninger Co., the iron gutters and truss construction by the Geo. M. Garland Co., of Des Plaines, Ill., and the ventilating apparatus by the Quaker City Machine Co., of Richmond, Ind., while the work of construction was done by Adam Weber, of Cincinnati, O. The entire addition will be given over to the growing of roses—two houses of Beauties, one of Rhea Reid, and the other two of Brides and Maids, all of which will be in bench by July 15. Visitors are invited to come and inspect this new range.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Weber and daughter, Gladys, of Cincinnati, O., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bartholomew last week.

Much interest is being manifested among our local florists regarding the coming convention at Rochester, N. Y., and it is expected that quite a delega-

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The week, June 30 to July 6, has been dull, probably marking the lowest ebb of the tide. The heat, fierce in its intensity, and the great national holiday combined, have been too much for business. The human sea poured from the city to the country and to the ocean shore. Flowers lost their charm. It is time, for the stock has gone downhill fast under the fierce heat.

There is some good new crop material arriving, Beauties from down east, Maryland and Kaiserin roses, a few nice carnations, chiefly Winsor and Boston Market, some nice lilies, giganteum, water (in colors) and of the vale—if you will permit warm weather levity. Late sweet peas are abundant and fine. Gladioli, quite decorative in fancy sorts, and, sure sign of midsummer, asters, are here—not the great, big, tony-blooded fellows, but the early birds, nice flowers that will do until people are educated to something better. The chief feature of the market is the increase in outdoor summer flowers. Everything of a week ago is more plentiful now. The farmers are even sending in those showy yellow field daisies, with brown stamens.

To sum up the market, prices are low, receipts far exceed the demand, and business is fair considering conditions.

The stock not scorched by the heat has revived under the delightfully cool weather of July 4 to 6.

An Important Purchase.

The Leo Niessen Co. has bought three buildings at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Race streets, one square north of the present location. The properties combined have a frontage of sixty feet on Race street and 100 feet on Twelfth street, also sixty feet front on Silver, a small 20-foot street running parallel to Race street. When asked about the plans of his company, Leo Niessen said that the three buildings now on the properties will be torn down. In their place a 6-story concrete building will be erected. The first floor will have a ceiling eighteen feet high; the basement ceiling will be twelve feet high. The first floor and basement are intended for the company's wholesale cut flower business. The other floors will be offered for rent. When asked the object of the move, Mr. Niessen said it was to secure light and space. The unusually high ceilings, with frontages on three streets, will afford abundant light, while the first floor will contain 6,000 square feet of floor space and the basement 7,000 square feet, as it will stretch half way under Silver street. When asked when the business would be moved to the new place, Mr. Niessen said that would depend, probably late next winter or early in the spring. This purchase, following so closely the erection of the company's present building, is striking proof alike of the steady growth of the cut flower business in this city and of the ability of Leo Niessen and Arthur A. Niessen.

The Policy at Dreer's.

J. Otto Thilow voiced the policy of the Henry A. Dreer corporation when he said: "The ever-blooming rose is replacing the June rose in the affections of the people. This is going on now and it will continue. We know that, and we mean to be the leaders in the change. It is a wonderful rose season and people are enthusiastic over the roses in their gardens. They come to see our window display, make notes of the kinds they want and order them. We have many fine varieties in pots, hybrid teas that simply require knocking out of the pot and planting; then they will go right ahead, growing and blooming.

"Mr. Eisele finds his work among the new roses a relaxation from his other work. They are inspirations. A great future is opening before us for the rose in the American garden."

A Well-Known Hand.

A newspaper came in the mail a few days ago. The address was in a hand, clear and flowing, well known to many of us in Philadelphia. The paper proved to be a copy of the Santa Barbara Independent of June 8. The marked passage gave an account of the meeting of Luther Burbank, W. Atlee Burpee, Howard M. Earl and Edwin Lonsdale in Lompoc valley, California, what they saw and what they said.

The facts gleaned from this paragraph are that Lompoc valley contains some 10,000 fertile acres, the climate favorable to an extent that warrants the name "the home of the sweet pea," also that cherries flourish exceedingly. Mr. Burbank is reported to have expressed regret that he had not located at Lompoc instead of Santa Rosa and that with the concurrence of Mr. Burpee he named his wonderful new poppy Fireflame. Reading between the lines, it appeared that Mr. Lonsdale is making progress, whereat all his Philadelphia friends will rejoice.

Various Notes.

The glorious Fourth was generally observed in this city. Business practically ceased; only necessary work was done. Some of the houses were closed all day; some were open for a little while only.

The Florists' Club meeting, scheduled for July 5, was postponed until July 12.

George D. Clark returned from California July 2.

Samuel S. Pennock spent the Fourth at Westerly, R. I.

W. W. Crawford was married to Miss Fulmer, June 29.

M. Rice points to a sign of the times in the fact that his house has just placed what is said to be the largest order for heavy waterproof crepe paper ever given.

M. J. Callahan has purchased a property on Market street half a block west of Thirty-eighth street, where he expects to move his business.

Sydney Bayersdorfer spent the Fourth by the sea.

Alexander B. Scott and Mrs. Scott have sailed for Europe. It is understood they will visit Newtownards, Ireland.

William Didden is completing two new King houses, 37x175 feet each, on his place at Yeadon. They will be devoted to chrysanthemums and sweet peas.

George A. Strohlein, of the Henry A. Dreer Co., sailed for Europe July 7 in the North German Lloyd steamer Barbarossa.

Edward Reid expects to go to the Rochester convention in his Packard car.

D. J. Keohane, of the Henry F. Michell Co., reports an increased demand for the better grades of French and Dutch bulbs.

Eugene Bernheimer has moved his family out to North Wales.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have completed stock-taking and are preparing to receive heavy imports.

C. F. Craythorn, of Maple Shade, N. J., is completing two houses, 25x100 each, for carnations. This will double Mr. Craythorn's plant. His varieties are Winsor, Lawson, Queen and White Perfection.

James J. Curran, of Bridgeport, Conn., spent the Fourth in this city.

Robert Scott & Son are rebuilding their range of houses that were brought from their old nurseries in South Philadelphia to Sharon Hill and were used for growing plants for the mailing orders. They are now being replaced by a modern range of King construction houses.

Robert A. Craig says the spring and early summer season is generally conceded to have been the best the plant growers have ever experienced. J. William Colflesh endorses this heartily in one brief word, "Sure." Phil.

Alfred Driver, referee in bankruptcy, has sent out notices that the final meeting of creditors for the closing up of the estate of J. Stern & Co. will be held July 12. Stern & Co. at one time did quite a trade in florists' supplies, specializing in artificial designs.

HELENA, MONT.

Cards received in Helena July 2 announce the wedding of William Ernest Mills, secretary and treasurer of the State Nursery Co., and Miss Mildred Teal, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Teal, and granddaughter of Judge and Mrs. Thomas, formerly of Helena. The wedding occurred at the bride's home in Los Angeles, June 29.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for England. They will visit en route at Williamsport, Pa., with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Yeager, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. July 14 they will sail for England, where Mr. Mills has numerous relatives.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Extreme heat has been our lot of late, and the market has lapsed into midsummer dullness, with scarce a ripple to vary its monotony. Roses are in light demand. Some good Kaiserin and Carnot are arriving, while the Killarneys are holding up well, but Richmond is down and out. It is too single for a summer rose. Beauties are also getting poor. There are quantities of poor short-stemmed flowers coming in which are practically unsalable. The heat is having a marked effect on carnations, and the quality is rapidly deteriorating. Quite a number of growers are pulling out their stock and some have stopped sending in any flowers. Prices are almost unquotable. No reasonable offer, however, is refused.

Sweet peas are in abundant supply from outdoors. The Spencer varieties seem to sell the best, but lack somewhat in keeping qualities. Pink, white and lavender are the best selling shades. Gladioli are abundant and sale on them drags. They are already in bloom outdoors. There are some speciosum and auratum, in addition to longiflorum lilies and plenty of outdoor candidums, which, however, are not of good quality and sell poorly.

There is now plenty of gypsophila, candytuft, stocks, cornflowers, salpiglossis and other summer material, with no great demand for any of them. The sale for asparagus and adiantum has fallen off considerably. Lily of the valley is now a slow moving article. There are still gardenias, which sometimes bring $2 per dozen for the best, but many are not wanted. There is a fair supply of cattleya flowers procurable, which bring good prices.

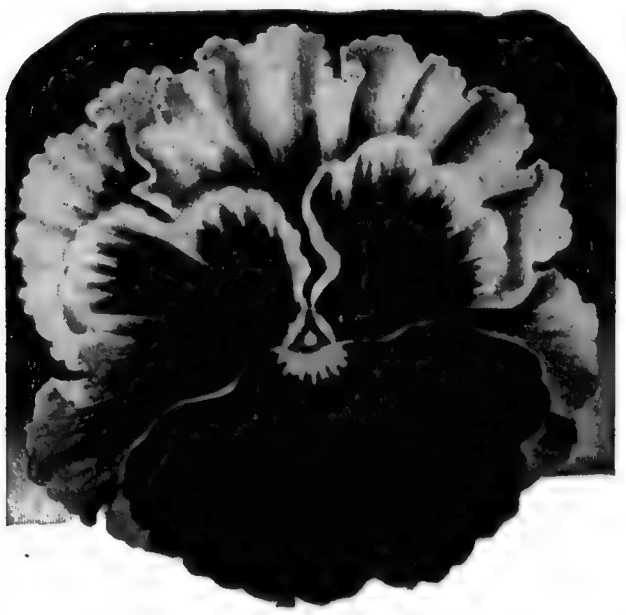
Various Notes.

Charles E. Holbrow has his two new King construction houses planted with tomatoes, 6,000 in number, which he thinks he will follow with sweet peas. Mr. Holbrow is one of our up-to-date florists, and had an excellent season.



John Farquhar returned July 1 from a two weeks' journey, extending as far as Kentucky.

William Sim is now busy among his tomatoes, the pick of which is now assuming big proportions, but finds a ready sale in Boston. Comet is still his favorite sort.

It has been decided for financial reasons to postpone the proposed internal alterations at Horticultural hall, but these are bound to come at an early date, the trustees favoring them as a unit. A new floor will be laid in the main hall and an electric elevator installed to carry passengers to the library. The society has just received a legacy of $2,500, the interest to be used as prizes for fruits.

Peter Fisher has 15,000 of his carnations planted and is filling his benches and replanting as rapidly as he can get the old stock cleared out.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, still brings in about 6,000 carnations daily, of good quality, to C Park street. Mr. Christensen does not approve of early planting. He puts a large gang to work about August 10 to clear out his benches, and usually finishes planting about September 1.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited The Moorings, Col. H. E. Converse's estate, at Marion, Mass., where D. F. Roy has charge, June 29, and were well entertained. This estate is entered for the Hunnewell triennial premium, and quite a number of important changes were noted since the previous visit in 1909.

Charles Techa, Thomas Pegler's efficient assistant at C Park street, is away on his vacation this week.

Among visitors noted last week were: W. F. Dreer, Benjamin Hammond, Fishkill, N. Y.; F. Mouncy, with W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., and W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

There will be no tickets sold this year for the picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at Pine Banks park, Malden, July 27. Admission will be free to all. Peter M. Miller, who has charge of the sports, announces many contributions for prizes and general expenses. Any others desiring to contribute should do so at once, as it is desired to issue the full list of sporting events without delay. The committee expects an attendance of 500 at the picnic.

The Thomas J. Grey Co. is still being kept quite busy. They have of late done a heavy business in farming implements, of which they carry a big line.

A special car, with an attendance approximating 100, is what is expected from Boston and vicinity for the Rochester convention. A large enrollment of new members is also a certainty.

Kaiserin and Killarney are still of excellent quality at W. H. Elliott's. Rhea Reid, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Richmond are now over for the season.

Edgar Bros., of Waverley, are busy filling their houses with chrysanthemums. They have had a successful season with sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Elliott and family closed up their Brighton home and moved to their Madbury, N. H., residence July 2.

M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, has a fine display of hardy roses at present. The ramblers will be at their best this week. Owing to no summer rose show being held at Boston this year, Mr. Walsh has had no opportunity to show his blooms here.

The season just closing has been the most successful Sidney Hoffman has had at his three flower stores. His new store on State street has proved a great success and fills a long-felt want in the financial district. W. N. Craig.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Prize winners at the annual exhibition of the Minnesota State Horticultural and State Rose societies divided $250 in premiums. The exhibit was held June 23 at the state experiment station in St. Anthony Park, Minneapolis, and about 300 people attended. D. W. C. Ruff, of Bald Eagle, exhibited seventy-five varieties of peonies and Rose Hill Nursery, St. Paul, and Jewell Nursery, of Lake City, also had large entries.

The annual dinner of the societies was held in the dining hall at noon. In the afternoon impromptu talks were given, among the speakers being A. F. Wood, dean of the agricultural school.

Prizes were awarded as follows:

Collection of six named roses—First prize, Jewell Nursery; second, Mrs. H. B. Tillotson; third, B. T. Hoyt.

Three named roses, white—First prize, Jewell Nursery; second, Rose Hill Nursery; third, Mrs. H. B. Tillotson.

BEVERLY, MASS.

The annual rose exhibition of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held in a large marquee on the Loring and Campbell estate, Beverly, June 29 and 30, and was a pronounced success. The attendance of prominent north shore cottagers was large and the committee in charge of the show, William Swan, chairman; John Jaffray, Alex. Shaw, John Chapman and John D. Morrison, are to be congratulated on the success which attended their labors.

Much interest attached to the dinner-table decoration of eight covers by ladies. The first prize went to Mrs. G. E. Cabot, who used light delphiniums with white roses as favors; Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy was second and had a pretty table of blue cornflowers; Mrs. James McMillan was third, with sweet peas. Eric Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland, with an excellent arrangement, was first for the best group of flowering plants. William Swan, gardener to Miss Helen Hooper, was a good second. The best collection of roses arranged for effect for ladies only came from Miss A. G. Thayer. The eagle head cup for the best collection of garden roses was well won by William Swan.

The Walsh prizes for displays of hardy roses went to Mrs. James McMillan, F. F. Brasch gardener, and Mrs. E. C. Swift, John Chapman, gardener, each of whom had a fine assortment. Eric Wetterlow had the best table of orchids in flower and William Swan led on gloxinias, as well as peonies. Mrs. James McMillan had the best collection of sweet peas; Joseph Lipton, second. Delphiniums were remarkably fine; George R. White had the best; William Swan, second.

Hardy perennials as usual were finely shown. For collection of not less than

The Rawson medal for the competitor securing most points in the various classes went to William Swan, followed by James Salter, Eric Wetterlow and James McGregor. The best collection of garden peas were shown by Mrs. Philip Dexter, James Salter gardener. There were also fine displays of other vegetables, also strawberries and native flowers.

The judges, who did their work in a painstaking and satisfactory manner, were Thomas Pegler, William Robb and David Weir, all of Boston. C.

ASHES FOR CONCRETE WALLS.

We are building some new greenhouses and would like to put concrete walls on one or two sides. We can get gravel to use, but it is quite expensive; however, we have a large pile of coal ashes that we could use in the place of the gravel. Do you think the ashes would do? If so, what proportion would you use? Would like to hear right away. G. T. & S.

Coal ashes make the best kind of concrete for greenhouse walls. The usual proportions are six or seven parts ashes to one of cement. To make the job complete, this should be faced with a mixture of sand and cement in the proportion of three of sand to one of cement, about one-quarter of an inch thick. Ribes.

Joliet, Ill.—Joseph Labo, though realizing that the quality of his greenhouse products is, in one sense, his best advertisement, is shrewd enough to perceive that newspaper advertising is a good means of attracting attention to those products. In a conspicuous advertisement in a recent issue of a local paper he uses the following words, which well illustrate the proper combination of the two ideas, merit and publicity: "A beautiful sample of our flowers and decorating will be seen at St. John's church June 26. Flowers from our hothouses will be used in abundance on this occasion. Our flowers have a recognized perfection."

NEW YORK.

principals, every employee is receiving from two to four weeks of recreative freedom. Early closing, too, is almost universal, and for two months the wholesale and retail merchants will be short-handed. The principals themselves are planning European voyages or auto trips of long duration. Many are already at their country estates or down by the sounding sea. Few of them will miss the convention, if in this country, and several are coming back from the Continent in time to enjoy the great reunion of the S. A. F. Those intending to take the special train via the Lehigh Valley railroad should write at once to Chairman Traendly, of the transportation committee, so that arrangements may be completed early for their comfort and convenience.

The Greek-American Florists' Association will hold its fourth annual outing Thursday, July 7, at Wetzel's Grove, College Point, L. I. The committee consists of Messrs. Christatos, Rovatzos, Karampus, Pappas, Carlafters and Polykranas, all prominent members of the society. The balls and outings of this organization have made it famous—2,000 attended the annual ball, and they expect half as many Thursday.

On the same day, as previously announced, the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association celebrates at Lake Hopatcong.

Bowling for position in the club to represent New York city at the convention began Wednesday evening at Thumm's alleys, Broadway and Thirty-first street. All members of the New York Florists' Club are invited to participate. No others are eligible.

Miss Elsie Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., and F. C. Wellwer were married June 29.

Mrs. Hofwood, mother of Mrs. John A. Foley, is in Europe, settling an estate. Mr. Foley is manager for Lecakes & Co., and also proprietor of a rapid transit and paying express business that receives the patronage of the florists' trade.

M. A. Bowe caught, on the glorious Fourth, one of the plums that fall from the politician's table: the elaborate decoration of City hall, a most artistic piece of work, that did him much credit. The building was festooned with evergreens; tall arborvitæ crowned the roof; large numbers of bay trees were utilized. Privet hedges on every side added to the charming ensemble, and the grand stand, where the mayor and eminent speakers stood, was decorated with an abundant supply of lilies, irises and American Beauties.

The records here show the largest number of June brides in the city's history; 3,671 licenses were issued, an average of 141 per day. June 14 made the top figure of 236 for the day. In six months 16,850 licenses to marry were granted. No wonder the New York florists are kept busy with decorations.

After a phenomenal season, the seedsmen are taking it easy, maintaining, however, interesting window displays at all times. For bedding plants the demand is over. No such season, with its wonderful continuance of planting weather, is remembered by the oldest inhabitant.

H. H. Groff, the Canadian gladiolus specialist, was a visitor last week.

The Gladiolus Society, President Hendrickson says, already has reached the three figures, with more to follow.

There will be a wonderful display at Rochester from this vicinity.

W. H. Waite, of Yonkers, left Saturday for a trip to Europe, returning early in October.

The alterations referred to many weeks ago in the store of Myer, at Madison avenue and Fifty-eighth street, are now under way, and when complete the store will have about double its previous capacity.

Echoes of the Outing.

Charles Plumb, of Detroit, greatly enjoyed his visit with the local florists at the outing. He is on his way to Europe.

Prizes to the value of nearly $400 rewarded the winners in the thirty-five contests, exclusive of the special games and liberal rewards for consolation, open to all who had failed to win and provided by President Miller.

If the morning had provided sunshine early, instead of rain, the attendance would have exceeded last year's record of 501. The day turned out an ideal one in every respect, and the early date enabled the club to escape the distressing heat of July 1. The general desire seems to be for a ten days' later date next season.

The breakfast and dinner provided by Wetzel seemed to be equal to his record of other years to give general satisfaction.

It would seem wise to limit the athletic contests in the future to twenty-five, giving the committee a little time itself for rest and recreation. This year for them it was all work and no play.

The ladies' races were the most exciting incidents of the day. Several serious falls resulted because of the necessity of running on the grass. The distinction between running and walking was hard to determine. The 3-frame bowling test enabled every lady to have a try for the handsome prizes, but is a poor indication of skill. The same fault was found by the sterner sex, and winning became a matter of exceptional skill or luck. With so large a competition, however, full games are impossible. F. H. Traendly, of the fat men, had to lower his colors the first time in years, and Louis Schmutz also was forced to take back water from Einsman on the large family question.

All things considered, the outing will be a pleasant memory for years to come and the harmony of the occasion especially commends it.

Miss Grunig, with the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, is visiting friends here.

Charles Thorley celebrated the Fourth at Reno, Nev.

Charles H. Totty has completely recovered from his recent automobile accident.

J. Austin Shaw.

Record is made in the real estate columns of the daily papers of the lease to the Keller Florists' Supply Co. of the first floor of the building at 147 West Twenty-eighth street.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Although the usual summer cessation in business began a week ago, last week showed little of it because of several large funerals that gave the majority of the downtown stores a good business. Among the notable funerals of the week was that of the Rt. Rev. William N. McVickar, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Rhode Island, for which there was a large number of fine floral pieces well distributed among the dealers.

Prices followed the normal standard for the season, Killarney, My Maryland, Bride, Richmond and Bridesmaid being quoted at $8 per hundred for firsts, $5 to $6 per hundred for seconds, $1 to $3 per hundred for thirds; carnations, $2 per hundred for firsts, down to 50 cents; sweet peas, 35 cents to 75 cents per hundred; cut ferns, $1.50.

Various Notes.

William Hay visited Newport June 29.

William E. Chappell has got his early outdoor work completed and is now giving attention to his houses and benches.

John M. Green, of Harrison street, is contemplating the purchase of a place and the erection of a range of houses.

Johnston Bros., of Dorrance street, have begun the renovation and improvement of the interior of their store.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island is arranging for a club visit to the Rhode Island College at Kingston in a few days. A fishing party will be arranged for in August.

Burke & Burns, who recently purchased the greenhouses of William Hay, on Dyer avenue, took possession July 1. Mr. Hay will now devote his attention to his new range in Oaklawn, with a wholesale store at the corner of Washington and Clemence streets, this city.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., of Auburn, are cutting about 1,500 roses a day, which are sold in seven grades at from 2 cents to 15 cents each. They have commenced to replant several of their houses, one of which will be put to Asparagus Sprengeri.

James A. Tefft, of Wakefield, was in the city June 29, arranging for stock for a large Fourth of July wedding at Narragansett Pier.

Samuel Kinder, of S. Kinder & Bro., Bristol, has been appointed tree warden of that town.

H. L. Martin, of Woonsocket, was in the city last week taking orders for sheep dressing.

Matthew Macnair, of this city, sailed Friday, July 1, from New York for an extended tour of Europe. He was accompanied to New York by his son Charles. Mr. Macnair will visit England, Ireland, Scotland, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany and Italy during his absence.

Alfred E. Burdick has left the employ of S. J. Reuter & Sons, at Westerly.

Carl Oberheitman, decorator for Wadley & Smythe, has arrived at Newport for the season.

The Providence Evening Bulletin has temporarily closed its tree campaign, having received pledges for 3,087 trees to be planted in September on the streets of the city. George Johnson & Son have the contract for the work. The Westminster Greenhouses have the credit of being the only greenhouse to contribute to the fund so far.

An extensive range of greenhouses is being planned for the Commodore James place on Castle Hill, Newport.

W. H. M.

Kansas City, Mo.—Samuel Murray has leased for five years the north half of the first floor of the Bailey-Reynolds building, 913 and 915 Grand avenue. The total consideration was $17,000.

Green Bay, Wis.—Carl Meier & Co. are building two iron-frame greenhouses, each 21x80 feet, on the former site of three old houses and the office, on South Webster avenue. The office will be rebuilt in a different position. A new boiler will also be installed.

The Market.

The market last week was anything but in good condition, and the wholesalers say that extreme dullness now reigns. Their sales have been unusually small all of the last week. Window displays of cut flowers in the retailers' windows have disappeared and decorative stock has taken their place. The stock that is coming in now at the wholesale houses is of poor quality and, in all varieties, is showing the effects of the hot weather that prevailed all last week. There was little outlet for the large amount of stock that came in every day, and, unless sold at ridiculously low prices, it had to be dumped. Roses, carnations and sweet peas suffered alike.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sanders, with their daughter, Laura, spent a part of last week in Chicago. Mr. Sanders bought a fine, large touring automobile while in Chicago, and made the trip home in the new car.

Alex. Siegel says that this week he will pack up for his summer trip, which will be spent among the northern lakes. He expects to be gone about two months.

Walter Pilcher, of Kirkwood, is cutting a fine lot of America gladiolus spikes, of which he will have nearly 5,000. He was around as usual last week, and was handing out cigars in celebration of his thirty-eighth birthday.

The trustees of the Florists' Club met at Ostertag's store last week and arranged the program for the picnic. All other details of this occasion are now complete.

Charles Schoenle spent last week fishing in the western part of the state, and returned with a big string of fine bass.

W. C. Smith will make the trip to Detroit with the St. Louis Elks' lodge, and says he will spend the greater part of his time visiting the trade in that city.

The McCray Refrigerator Co. has opened salesrooms in one of the vacant stores under the big Coliseum building on Washington avenue. They say they have sold a number of boxes to the local florists this summer.

Charles Holzborn and wife left last week for a summer trip to their old home in Germany. They will return September 1, ready for the opening of the season.

C. Young & Sons Co. will hold a stockholders' meeting July 12 at the company's office, 1406 Olive street. They have an attractive window this week, a duck pond with a dozen young ducks swimming, and a background of plants.

Fred Foster, of the Foster Floral Co., says he does not have to buy sweet peas at the wholesale market, as he is cutting thousands from his place at Kinloch park.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., spent a day with the trade last week and says he will start soon to rebuild his houses, which were burned during last May, and if they are finished in time he and his daughter will attend the S. A. F. convention at Rochester.

George Waldbart is cutting a fine lot of sweet peas, Shasta daisies and a raft of other outdoor stock from his place in Clayton.

Fourth of July found the majority of the retailers closed up half a day. The wholesalers also closed, as this is known as the florists' holiday.

A. C. Brown, of Springfield, and Heller Bros., of New Castle, Ind., are sending to this market a nice lot of cut stock in roses and carnations. This is being consigned to H. Berning, who says stock is plentiful, but the demand slow and prices low.

Henry Emunds, of Belleville, Ill., says that he will soon be cutting thousands of everblooming tuberoses and gladiolus spikes.

Do not forget the Florists' Club meeting next Thursday afternoon, July 14. A smoker has been arranged for. Also keep in mind the florists' picnic Thursday, July 21, at Romona park.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y., has been touring in Maine in an automobile.

CHAS. J. BOLGIANO says that the 1910 season went far beyond the expectations of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, and that everything indicates continued good business.

H. G. HASTINGS & Co., Atlanta, Ga., say that 1910 spring season was the best in their twenty years' experience. To get the business they mailed 450,000 catalogues and credit a large part of the results to the fact that the mailing list had been carefully revised and that the books were ready and mailed exactly as planned.

GEORGE D. CLARK, of the Dreer corporation, Philadelphia, has returned from a tour of crop inspection in California.

THE North Dakota State Agricultural College board has appropriated $4,500 for a new seed house at the experiment station at Dickinson.

GROWERS of aster seeds at Rochester are in the midst of setting plants for seeding and a break in the present dry weather would be of special value.

A CABLE from Paris says that the continuous wet and cold weather through June is causing much anxiety as to crops.

AT the next session of the Iowa legislature seedsmen hope to secure certain changes in the pure seed law which will make it the model seed law of the country.

THE business heretofore conducted under the name of Hill's Seed House Nursery Co., at Phoenix, Ariz., has been incorporated and will be known in the future as Hill's Seed House, Inc. The directors of the new concern are I. L. Hill, F. N. Hill and Frank Mosshammer.

good crops. But he was careful to add that a few days of bad weather in autumn may change the whole aspect of things.

J. H. Walter, president of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, with his family, is rusticating at a Maine resort.

Maurice Fuld, formerly manager for W. W. Rawson & Co., Boston, now is with the Wonderland Company, Revere Beach, Boston.

Chas. Loeschner, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, has retired from that connection and gone to Germany permanently.

Rev. W. T. Hutchins, whose special hobby is the sweet pea and who has recently made his home in California, will return to New Haven, Conn., to reside.

TEXAS FIRMS CONSOLIDATE.

Through a combination of two Dallas houses, Texas now has a concern that expects to handle an annual business of $700,000 to $800,000 in seeds and plants.

The amalgamation of interests involves the Texas Seed & Floral Co. and the Robinson Seed & Plant Co. and became operative July 1. The change was brought about through the reorganization of the Texas Seed & Floral Co., with a capital of $100,000, the officers being: President, R. Nicholson; vice-president, E. P. Brown; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Robinson. Mr. Robinson formerly was president and Mr. Brown vice-president of the Robinson Seed & Plant Co., which was established in 1873 and now loses its identity in the larger concern.

The first thing the new corporation will do is to erect a four-story brick warehouse at Hawkins street and Pacific avenue, Dallas, where headquarters will be made. Mr. Robinson is authority for the statement that the combined businesses represent a volume of from $700,000 to $800,000.

BOSTON'S NEW FIRM.

The big new Boston seed house, formed by merging the businesses of W. W. Rawson & Co., H. E. Fiske Seed Co. and Schlegel & Fottler Co., will have H. E. Fiske as general manager. John Fottler, late of the Schlegel & Fottler Co., will be president, and W. C. Briggs, formerly treasurer of the H. E. Fiske Seed Co., will act as secretary-treasurer. The building now occupied by the H. E. Fiske Seed Co. will be used by the new firm. It was for years, and prior to the fire a few years ago, occupied by W. W. Rawson & Co.

Herbert W. Rawson will not be actively interested in the new firm, and Maurice Fuld, late manager for Rawson & Co., will not be connected with it; neither will A. F. Barney and J. M. Gleason, the other much respected members of the Schlegel & Fottler Co., who, it is rumored, may start on their own account. The new amalgamated firm will have convenient and centrally located quarters right in the heart of the seed district, and will control a large volume of business. W. N. Craig.

PEAS AND BEANS.

The pea crops in Wisconsin and Michigan show that the product will vary all the way from hardly anything to a full crop. This refers to Alaska and some other of the early varieties. In some cases the land retained enough moisture to mature the crops evenly, but in many other cases the fields have been seriously affected by the drought. On the whole, there is no doubt that there will be a great shortage of earlies, notwithstanding that many of the growers feel that the Alaska crops are safely made. It is yet too early to give any estimate of the late sorts, although the general opinion is that they have suffered from lack of rains much more than the earlies. In some cases it is thought that rain may yet come in time to assist in making the late varieties pan out well.

Beans thus far are looking well. The stand is excellent, in general, but there is a long season yet and it may or may not be favorable.

THE ONION SET SITUATION.

The onion set situation is far from satisfactory. At Chicago the early plantings are at the setting stage and are too small to make more than half a crop. If rain had made connections two weeks ago the crop from these early plantings would have been full and the quality would have been excellent. As it is, rain can do little, if any, good; in fact, many of the growers think that rain now on these plantings would do more harm than good. The later plantings have as yet formed no bulbs. The hot weather and lack of rain has given these crops the dry, rootless condition which paves the way for the thick neck crop that comes with copious rains after extended drought. It may be that immediate rain will help these late plantings in some cases, but the outlook is not encouraging. Here and there we get reports that are optimistic, but in general the opinion is that the onion set crop at Chicago will be decidedly light. There are more acres planted here than ever before, but even at that the harvest will fall far short of last year.

At Louisville and in other sections the outlook is better, as there have been more favorable conditions at critical periods. Reports from these other sections, however, incline to the idea that the product of the fields will be below normal.

CATALOGUE SEASON AGAIN.

Once more the seedsman finds himself confronted by the necessity of making a start on that great and expensive task, the general catalogue. Time was that this work was left till autumn, but experience has shown the wisdom of an early start, and nowadays the large houses get at the general catalogue as soon as the bulb books are finished; at least the general character of the book is determined and photographs are made for such new illustrations as are needed.

Probably there is no mail-order seedsman who would not like to cut down on the cost of his catalogue, but instead the cost keeps going up. The cost of good printing has advanced appreciably along with other costs of doing business, but a still more important factor is the demand for larger editions, larger books, better cuts, better composition, better paper and better press work. Most of these things take time, and they all enhance the cost of the book. Most seedsmen are like our last Congress; they plan economies and then spend more money than ever. It's even more difficult to go back than to go on.

The Kenilworth Strain of Giant PANSY SEED

Must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers, of 3½ to 4 inches, are of perfect form, and every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. It is the result of years of selections. The Stock Plants are selected from many thousands of plants grown for market. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany, and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures

It is possible that a seedsman may be misjudged by the appearance of his book, but that he is so judged most of them recognize. The idea was put into words by Bessie M. Ruppert, a well-known florist and dahlia specialist, in a letter she wrote recently to the McFarland people: "I rather judge most others by myself in catalogue matters," she said. "When I receive a poorly printed catalogue upon poor, trashy paper, I never give it a second thought—seldom more than glance through it. But, on the other hand, if it is well printed and on good paper, I always lay it aside for the time when I can give it my attention—I always go through it from cover to cover, reading what happens to be of interest to me. The man who sends it is the man who gets my order if I need anything in his line."

THE FREE SEEDS.

J. C. Robinson, who has just completed a year's work as president of the American Seed Trade Association, despairs of ever stopping the free seed evil through the efforts of the seedsmen themselves, but hopes public sentiment will accomplish what those who have an interest in the issue cannot. In his address at Atlantic City, President Robinson had this to say of free seeds:

"The free seed evil shows no signs of abatement; in fact, it shows an ever increasing output. Just why the seed trade should be selected to meet government competition of free seeds is hard to tell. The Agricultural Department was organized to benefit the people. Without doubt the original purpose of the seed distribution, to disseminate new and rare vegetables and plants in a new country, was beneficial, but the department comes far from reaching this object at present. With ever-increasing appropriation of the people's money only a comparatively small part is expended for really new and rare things. A great injustice is done the seed trade of the country. The officials in charge recognize this, but can only carry out the instructions of congress. I have noted with pleasure, during the last year, that many of our newspapers recognize this distribution as a waste of the people's money, for which no real benefit is derived except by congressmen who like to flatter their constituents by a package of free seed that does not even comply with Par. 5, Sec. 496, Postal Service Regulations. [The paragraph requiring sealed envelopes to be of transparent paper.] The only effective way of combating this evil is to lay the ax at the root, the congressman himself, and show him the error of his ways. The time will come when this free seed distribution of common varieties will cease, but it will not be through a direct fight of the seedsman, as he will always be accused of self-interest in his efforts."

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending June 25 were as follows:

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $3,978.

A BED OF PANSIES.

As I intend to put in a pansy bed in a few weeks, I should like to ask you a few questions on the subject. I want to make coldframes six feet wide and thirty feet long. How far apart should my plants be set to make good, stocky plants? How many seeds ought I to purchase to make plants enough to fill this bed? Our soil here in Illinois is a rich, black, heavy loam, with scarcely any sand in it. What could I add to the soil to made it an ideal pansy soil?

H. A. E.

Allow the plants three inches apart each way in the frame, which would give you space for nearly 3,000 plants. One ounce of good quality seed should give you a sufficient number of plants, provided they are carefully sown and properly treated. An addition of rotted horse manure, sand and some leaf-mold, a year old and only partially decayed, would lighten your soil and much improve it for pansies. They like a light, but tolerably rich and porous soil.

W. C.

NAME OF PLANT.

We are sending under separate cover a bloom and leaf of a plant that one of our customers brought to us to get the name. He says this plant has no bulb and that he got it in Rochester, N. Y., twenty years ago. He has shown it to florists all over the country and they do not know what it is. In his description he said it had a stem that stood out of the pot about four inches and the leaves broke from the top. I showed him a crinum and he said it grew like that, but that the stem did not get larger at the bottom, being practically the same size all the way down. It usually blooms in February and never dies down or rests like amaryllis. They propagate from it in the following manner: It throws out shoots from the stem, like a Sansevieria Zeylanica, and when the shoot comes up at the side of the pot they cut it off a short distance from the stem. Can you name this plant?

F. P. F. C.

It is Imantophyllum miniatum, also called Clivia miniata. This is the old form. There are now many new and vastly improved varieties in cultivation.

CUCUMBERS TURN YELLOW.

Will you please tell me the trouble with my cukes? When they are only half grown they turn yellow at the stem and commence to ripen. If any are green when picked, they get yellow after a couple of days. Is there anything that can be done to make cukes a dark green?

J. L. P.

It is hard to tell what the trouble is without seeing one of the cukes, but I am of the opinion that you have a poor variety. A cucumber that has black thorns on it instead of white will turn yellow every time before becoming large enough to make a good cuke. Many of the pickling varieties are of the black-spine type. The best of cukes will sometimes turn yellow if the plants are sickly, but they usually get all twisted up and worthless at the same time.

Plenty of rich soil, fertilizer and water will keep the color of the cukes good if the plants are healthy and of good varieties.

CREDIT THE PARCELS POST.

It is reported from Paris that the extension of the French parcels post privileges to the shipment of cut flowers has so stimulated the trade, which has increased in value from $57,000,000 in 1892 to $77,000,000 in 1909, that a technical board of horticulture has been created and attached to the French department of agriculture. An earnest attempt will be made to coördinate the individual efforts of the numerous horticultural societies and syndicates, and of the transportation companies, technical experts, inventors and other agencies interested in the matter, and thus establish greater unity and coöperation among all who are in any way connected with the production and traffic in plants and flowers.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Business for June was unusually good. Graduations, weddings and funeral work kept the store men busy, and all seem well satisfied. The growers have been sending in more good flowers than usual for this season of the year.

The continued dry, hot weather is uot favorable to sweet peas, asters, field-grown carnations and other outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

The Rieben Floral Co., the Cramer Floral Co. and Sugar House Floral & Seed Co. are sending good cuts of carnations.

The Salt Lake Floral Co. has been cutting good crops of carnations and roses; also some fine cattleyas. Several fine specimens of the latter were on exhibition in the city last week and, being home-grown, were much admired. Mr. Adams, of this company, who is one of the pioneer rose growers of Colorado and Utah, is planting more and more roses and cutting good crops.

Walter W. King has been rushed with some big funeral work lately, in addition to wedding work and other decorations.

The Huddart Floral Co., the Morris Floral Co. and all the stores seem to have had their full share of business, as all seem to be well satisfied with the season now closing, and nearly everybody is figuring out the camping and fishing trips for the dull, hot weeks now beginning. Wasatch.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.: Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

UNITED STATES NURSERY LANDS.

[A paper by W. H. Stark, of Louisiana, Mo., read at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Denver, June 8 to 10, 1910.]

There are three fundamental factors which are the source of all wealth produced: First, land; second, labor; third, capital. They can not be separated, and what influences one affects the others. Some individuals go so far as to say there is but one basic factor, and that is land. Although this is not so, land is of great importance, especially to the nurseryman, and it has become a more vital question of his success each year. The conditions are changing rapidly. The free government lands are practically exhausted, and real estate is rising in value by leaps and bounds. All of this reacts on the other two factors, labor and capital, as they are influenced decidedly by development and the increasing land values.

The nurserymen of today should own or control most of their land. The successful nurseryman of tomorrow must own his land. There was a time in the past when the business could be carried on successfully by renting and thus getting new and fresh fields for each crop, but the fields have lost much of their original fertility, and circumstances are different.

Commodore W. K. Vanderbilt stated that a corporation can not afford to own land, but should lease everything and keep its capital spread out as much as possible, constantly turning it over and over. The commodore founded the old school of railroaders whose slogan was, "The public be damned!" That time is past, and the railroads are finding that another policy is necessary, and, likewise, the commodore's views on leasing land do not hold for present-day conditions.

Advantages of Owning the Land.

"You must buy land"—I might have used that for my subject, instead of "United States Nursery Lands," but I did not want to be mistaken at the start for one of the western real estate agents, some of whom will sell the unsuspecting tenderfoot anything from a granite mountain peak to a patch of saline sage brush. But, whether you buy your land from the old settler or the real estate agent, it is necessary that you own or control it. To beat competition in the open market, to meet fluctuating conditions, to establish a permanent trade, to specialize in the line of propagation best suited to your conditions and eliminate as many of the risks as possible, it is necessary to be largely independent of rented land—to own sufficient for your own work.

When land was cheap and abundant many of the disadvantages of renting could be overlooked, but now it is scarce and high. You can not lease land with roads and ditches laid out, and properly tiled to suit nursery work. The question of tiling alone is highly important. It is not only necessary for wet, sour land, but beneficial to well drained land, as it disposes of surplus soil water in less time, thereby lengthening the growing season and also increasing the effectiveness of fertility in the soil, both of which are of special importance in the costly cultivation of trees.

Whether a field is productive or not, the cost of the growing of a block of trees on it is the same. I have in mind two adjoining fields. One has been leased to various tenants for some years; the other has been carefully farmed and fertilized since the timber was cleared. The latter will produce fifty per cent more in the way of farm crops, and in nursery stock it will yield a block which is worth some hundreds of dollars more per acre. A great deal of profit is lost by planting on unsuitable land. But you can not afford to heavily fertilize a rented field and leave most of the lime, phosphate and other elements in the ground for the next renter. Neither is it highly practicable to lease land several years ahead and grow clover, cow peas or other green manures, although many heavy fertilizer bills can be saved in this way. While not wishing to be too personal, I have in mind an illustration, a model plant of its kind for permanency, where there is concentration and where money is invested generously in tiling and fertilizing, namely, our modest friends, the Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O.

You should own the land in order to keep it in a high state of fertility, which will grow the old-time virgin crops and make the heavy cost of propagation a profitable investment. The production of any crop which calls for intensive methods is not profitable except where all conditions are most favorable. It might be quite profitable to raise sheep on $10-an-acre land, for they do most of the work themselves, but it would be a losing proposition if you tried to grow corn.

Scattered Blocks of Trees.

The rapidly changing conditions, the building up of cities, the subdividing of farms, the rise in value of farm crops, all make it more necessary each season for the nurseryman to own his land. It is expensive trying to work several blocks of trees scattered over half a dozen counties. For example: Say the cost of hauling men to a field three miles distant is 10 cents for each man per day. His time, allowing one hour for the six miles going and coming, is worth at least 15 cents. This makes a cost of 25 cents per day for each man necessary to work a field three miles distant, which will amount to $15 or $20 in a season. For each man necessary to do the season's work it would be cheaper to pay $15 more for a piece of land close at hand, but no better in any other respect. This does not take into account other savings, such as hauling stock to the packing house, nor losses due to poor stands because of inefficiency of working at long range. You will all agree that long experience has proven it very expensive to work scattered blocks of trees. To centralize a plant, it is necessary either to buy a large tract outright or gradually accumulate it, picking it up a field at a time.

Neither is it profitable to grow trees when prices are up and then drop out entirely when prices are low. Going from one place to another, with no permanent headquarters, is not as profitable as it was in the days of tree dealers. It costs more in time and money to establish a trade. The markets are stable, the demand surer. With the improved knowledge and better judgment of buyers, the nurseryman has a wider range in which to sell his stock. He can afford to make more advertising investments for future business, and in building up an established trade. But to give a trade its full value the business must have something substantial to rest upon, and this want is supplied by investments in land and permanent improvements, so that all of the finer details can be perfected and methods improved each season.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is again back to normal, although the closing days of June were record-breakers for weddings. Lily of the valley and white roses were at a premium and in many cases carnations and sweet peas were resorted to. The passing of the fair graduates will put a quietus on business and summer prices will prevail.

Vacation time is here and the "call of the wild" is heard by many of the florists after the strenuous season just past. Stock is plentiful, carnations are in good supply and prices are lower; 75 cents per dozen is the retail price on all varieties. Sweet peas are numerous and of fine quality, and the best selling commodity on the market. Auratums, rubrums and longiflorums are plentiful and move well. Green goods are unusually scarce, especially the asparagus varieties. Rosés are in normal supply, but are badly affected by mildew, which is the worst pest that the florists have to combat in this section.

Various Notes.

P. Johnson has quit the flower business and has sold all his stock and glass to Crout & Wilson, of Mt. Tabor.

M. Stauch, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., is now in charge of the growing end of Clarke Bros.

Gustav Teufel is sojourning in Alaska, combining business and pleasure.

Steele's Pansy Gardens are well satisfied with sales, as their spring trade was approximately 100,000 plants.

R. A. Reigelmann is credited with the best sweet peas on the market, and in the most exquisite colors.

J. T. Dayton, representing the Madison Basketcraft Co., was a recent caller, as also Lewis Goodfriend, representing Wertheimer Bros. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The weather is warm again and business is about as quiet as one could well imagine. From appearances, all the good customers are rusticating out of town, and those who are left behind show but little desire to patronize the florists. However, I might add that funeral orders are in fair evidence and these are about all there are to mention. Flowers all show the return of the warm spell. Roses, especially, are flabby and of poor color. Carnations stand the heat better and, with the exception of a small showing of thrips on some of the red and deep pink sorts, are of good quality. Good sweet peas are not plentiful, although there is an abundance of the short-stemmed flowers. Gladioli are the most popular flowers at this time.

Such varieties as America, Augusta, Mme. Monneret, Giant Pink and a few others are in big demand at good prices. Dahlias promise to be popular again this season and, although it is early yet for a full assortment, those already shown are quickly bought.

Asparagus and maidenhair ferns are more plentiful than they have been any time this year. Gypsophila is used to a great extent in preference to the more expensive trimmings and its appearance is always hailed with delight by the retailers, who find the providing of greens a serious and costly proposition for many months in the year.

Various Notes.

H. Kempf has purchased the stock and buildings of the Pacific Nurseries, near the Presidio, from F. Ludemann, who had been proprietor of this well known place for many years. GLADIOLI IN CALIFORNIA.

The growing of gladioli in the neighborhood of San Francisco, for the market, has never been thoroughly tested and but few growers realize the money that is to be made by properly handling this article. Until a couple of years ago the public had not seen many of the newer varieties and, now that some of the kinds are well known, the demand is greater than the visible supply. The old-fashioned garden sorts were well enough for decorative purposes and cheap bouquets, but now even these have fallen into disrepute and are seldom seen.

The gladiolus, when well grown, is one of the most satisfactory flowers to handle, either for the grower or retailer. It is a splendid keeper, has a good stem, mixes well with other flowers, can be used in almost any sort of spray or design, holds its shape and substance well after being taken out of water and does not bruise easily in shipping. Such a lot of good points, coupled with its present popularity, make it one of our most valued hardy flowers. Separate colors are the best sellers, and at the best prices, although any of the standard mixtures have up to this time given good satisfaction and proven to be money-makers. A few ideas regarding their growing in this latitude may not be amiss at this time.

Gladioli will grow, multiply and blossom in almost any soil, but to have the best results they should be planted in rather heavy ground, where the drainage is good. Manure used in close connection with the corms is not a good idea, as it has a tendency to cause rotting. They should be planted from four to five inches in depth and the ground should be kept well loosened on the surface. A few good soakings during their growing season and one or two more when they are flowering is about all the care they need. In this climate they multiply fast. When they have finished blooming, and before the rainy season commences, they should be dug. It is not a good plan to cut the plants down to the corm until they have completely dried, and if they are still green when dug they had better be given about six inches of stem and this should be allowed to dry and later broken off. Some sorts multiply much faster than others, and if the grower is careful he will take off all the bulblets and plant them by themselves, to grow on. Cutting off the flowers tends to weaken the corms to a great extent, and if the grower wishes to increase his stock of any particular variety he should allow the flower to die on the stem. When dug they should be put away in a dry place, kept from the frost until February or March, and replanted.

Gladioli are easily grown from seed and will blossom the second year. The various varieties of Colvillei are of the easiest culture and increase rapidly. They will not stand quite as much water at the root as the larger flowered sorts and should never be kept in the ground over winter, unless they are in an extra well drained place. By making a succession of plantings and reserving the late flowered sorts until the last, blossoms can be cut from May until November. G.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness now prevails. Flowers are quite plentiful, but the demand is light. Carnations are still in fair condition, although the hot weather of the last few weeks has been rather hard on them. They bring about 50 cents per dozen, retail. Roses of fair quality are arriving, and bring from $1 to $1.50 per dozen. Sweet peas from outdoors are coming in now, and are quite good, especially the Spencer types, which retail at 50 cents per hundred.

A few odds and ends of snapdragon, stocks, etc., are still seen, and they help considerably in funeral work. The demand for bedding plants is about over. It has been a good season, although vincas have been somewhat scarce. Stock in the fields is looking fine. Early closing is now the rule here.

Various Notes.

Wm. P. Peirce reports that funeral work was especially heavy Saturday, July 2. Mr. Peirce gave, free of charge, about 1,000 plants of geraniums, zinnias, marigolds, cosmos and Cobæa scandens to the home garden committee, for the benefit of children who were not able to buy plants.

A. B. Hathaway is sending in some nice Countess Spencer sweet peas, which find a ready sale.

S. S. Peckham will have an immense stock of mums for this season. He is still bringing in some good geraniums and salvias.

E. H. Chamberlain is showing some nice ferns for this time of the year.

Julius Rositzsky, manager for Wm. P. Peirce, made a design for the high school graduation class, composed of thousands of immortelles and backed with green gypsophila, which is being used to a considerable extent here now. W. L.

Galveston, Tex.—Mrs. M. A. Hansen has gone on a trip to Dresden, Germany. She has left her business in charge of Mrs. P. E. Nelson, formerly of Alvin, Tex. Mrs. Nelson is a first-class business woman and is very popular here, this being her home town. Mrs. Hansen expects to be gone until October 15.

Why delay ordering your Begonia Gloire de Lorraine? You will soon want them sure. We are equipped better than ever to supply excellent stock, 2½-in. pots, twice transplanted, at $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Business for the last two weeks of June held up fairly well. Some few weddings took place and boosted things in that line. In addition, one or two commencements and funeral work helped to make June as good as last year, and a little better with some. Sweet peas are more than plentiful and are selling at any old price; they seem to be overdone this season, as a good many market gardeners are growing them and are selling them for whatever they can get, some even going as low as 7 cents per hundred. However, the hot weather is getting in its work and in a few days they will be a thing of the past.

Carnations are also overabundant and quality is poor. A No. 1 roses are scarce, but seconds are plentiful. Some few Golden Glow mums are coming in, but quality is nothing extra, although fairly good for this time of the year, and they sell fairly well. Green goods are in good supply.

Various Notes.

The Kentucky Society of Florists will give its annual picnic and outing at Stower's Grove, on the Eighteenth street road, July 21. The committee in charge assures a good time to those who attend.

C. M. Quirey has returned from a two weeks' vacation, visiting his home near Morganfield, Ky., and spending a few days in Cincinnati, O. The rest did Mr. Quirey a lot of good and he says he can now take care of the books for Jacob Schulz for another year.

The establishment of Geo. Thompson, on the Taylorville road, was sold at auction last week, and bought by H. Kleinstarink, well known to the trade as a mum grower. Mr. Thompson wishes to settle in Seattle, Wash.

Adam Heitz has finished putting concrete borders throughout his place and will replant his rose house with Brides, Maids, Gates and a few My Marylands.

Wm. Walker has gone to Blue Rock, Ky., to spend a two weeks' vacation.

Jacob Schulz is putting in a new icebox at his store. This will be one of the neatest boxes in town when completed. The sides and front will be of plate glass with mitered corners. It will be finished in white enamel with mirrors at front and sides; the inside will be lined with white tile with three mirrors in the back, and glass shelves will be used, supported by nickel-plated brackets.

STOCK FOR WINTER BLOOMING.

At what date should carnations be planted in the benches for winter blooming? What temperature is required? Will plants in 2-inch pots be sufficient? When should one-year-old roses be benched, for winter blooming? What temperature do they require? Can roses, carnations and geraniums be grown successfully in the same house?

G. W. C.

It is of little consequence on what date you bench your carnation plants from pots, but it is of the greatest importance that the plants be given proper care up to that time, and that they be of normal size and vigor for the date on which they are planted. If your plants are still in 2-inch pots, as your letter indicates, you are about two months behind right now. If your plants are ready for a shift, plant them on the benches at once; or, if the benches are not ready, repot them into at least 3-inch pots and arrange to bench them just as soon as they are ready for another shift. Your prospects for a heavy, early cut of blooms from these plants are slim.

The benching of rose plants for winter bloming is in order now. If the plants are available, the sooner they are benched the better. But do not try to grow roses and carnations in the same house, as you can only expect failure of one or the other. They are not congenial in their requirements. You can grow geraniums with either roses or carnations with good success, because the geranium is less sensitive in regard to temperature, etc.

A. F. J. B.

Mishawaka, Ind.—C. L. Powell, on North Margaret street, had a remarkably heavy trade in bedding plants this season. His stock of geraniums, which he had supposed would be sufficient to meet all demands, was exhausted and he was obliged to buy some thousands of plants. A fine magnolia, in bloom, has been attracting some attention at his place.

Madison, N. J.—Charles H. Totty states that he has given up his idea of going to England this summer—too much to do.

HORTICULTURAL BOOKS

We can supply any of the following books at the prices noted, postpaid, and any other book at publishers' price.

Beautifying Country Homes.
By WEIDENMANN. This is the most useful work on the subject ever issued in this country. It is beautifully illustrated with numerous fine wood engravings, and with 17 full-page and 7 double-page colored lithographs of places already improved. It contains general directions for lawns, roads and drives, walks, hedges, trees and shrubs, gardens, ornamental grounds, hints on burial lots, etc. The beautifully colored plans of improved places are accompanied by descriptions giving the names and position of the various trees and shrubs employed in planting, thus providing a complete planting map. Cloth. $10.00

Handbook of Plants and General Horticulture.
By PETER HENDERSON. This new edition comprises about 50 per cent more genera than the former one, and embraces the botanical name, derivation, natural order, etc., together with a short history of the different genera, concise instructions for their propagation and culture, and all the leading local or common English names, together with a comprehensive glossary of botanical and technical terms. Plain instructions are also given for the cultivation of the principal vegetables, fruits and flowers. Cloth. $3.00

The Nursery Book.
By L. H. BAILEY. A complete guide to the multiplication of plants. The book comprises full practical directions for sowing, the making of all kinds of layers, stools, cuttings, propagation by bulbs and tubers, and very complete accounts of all the leading kinds of budding, grafting and inarching. An alphabetical catalogue of about 1500 plants of fruit, kitchen-garden, ornamental and greenhouse species—with directions for their multiplication. Cloth. $1.25

The History and Culture of Grafted Roses for Forcing.
By ALEX. MONTGOMERY, JR. The most important contribution to the modern literature of the rose. Of much interest to every rose grower and of utmost value to growers of grafted roses. Containing practical description of the process of grafting, with full details of planting and culture; also directions for treatment to carry the plants a second year. 25 cents

Hedges, Windbreaks, Shelters and Live Fences.
By E. P. POWELL. A treatise on the planting, growth and management of hedge plants for country and suburban homes. It gives accurate directions concerning hedges; how to plant and how to treat them; and especially concerning windbreaks and shelters. Cloth. 140 pages. Illustrated. 50 cents

Landscape Gardening.
By SAMUEL PARSONS, JR., ex-Superintendent of Parks, New York city. Practical hints on lawns, the laying out and arrangement of large and small parks, cemetery plots and railway station lawns, also on the subjects suitable for planting. Illustrated. $3.50

Asparagus.
By F. M. HEXAMER. This is the first book published in America which is devoted exclusively to the raising of asparagus for home use as well as for market. It is a practical and reliable treatise. Cloth. 174 pages. Illustrated. 50 cents

The Rose—Its Cultivation, Varieties, etc.
By H. B. ELLWANGER. Directions for cultivation—for planting, pruning, propagation, the treatment of diseases and insect enemies—particularly valuable for its classification. Alphabetical and descriptive list of 956 varieties. Cloth. $1.25

Parsons on the Rose.

Greenhouse Heating.

AN ONTARIO RANGE.

Will you kindly let me know what piping will be required to heat my range of seven houses with steam? The boiler house is in the central part of the range and extends through the entire range from north to south. Abutting on the west side of the boiler house are three greenhouses, each 21x100, running east and west. Of these three houses, the north one is for general stock, the middle one for carnations and the south one for roses. East of the boiler house are three more greenhouses, which also run east and west. The north one of these three is a propagating house, 11x60; the middle one is a fern house, 21x60, and the south one is a vegetable house, 21x60. All of these houses, except the propagating house, are eleven feet high to the ridge, and there are four feet of glass in the south wall. At the east end of the range is one more house, 10x42, running north and south.

At present the two 60-foot greenhouses and some others are heated with hot water, and we have a lot of 2-inch pipe and fittings that we should like to use, if possible, for the flows. We would get some smaller pipe for the returns or coils. What size of pipe would be best for this, 1-inch or 1¼-inch? It will not be necessary to excavate much to set the boiler, so we shall use low pressure gravity. We shall build a round, concrete smokestack. What height and diameter of stack will be needed, in order to have good draft? In this part of Ontario, Can., the temperature may be as low as 28 degrees below zero, but only on rare occasions. Last winter, however, the thermometer registered 15 to 20 degrees below for two weeks. W. S. P.

There will be no objection to using 2-inch pipes as steam flows, and buying 1¼-inch pipe as returns. For houses twenty-one feet wide, with four feet of glass in the south wall, it will require one 2-inch flow and ten 1¼-inch returns to heat rose and fern houses to 60 degrees, while one flow and seven returns will heat carnation and vegetable houses to 50 degrees. In the propagating house use one 2-inch flow and five 1¼-inch returns.

If the entire capacity of the boiler is likely to be needed the chimney should be forty feet high and two feet in diameter, although if eighteen inches in diameter it will heat the houses.

A COMBINATION HEATER.

We are thinking of building a combined furnace and hot water heater. It is of our own designing and, for fear there might be some point about it which would not be satisfactory in operation, we thought we would submit the idea for your criticism. The pipe used for the hot water coils in the heater will be 1½-inch standard black pipe, with branch tees attached. The top of the furnace is to consist of an iron plate surmounted by an iron cap, forming a hot air chamber six inches deep and the entire width of the furnace. From the outside a pipe will convey cold air to this and another pipe will carry it to the sleeping room of the fireman, while still another pipe will draw the cold air from the sleeping room and admit it to the furnace room. From there all heated air will be permitted to rise and pass into the greenhouse, as the furnace room will extend two feet inside the north end of the greenhouse and the top of the furnace room will be two feet higher than the floor of the greenhouse, thus giving free circulation of air down into the furnace room and out into the greenhouse. The air coming in from the outside will tend to keep the air in the sleeping room dry and fresh, thus preventing the usual trouble in sleeping rooms connected with greenhouses, and the fresh air will then pass on into the greenhouse.

Please give us your opinion of the practicability of this plan and state whether it will pay. Also tell us what percentage of the total heat units will be furnished by the hot air from the furnace and what percentage by the water heater. Will it be better to make the walls of brick or of solid cement? What part should be firebrick? What size should the cold air and hot air pipes leading to the hot air chamber be? Any other information or recommendations will be thankfully received.

C. & B.

While a combination heater, as described, might be arranged to heat a living room with hot air, it would not be advisable to use the hot air for heating the greenhouse. The furnace room should also be cut off from the boiler room.

While a coil boiler, such as described and figured, may cost less than a standard greenhouse boiler, it will not be as durable and will be less satisfactory. If hot air is to be carried to the sleeping room, 8-inch flow and return pipes should be used. The hot air combination will lessen the efficiency of the hot water portion of the heater, and will not have more than ten per cent of its efficiency. It will be best to use brick to cover the boiler, and the sides of the firepot for a distance of a foot above the fuel should be of firebrick.

THREE CONNECTED HOUSES.

I should like to get some information with regard to the heating of a small range of greenhouses, here in northwestern Oregon. There are three connected houses, running north and south, with the boiler at the south end of the middle house. House No. 1, the east house, is 16x50, five and a half feet to the eaves and eleven and a half feet to the ridge, with eighteen inches of glass in the east wall. House No. 2, the middle house, is 16x35 and the same height as house No. 1. House No. 3, the west house, is 8x50 and three and a half feet to the eaves, with twelve inches of glass in the west wall. The temperature required is from 55 to 65 degrees. The outside temperature here seldom goes as low as zero.

Please give me some information, also, about the construction of a coil boiler. My present piping and coil are inadequate. F. M. D.

To give a temperature of 65 degrees when the thermometer stands at zero will require for house No. 1 (16x50 feet, with eighteen inches of glass in the east wall) three 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns. In house No. 2 the same number of flows and seven returns would suffice. House No. 3 should have one 2½-inch flow and five 2-inch returns. In the wider houses carry one flow pipe two feet under the ridge and another on each plate. The returns can be distributed under the benches.

As a rule, coil boilers do not last as long as standard greenhouse boilers, and are less satisfactory.

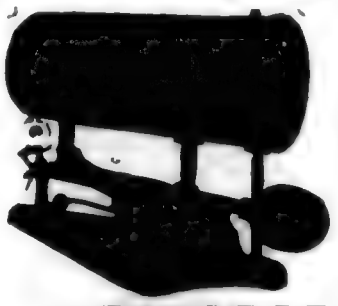
Would You Save One-Quarter of Your Coal Bill?
INSTALL
A Kitts Improved Hydraulic Damper Regulator.

Florist Peter Crowe, Rose Place, Utica, N. Y., voluntarily writes:—

"I am very much pleased to let you know that the Damper Regulator I bought from you last fall is by far the best apparatus for greenhouse purposes. I had my book-keeper compare my coal bill of last with that of this year and I find a saving of one quarter the amount of this year's coal over last year's; also the past winter was a great deal colder and longer than the winter before.

"There is another very good feature about the Damper Regulator, as it keeps a uniform heat in all the houses at all times by putting on and shutting off pipes. And I find that my Roses and Ferns did far better this winter than any winter so far, as the temperature was so uniform at all times.

"My reason for writing you is to let you know, and also to thank you for bringing my attention to the Regulator, and I assure you I cannot speak too highly of this machine."



Are not facts like these worth an investigation?

BUFFALO.

The Market.

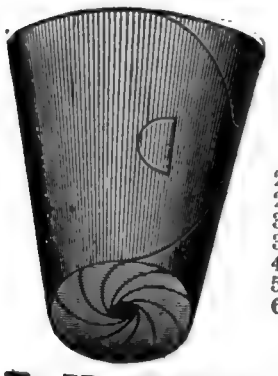
Another busy season has just closed and apparently nearly everybody is well cleaned out, which is a good indication of heavy sales. The season, although retarded by the weather, has stretched out and to a great extent made the heavy work easier. In the store line, business was reported slow at times during the month, but there were several weddings and the usual graduations, which used a lot of flowers. Stock has been plentiful, especially outdoor peas, which flooded the market last week. The stores presented pretty pictures this month, being banked with flowers, which were abundant and low in price.

Various Notes.

Greenhouse men are busy just now preparing and planting mum stock.

The greenhouses of Byrne Bros., situated at Williamsville, have lately been purchased by L. H. Neubeck, of Buffalo. Mr. Neubeck has been badly handicapped by the lack of room at Main and High streets, and this latest addition will enable him to grow the bulk of his plant stock. R. A. S.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.



The retail trade during the last two weeks has been reasonably satisfactory, and an improvement over conditions that prevailed in the early part of June. The supply of flowers has been ample, but no surpluses are reported.

Vick & Hill Co. reports recently filling an order for 25,000 ferns in variety.

James Vick's Sons are putting in nearly forty acres of aster plants for seeds only, as this firm does not handle cut flowers. Visitors at the S. A. F. convention should plan to spend a little time at the aster fields.

Space for the trade exhibit of the S. A. F. has been practically sold, and Supt. C. H. Vick says convention hall ought to be made larger for this exhibit. All lines of florists' and greenhouse supplies will be represented, from a paper of pins to a 20-ton heating apparatus, as well as plants, cut flowers, ribbons, wirework, etc. E. F. R.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

From Tuesday, June 28, till Saturday at midnight, we experienced the hottest weather ever recorded at the local weather bureau, and with it came the falling off of business and the shortening up of receipts. Stock, which up to a short time ago held up fairly well, soon degraded to such an extent that it does not now pay for the trouble of picking, packing, etc. During the last few days in June there were numerous weddings, but from now on funeral work will be the long suit.

Where there is no means of watering, outdoor vegetation is suffering badly for lack of rain; from every direction comes the complaint that outdoor stock will come to naught if the dry spell continues much longer.

Various Notes.

Fred W. Holton and family and their guests, Fred Holton and a son-in-law from Vermont, took to the nearby lakes Wednesday, June 29, and have not been heard from since. It is expected that they will return about July 13.

C. C. Pollworth and family will return about July 9 from their annual fishing trip which they are spending at the northern boundary of this state.

Mr. and Mrs. Aug. F. Kellner spent the first five days of this month at their summer home at Okanchee lake entertaining friends from Chicago.

At the Fox Point Floral Co., out on the Port Washington road, they are busy erecting two new greenhouses to be utilized for pot plants and cut flowers. In bedding stock, they ran short on Jean Viaud geraniums, for which there was a greater demand than ever before. With the exception of a few petunias and coleus, they are completely sold out.

Premium lists for this year's state fair are out and contain the same premiums, on flower beds as last year. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, as a representative of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, is one of the three judges who will make awards September 12.

Wm. Zimmermann, Fifth and Grand avenues, attended the Eagles' convention at Sheboygan, Wis., last week.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has finally slackened down to the midsummer basis and there is little doing now outside of some funeral work and a wedding now and then. Stock has suffered greatly from the extremely hot weather of the last few weeks and roses are exceedingly poor, although there is quite a large supply.

Carnations are still quite plentiful, but quality has fallen down greatly in the last few days, while sweet peas are a glut on the market and there are thousands of them that cannot be moved at any price. Some Augusta gladioli are still to be had of house grown stock and they move fairly well. Valley is rather scarce, but demand is light on them since the bulk of the weddings are over.

Various Notes.

The Columbus exposition, which is being held at the state fair grounds, has created a good demand for decorative plants for booths, etc.

The Florists' Club picnic takes place July 20, at Buckeye Lake, and the indications are that there will be a record-breaking crowd.

Campbell's Patent Sulphur Vaporizer

Best remedy extant for destroying Rose, Vine, Carnation and all other mildews and diseases of plants in greenhouses; also kills Red Spider.

Extract from paper read by John H. Dunlop before a convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association: "Campbell's Sulphur Vaporizer is an English patent and a trifle expensive, but very effective, and eliminates almost all of the danger of ignition. We are using eight of them at present with excellent results."

Electric Hose

(CORRUGATED)

In the last few years our sales to florists have increased faster than the sales of any other hose ever made.

There can be only one reason. Florists don't create such records for any manufactured article unless it is to their advantage to do so.

If you haven't tried Electric Hose, you'd better have some put in the greenhouse. Both economy and increased efficiency will result.

The Market.

Business continues dull. The buyers are listless and seem more or less discouraged, although prices are so low that they ought to be tempted. As soon as strictly summer flowers, with better keeping qualities, arrive plentifully, things are expected to pick up, for retailers will then be more careful to have good displays.

Nearly all the longer roses of good quality sell fairly well, but the prices are low. Beauties are an exception. In these the medium ones sell more readily than the long. White, Enchantress and Rose-pink Enchantress carnations hold up their quality surprisingly well, but are in request only for work, and little at that. The longiflorums, lily of the valley and gladioli are good. Early asters can be had everywhere. Stokesia is now offered. Feverfew and candytuft have accumulated and find a slow market.

The supply of green goods is sufficient to meet all demands. Ferns are longer and harder and consequently keep well. The length of time the southern plumosus is on the road tells on the quality, for when some consignments arrive they are heated and soft.

On Saturday business was almost at a standstill in the Jabez Elliott Flower Market. Many belated geraniums, especially, were offered, but few were sold. Some cuts were, however, disposed of. The usual throngs of visitors, who come to see but not to buy, were not in evidence.

Various Notes.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Society will be held at Gus Adrian's home on Monday, July 11.

L. H. Kyrk is now offering cornflower asters, or stokesia. Mr. Kyrk's sweet peas are excellent.

George & Allan are sending excellent longiflorums to C. E. Critchell's.

Louis Murphy has purchased Ray Murphy's interest in their greenhouses and will run the plant in his own name. Ray will now assist his father, William Murphy, at the wholesale store. The Murphy family held their annual reunion and celebrated William Murphy's birthday anniversary at St. Joseph, on the Ohio river.

William Gardner came down last Saturday evening to take his wife and baby with him to New Castle. They will make their home there, in the resi-

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

dence on Weiland & Olinger's greenhouse place.

Arthur Becker, of the Avondale Floral Co., and Arthur Landherr will leave for an extended trip through the far west July 8. They will visit Mr. Becker's brother in Los Angeles, call at the Pacific seaboard cities, and finally come through the northern part of the United States to Chicago, where they will spend a short time with a cousin.

R. Witterstaetter has finished his agricultural pursuits and is now planting his mum section.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett have planned to leave for Traverse City July 16, to spend a few weeks.

Charles Brunner is the latest addition, among the local florists, to the ranks of auto enthusiasts. He has purchased a Buick.

Miss Cora Pherson, at William Murphy's, has returned from her trip to New Orleans. She says the weather there is cooler and more pleasant than it is here. While in the Gulf coast metropolis she called on the trade.

A card from Miss Ada Kresken states that she is now in Strausberg. She is delighted with the picturesque German cities and villages.

G. F. Moore, of Rushville, Ind., was a recent visitor.

Remember the florists' outing and picnic at the Country Club, Carthage, July 23. C. H. H.

Belle Plaine, Ia.—Mrs. S. Woodruff, proprietor of the Belle Plaine Greenhouses, began her career as a florist two years ago by building a small greenhouse, which at first was intended for pleasure more than for profit. The business grew, however, to such an extent that she is now building a greenhouse more than five times as large as the first one. The new house is modern in every way.

The Market.

Business is beginning to show the summer attitude. The last Wednesday of June brought forth the usual number of weddings, but large decorations were missing. There was considerable funeral work in the first part of the week, but absolutely "nothing doing" since. Notwithstanding the dullness in the market, prices hold their own.

At the present time there is no commission house in Indianapolis, all flowers being shipped from Chicago, New Castle or Cincinnati. I believe there is a chance for a good, live man to step in here and make good with a commission house. Indianapolis is a good railroad center, better even than Cincinnati, and no trouble should be experienced in shipping facilities.

Various Notes.

The north side florists are planning a picnic for next month.

Clarence Thomas, with Bertermann Bros., has gone to the lakes for two weeks' vacation.

John Heidenreich is the possessor of two pleasure autos. Most of us are tickled to death to have one.

John A. Rieman has moved to his summer home, north of Broad Ripple.

The flower show committee is rapidly shaping things for the coming show. The premium list was mailed last week. Anyone who has not received a copy can obtain one from Secretary Baur. The finance committee reports many substantial subscriptions. The outlook is for a successful show.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wiegand are going to motor to the Elks' convention at Detroit next week.

Last week Bertermann Bros., John A. Rieman and Alfred Brandt were the victims of some would-be joker. They each had an order for a bride's bouquet for the same person, who, as they found on delivery of the flowers, was not to be married and did not know anything about the flowers.

E. A. Nelson has about fifty loads of leaf-mold, the result of a collection of leaves which he has had piled up in his back lot for about five years.

The Roepke & Rieman Co. experienced considerable trouble with their water plant during the recent dry spell. Their pump was out of order, and they were without water for several days.

Harry Jones, with the Jones-Russell Co., of Cleveland, O., spent several days with George Wiegand this week.

Meyer Heller was in the city last week, coming over on the new Interurban line with a party of New Castle boosters. H. L. W.

A House 72 Feet Wide

A couple of weeks ago we showed you a house 60 feet wide having but two columns, and now, true to our promise made then, here is a "72 footer" with only four columns. Two of these are of angle iron, joined back to back, making a support that is much lighter in appearance than a pipe column its equal in strength. The side columns are 2-inch pipe.

The steel truss stiffens the long span of the frame between the angle iron columns. No network of trussing, however, is necessary between the iron rafters.

The side posts are Guaranteed Wrought Bar Iron, which are bolted to the iron rafters at the eaves by a double gusset plate.

There are twelve four-foot benches.

If it is a wide house you want, give its construction the very careful consideration it deserves. The proper supporting of these wide roof spans demands a skillful greenhouse engineering knowledge combined with long building experience. Let's get together and talk these matters over.

JUST PUBLISHED

Circular "C," which is a brief, common sense talk to common sense men, about Wide Houses and the safe way of supporting their roofs. It explains the difference between a tension and a compression truss.

Although this Circular "C" shows a section of a house 56 feet wide, still it is very easy to increase it in width by this method of construction, without in any way weakening the structure. For instance, by adding one more column, the house could be increased to 72 feet in width.

Right now there is so much discussion about the practicability and safety of these extra wide houses, that Circular "C" is just the thing you want. Drop us a postal for it.

How to Save Money

No. 3

WHEN building a greenhouse use only first-class material. Money is more often saved by paying a high price than when you pay a low price. There are different grades in greenhouse material the same as in shoes, clothes, meats and automobiles. One dozen eggs at 15 cents may be ten years old and rotten; another dozen at 30 cents may be good and fresh. On the 15 cent dozen you lose all you pay; on the 30 cent dozen you get your money's worth, and what is more you don't feel like the fellow who bought a gold brick and his wife found it out—but we'll tell you that story another time.

Carnations

RED SPIDER ON CARNATIONS.

Please inform me as to what will keep red spider off carnations.

T. H. J.

Usually the only thing needed to keep down red spider is a good strong spray of clear water, applied with all the pressure at hand. In case they get the upper hand, more drastic measures must be resorted to. Of these, perhaps the best is a weak solution of brine, sprayed on the plants with a fine nozzle. Use about a 2-inch potful of common table salt to three gallons of water. This will not injure the most tender growth and will at the same time destroy the spider with a few applications. Put it on in the early morning, and later wash it off by syringing the plants with clear water, shooting it against the plants as hard as you can. Repeat this every other day, as often as may seem necessary to clean off the plants.

In the field the pest is not so easy to handle. You can apply the brine early in the morning, but it is not so easy to wash it off, if you have a large patch to go over. In the absence of rain you must resort to the hose, regardless of the work it may entail.

Some growers use a soap solution, but I prefer the brine. We have found it more effective, and less liable to injure the growth when tender.

A. F. J. B.

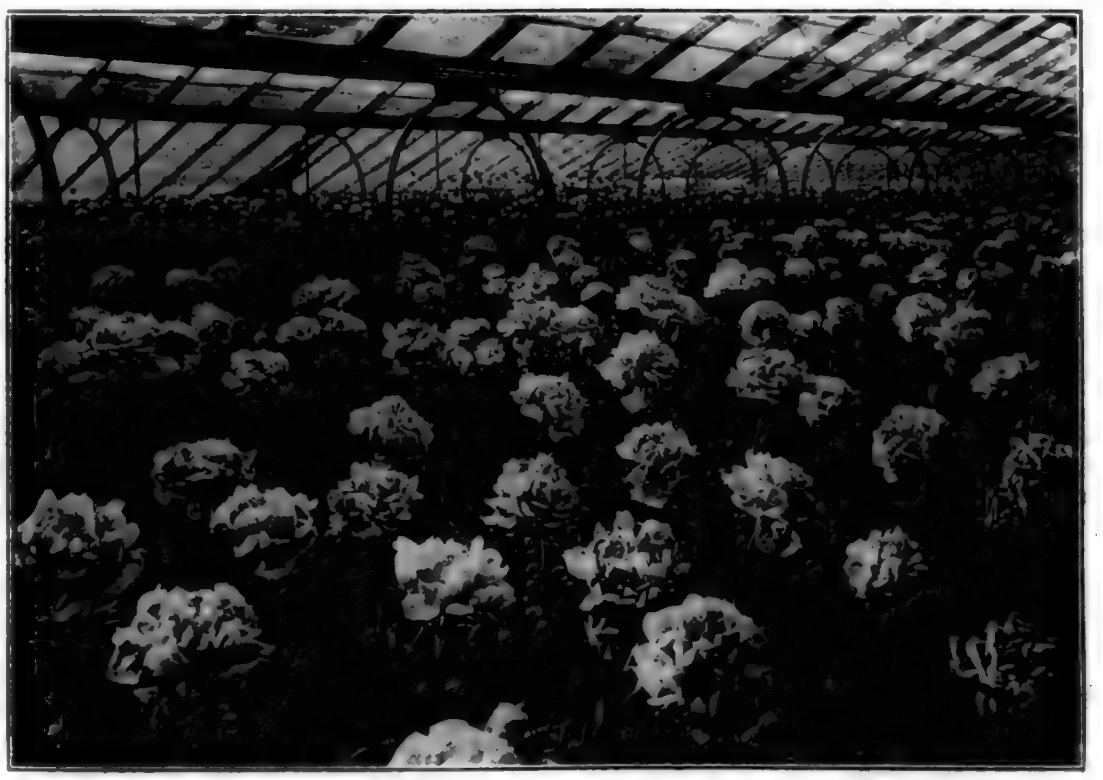
SOME ENGLISH MALMAISONS.

Carnations with stems five feet long and blooms seven inches across, with the plants selling at $2.50 each, are reported by Montagu C. Allwood—but they are Malmaison carnations, which thrive exceedingly well in England, but will not do so here. Mr. Allwood is widely known as a carnation specialist. He is in the employ of Stuart Low & Co., a corner of whose block of Malmaison houses is shown in the accompanying illustration.

"In sending the photograph," says Mr. Allwood, "I do not do so because this section of the large family of dianthus has any particular interest to our American friends, seeing it has been proved beyond doubt that your climate in summer is far too hot for the plant and thus they have no commercial value in America, but because I think that we, who are so deeply interested in the perpetual or American carnation and its future developments, can at least obtain some food for reflection from the Malmaison. For instance, in this section there are several shades of color with a commercial value, which we have not at present in the perpetual carnation. This, in itself, should be an inspiration to the raisers.

"In the foreground of the photograph is one of our new seedling Malmaisons, Irene. The flowers of this average six and one-half inches across, and quite fifty per cent have sound calyxes. Of course, Malmaisons only bloom in the spring and summer of the year and are looked upon by all as a dying plant; yet I venture to think that to obtain this size in one section of the family proves, to a certain degree, the possibilities which lie within the other. Not that I think it would enhance the beauty or value of the perpetual carnation to be so abnormally developed, yet perhaps it is a glimpse into the future, for good or for ill.

"In the background of the photograph can be seen some Malmaisons with very long stems. These average five feet in length and are perfectly rigid. We have cut flowers measuring over seven inches across, with perfectly sound calyxes. In fact, this variety never splits, and when we first sent it out we sold the young plants at 10 shillings ($2.50) each. This looks like knocking the Beauty growers for length of stem, and the orchid growers for price."



PINCHING WARD CARNATIONS.

I should be glad if the editor or any reader of The Review would give us a little advice regarding pinching plants of Alma Ward and Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations. We have a fine batch of some that never have been stopped at all as yet. What results may we expect? Is this latter a good method of growing these varieties? S. J.

Both Alma Ward and Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations will stand considerable pinching. We always plan, however, to have our plants in shape so that they will not have to be topped after August 15. S. J. would have got better results had he topped his plants in the earlier stages of their growth.

Cottage Gardens Co., Inc.

Helena, Mont.—The newly-formed Helena Flower Show Association will hold its first exhibition August 25 and 26. There is a great deal of interest displayed in all the branches of horticulture in Montana, particularly on the part of the ladies, and the show promises to be a great success. There has been no lack of contributors to the prize fund and the State Nursery Co. has furnished cash prizes for three of the contests.

We have cut flowers measuring over seven inches across, with perfectly sound calyxes. In fact, this variety never splits, and when we first sent it out we sold the young plants at 10 shillings ($2.50) each. This looks like knocking the Beauty growers for length of stem, and the orchid growers for price."

PINCHING WARD CARNATIONS.

I should be glad if the editor or any reader of The Review would give us a little advice regarding pinching plants of Alma Ward and Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations. We have a fine batch of some that never have been stopped at all as yet. What results may we expect? Is this latter a good method of growing these varieties? S. J.

Both Alma Ward and Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations will stand considerable pinching. We always plan, however, to have our plants in shape so that they will not have to be topped after August 15. S. J. would have got better results had he topped his plants in the earlier stages of their growth.

Cottage Gardens Co., Inc.

Helena, Mont.—The newly-formed Helena Flower Show Association will hold its first exhibition August 25 and 26. There is a great deal of interest displayed in all the branches of horticulture in Montana, particularly on the part of the ladies, and the show promises to be a great success. There has been no lack of contributors to the prize fund and the State Nursery Co. has furnished cash prizes for three of the contests.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

COST OF AUTO DELIVERY.

In these days, when the use of automobiles for delivery is becoming more and more common in the trade, it may be inferred that columns of figures, representing the prices of machines and the cost of running them, are more interesting to many florists than love stories are to the sentimental youth or the baseball scores to the lover of manly sports. Opinions as to the cost of this sort of delivery vary considerably, of course, for the differences in the machines, methods, circumstances and conditions all have their effect on the expense account.

H. F. Littlefield, of Worcester, Mass., recently became the owner of an automobile, a photograph of which is here reproduced. This machine was made by the Autocar Co., of Ardmore, Pa. Mr. Littlefield makes the following statement with reference to the cost of running it:

"We have not yet had it long enough to give accurate information, but our estimate for a year is: Driver and boy, $1,200; gasoline, $250; tires, $500; depreciation, $750; repairs, $100; interest on cost, $110; liability insurance, $50; fire insurance, $40; estimated total cost of running one year, $3,000.

"The capacity of the machine is one ton; its speed, twenty-five miles an hour. It will do the work of three teams, as we have a large and scattered delivery. We find it very convenient."

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, is also using an autocar of the same make and the same capacity as Mr. Littlefield's. A picture of the Pennock-Meehan car, with a brief description of its equipments, appeared in The Review of February 24, page 14.

AIR PLANT OR SEA MOSS.

What is the nature of the so-called air plants that are so popular at the present time? Is there a real air plant that can be easily propagated? A. A.

The air plant sold so largely by retail florists is frequently called sea moss, which is a better descriptive name, though the other is in line with the popular belief that the "plants" in the little baskets thrive on air. The moss comes originally from Japan, but it goes first to Germany, where it is prepared for market by dyeing and treating with a glycerine preparation to perpetuate it—in reality to keep the air away.

THE COOK STORE.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph of the illuminated store front of R. C. Cook, 120 Fourth street, Portland, Ore., and shows Mr. Cook sitting at his doorway. His is of the class of flower store which is multiplying most rapidly, and which is becoming a steadily increasing factor in the distribution of the cut flowers grown for city markets.

EXPRESS CO. RESPONSIBLE.

The writer does business as a wholesale commission dealer in a perishable commodity. A considerable shipping business is done and, in common with other houses in the same line, effort is made to avoid loss by attaching to all shipments a label stating the nature of the contents and the following "Notice to express companies: Should consignee refuse to accept shipment or fail to pay c. o. d., notify us at once by wire at our expense, stating reason why undelivered, or if amount is less than $4 sell to best advantage." A certain c. o. d. shipment went out on the 11 a. m. train on a Saturday to a city eighty miles distant in another state. On arrival the consignee was not prepared to pay c. o. d. Apparently the express agent, either as a matter of accommodation to the consignee or otherwise, made subsequent unsuccessful attempts to deliver and collect. At any rate, telegraph notice of the failure of the consignee to take up the consignment was not sent until Sunday, reaching us at about noon. This, of course, was equivalent to Monday so far as concerns the ability to release the c. o. d. or turn the shipment over to some other customer in that city to be sold for our account. The stock spoiled; the loss was total. Now the question at issue is as to whether the express company is liable. We claim that the "at once" in our notice means just what it says, and that it does not mean sometime the next day, even were the next day a full business day for the express company and ourselves. Have the courts decided what "at once" means? Have we a valid claim? K. B. C

The courts have had frequent occasion to decide as to the meaning of "at once." They hold that it is not to be construed with absolute literalness, because it is impossible for a man to act literally at once or instantaneously upon the happening of any event in his business life. Accordingly, such terms as "forthwith," "immediately," "as soon as possible" and "at once" (all of which are held to be practically synonymous) are construed with reference to the special occasion. The words mean, as the courts hold, that action is to be taken without unreasonable delay, all the circumstances of the case being considered. When perishable goods are sent out and the carrier undertakes, as in this case, to notify the shipper "at once" of the consignee's refusal to accept the goods, the carrier's agent certainly has not time to make "subsequent unsuccessful attempts to deliver" before sending the notice. An act is not done at once if other unnecessary acts are allowed to intervene. The correspondent is entitled to recover his loss of the express company. See 40 N. Y. Suppl., 8; 101 Ill., 621, and cases cited in the course of these decisions.—Journal of Commerce.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The schedule of prizes and entry blank for the Rochester exhibition are now ready to mail, and anyone interested that does not receive them, may obtain them by applying to the secretary, L. Merton Gage, Orange, Mass., before August 12. Geo. B. Hart, the Rochester florist, has offered a silver cup for the exhibit containing the largest number of standard named varieties.

When it is desired that exhibits be staged by the society, notice should be sent as early as possible to the corresponding secretary. Exhibits sent by express should be addressed to American Gladiolus Society, Convention Hall, Rochester, N. Y.

THE JULY CROP REPORT.

The general average condition of crop growth in the United States July 1, 1910, was about 5.5 per cent lower than July 1, 1909, 3.8 per cent lower than July 1, 1908, and 3.4 per cent lower than the 10-year average condition July 1. In the New England states conditions are 3.5 per cent better than a year ago and 4.1 per cent above the average. In the Southern states conditions are about 3.5 per cent better than July 1 a year ago and 2.4 above the 10-year average; in the North Central states, east of the Mississippi river, conditions are 8.7 per cent below a year ago and 4 per cent below the average; in the North Central states west of the Mississippi river, 15 per cent lower than a year ago and 12.2 per cent below the average; in the far western states, 3.6 per cent below a year ago and 4.3 per cent below the average.

The following tabulation is a summary for the United States of crop conditions July 1, with comparisons, as estimated by the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture:

CHINESE RED TUBEROSES.

In regard to the allegation, published in the United States some time since, that at Tientsin, China, tuberoses are grown of a red color, and perhaps of other shades, Consul-General Samuel S. Knabenshue makes the following report:

"Some time since, this consulate received a letter from a florist in the United States, inclosing a sum of money with the request that he be furnished with its value in red tuberose bulbs. He stated that he had been informed by a gentleman who had traveled in China that he had seen red tuberoses grown in Tientsin.

"Inquiry was made of a German florist here, a resident for many years, who stated that there is no natural red tuberose, but that the flowers are artificially colored. As the tuberose of the ordinary white variety is near flowering, the flower stalks are cut off close to the ground and are placed in water in which is dissolved a red earth, of whose composition he is ignorant. The coloring matter is drawn up into the flowers, tinting them red—the first that appear being very slightly tinged, but the color becoming more pronounced in those which open later. He also stated that the red color can be produced in this way by using aniline colors, not only red, but any other aniline color which may be desired. Native gardeners, however, insisted that natural red tuberoses were grown, but declined to sell bulbs of the alleged red variety with a guarantee that the bulbs would produce red flowers, the payment to be withheld until the bulbs were tested.

"Finally a native gardener admitted that these are bulbs of the ordinary white tuberose, reared in ordinary flower pots, in this way: The opening in the bottom of the pot is closed with a cork; the pot is filled with earth mixed to a mud with water in which the coloring matter has been dissolved; the bulbs are planted in this after a number of small incisions have been made in the lower half of the bulb above the roots; a thin covering of uncolored earth is placed over the earth in the pot to conceal the colored portion below; and the plant is supplied with water in which the coloring matter has been dissolved. The resulting flowers have the tint of the coloring matter used."

The courts have had frequent occasion to decide as to the meaning of "at once." They hold that it is not to be construed with absolute literalness, because it is impossible for a man to act literally at once or instantaneously upon the happening of any event in his business life. CHINESE RED TUBEROSES.

In regard to the allegation, published in the United States some time since, that at Tientsin, China, tuberoses are grown of a red color, and perhaps of other shades, Consul-General Samuel S. Knabenshue makes the following report:

NATIONAL SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The Second Annual Exhibition.

The National Sweet Pea Society of America held its second annual exhibition and convention at St. Nicholas rink, New York city, July 12 and 13. Considering the extreme heat of the last few days and the forwardness of the season, the exhibition was an excellent one and marked a distinct advance over the initial show of last year. Secretary Harry Bunyard, with Arthur T. Boddington, had worked indefatigably and had gathered together a large list of special premiums, which called out an excellent display of flowers. The rink was handsomely decorated with evergreens and bay trees by the A. T. Bunyard Co. There was a large attendance, particularly of seedsmen's representatives and private gardeners. The staging of the exhibition was in charge of H. A. Bunyard, A. Herrington and William Duckham. The general opinion was that a date in June should be chosen for next year. The awards were:

Twenty-five vases of sweet peas in twenty-five varieties, Mrs. J. D. Layng, David Francis gardener, the Turner cup.

Finest and largest collection of sweet peas, Howard Gould, Harry Turner gardener, first, the Burpee cup.

Vase of waved or Spencer type sweet peas, introduced in 1910, Morton F. Plant, Thomas Head gardener, first; Hon. Seth Low, second, the Burpee prizes.

Collection of sweet peas, twenty-five varieties, not less than twenty-five stems to a vase, Hon. Seth Low, first; Howard Gould, second; S. Untermyer, William Barth gardener, third, the Boddington prizes.

Twenty spikes of Rawson's Snowflake, Morton F. Plant, first, Rawson's silver medal.

Three vases of white, lavender and pink sweet peas, open to amateurs only, Mrs. John D. Wing, first, Rawson's bronze medal.

Twenty-one vases of sweet peas, Mrs. J. D. Layng, first; Hon. Seth Low, second, the Dreer prizes.

Vase of white sweet peas, R. & H. Scoville, first; S. Untermyer, second; Mrs. C. D. McDougall, third, the Rice Seed Co.'s prizes.

Collection of twenty-five varieties of sweet peas, including not less than six of the Spencer type, open to amateurs, Mrs. J. D. Wing, first, the Henderson & Co.'s prize.

One vase each of Frank Dolby, White Spencer and Mrs. Alfred Watkins, Hon. Seth Low, first, the Michell Co.'s prize.

Collection of sweet peas, open to the trade only, Arthur T. Boddington, first, the C. C. Morse & Co.'s prize.

Vase of Nora Unwin, Frank Dolby, Mrs. A. Watkins, A. J. Cook and E. J. Castle, Morton F. Plant, first, the Watkins & Simpson prize.

Three vases of sweet peas, Spencer type, R. & H. Scoville, first; Morton F. Plant, second; Hon. Seth Low, third, the Stumpp & Walter prizes.

Vase of pink sweet peas, one variety only, Morton F. Plant, first; Mrs. J. D. Layng, second; S. M. Goldsmith, third, the Thorburn Co.'s prizes.

Vase of white sweet peas, one variety only, R. & H. Scoville, first; Morton F. Plant, second; Mrs. C. D. McDougall, third, the John Lewis Childs prizes.

Table of sweet peas, Col. F. Mason, first, the Sutton & Sons' prize.

Twelve vases of sweet peas, in twelve varieties, Morton F. Plant, first; Mrs. John McGee, second, the F. R. Pierson prizes.

Collection of sweet peas, open to the florists only, Winkler Bros., first, the Aphine Mfg. Co.'s prize.

Ten vases of Spencer and Unwin types, in ten varieties, Hon. Seth Low, first, the Zvolanek prize.

Vase of sweet peas never before exhibited, R. & H. Scoville, second, the John Young prize.

Vase of Countess Spencer, Morton F. Plant, first; R. & H. Scoville, second, the Florists' Exchange prizes.

Bunch of mixed sweet peas, R. & H. Scoville, first, the A. L. Miller prize.

Vase of crimson or scarlet sweet peas, in one variety only, Morton F. Plant, first; R. & H. Scoville, second; Hon. Seth Low, third, the Mrs. Lea McIlvaine Luquer prizes.

Vase of lavender sweet peas, in one variety only, Morton F. Plant, first; Hon. Seth Low, second; Mrs. C. D. McDougall, third, the F. H. Traendly prizes.

Vase of blue sweet peas, in one variety only, R. & H. Scoville, first; S. M. Goldsmith, second; Morton F. Plant, third, the Burnett Bros.' prizes.

Vase of vari-colored sweet peas, Hon. Seth Low, first; Morton F. Plant, second; R. & H. Scoville, third, the Harry A. Bunyard prizes.

There were a number of special exhibits. The Julius Roehrs Co. made a fine showing of cut orchid blooms and of orchid plants in flower, receiving a certificate of merit. Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, sent a fine assortment of aquatics, in charge of Messrs. Hay and Clark, receiving a certificate of merit. Joseph Manda staged an assortment of cut orchid blooms, receiving a certificate. John Lewis Childs showed cut blooms of dahlias, summer flowering bulbs, callas, etc., receiving a certificate of merit.

Arthur T. Boddington made a large display of sweet peas, not for competition, and from the trial grounds at Cornell came a large collection of blooms.

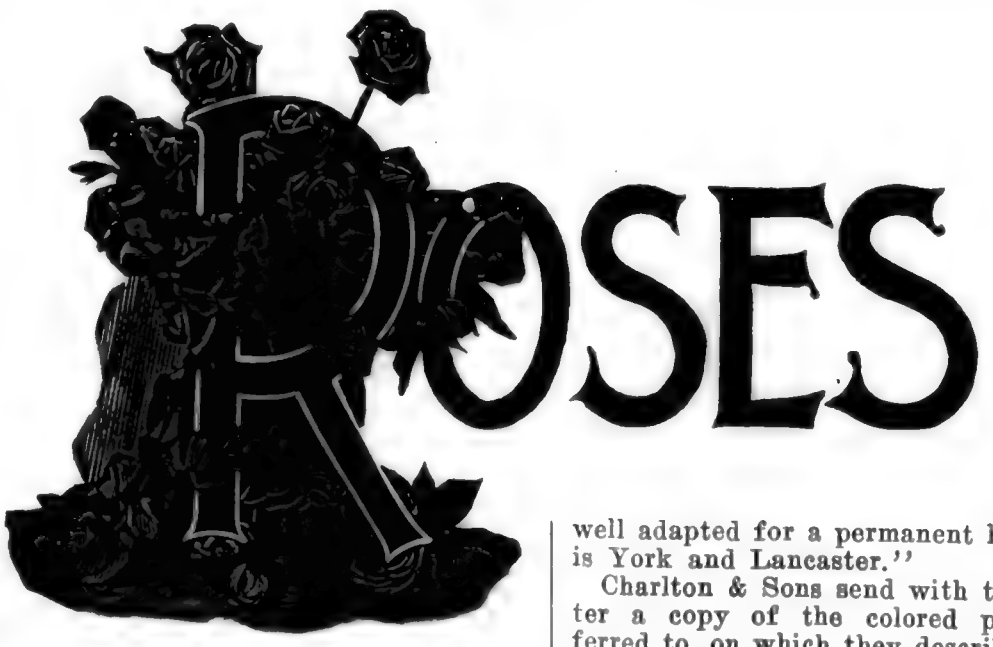
Business Meeting.

The program of the meeting as outlined included papers by President Harry Turner, report by Secretary Bunyard, reports by Prof. John Craig and by Prof. A. C. Beal on the trials of sweet peas at Cornell, essays by W. T. Hutchins, W. C. Kerr, A. C. Zvolanek and others.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia.

Vice-president—William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass.



Treasurer—Arthur T. Boddington, New York.

Secretary—Harry A. Bunyard, New York.

Members Executive Committee—Harry Turner, J. K. M. L. Farquhar.

It was voted to hold the next meeting and exhibition at the National Flower Show, Boston, March, 1911, the date of the summer meeting to be then decided.

YORK AND LANCASTER.

John Charlton & Sons, Rochester, N. Y., referring to a note on the York and Lancaster rose in The Review of June 23, ask that the statement of the correspondent to the effect that this rose "is not grown or sold any more in this country" be not taken too literally. They say: "Dingee & Conard have repeatedly catalogued it, as have Conard & Jones. We got up a photo-engraving and also a colored plate of it several years ago and have continued to grow it since, and expect to continue to do so. It is very hardy and never is destroyed by winter weather. Our Mr. J. M. Charlton has a blooming hedge of it which absolutely takes care of itself, requiring but little attention, and it is a source of great delight when in flower. We know of no variety so well adapted for a permanent hedge as is York and Lancaster."

Charlton & Sons send with their letter a copy of the colored plate referred to, on which they describe York and Lancaster as "a most remarkable variety and the scarcest desirable rose in this country. It is, as we have proved it, entirely hardy and is a very free bloomer. It is of the Damask class, which is noted for fragrance and beauty. Color white, striped, splashed and dashed with crimson purple. A marvelous and an elegant variety. To be recommended."

PRUNING HARDY ROSES.

A man here, who said he understood trimming, cut practically all of last year's growth off the roses on the lawn and there are only a few scattering roses on any of the larger bushes. Is this because of the way they were trimmed? The small bushes, which he did not cut back so much, have plenty

FLOWERING TIME OF CATTLEYA.

When is the blooming season for Cattleya Trianæ? W. B.

Cattleya Trianæ flowers from January until the end of March, occasionally as early as Christmas and as late as the middle of April. On newly imported plants a crop is often to be had in June and July and a number of these are now in flower. C. W.

THE CATTLEYA FLY.

Can you supply me with the exact life history of the cattleya fly and state the best means of destroying it? H. B. A.

The cattleya fly, Isosoma orchidearum, lays its eggs in the eyes of the young growths of cattleyas, lælias and some epidendrums, as well as the bigeneric hybrids between these genera, when the plants are dormant, causing the growths to become stunted and much swollen. Such growths, when cut open, will be found to contain four to seven yellowish maggots. These, if left, soon eat out a considerable cavity, turn into pupæ and later into perfect flies, which emerge and continue the work of destruction. Some growers, not knowing the pest, flatter themselves on the fat, chunky growths their plants are making, discovering too late the terrible pest they have failed to destroy. Sometimes, if there has been delay in cutting out the growths, the perfect flies themselves will be discovered.

The best, but at the same time most radical, remedy is to cut out the young growths directly after they appear swollen, and burn them. It seems cruel to go over a batch of plants and cut off quarts daily in this way, but if it is not done the plants might as well be destroyed. Early spring is the time when the pest is mostly in evidence and, in order to destroy any flies on the wing, fumigation with Nicoticide or some other strong nicotine extract twice a week should be resorted to. Sticky fly papers, stood here and there, will catch some. Hypodermic injections have been tried, but availed little. Roots, in addition to growths, are occasionally attacked, a warty growth resulting.

C. labiata is the variety this fly usually comes on and a close inspection should be made of all new stock. All the labiata section, however, are liable to be attacked. Long bulbed varieties, such as Harrisoniæ, Bowringeana and intermedia, and such lælias as elegans, purpurata, anceps and autumnalis I have had no fly on, although they are sometimes attacked.

In fumigating I would not advise the use of hydrocyanic acid gas on cattleyas or any other orchids, as it will cause far more damage than the insects themselves. I have in mind one or two fine lots of cattleyas almost entirely ruined by it, though a moderate dose only was given, which would not have injured roses, carnations, violets or sweet peas. W. N. C.

GERMINATION OF COCOS SEED.

Will you kindly inform me how to germinate successfully seeds of Cocos plumosa and other species having seeds of a like nature? I have had a quantity of them planted for nearly a year in flats three inches deep and covered with glass. I have kept them in a warm, sunny greenhouse, but so far none of them have shown any symptoms of germinating. C. L. W.

It is not unusual for Cocos plumosa seeds to occupy several months in germinating, but it would be impossible to say positively, without an examination, whether the seeds in question are still good.

In brief, the best method to use with these seeds is the same as is used for palm seeds in general; namely, to plant them in ordinary potting soil, in either flats, pans or the open bench, using a depth of three to four inches of soil and covering the seeds to a depth of from half an inch to one inch, according to the size of the seeds. Then place in a warm greenhouse, though not exposed to the full sun, and keep the soil moist but not sodden. A night temperature of 65 to 70 degrees should be maintained for the germination of these seeds. W. H. T.

PHLOX TURNING YELLOW.

Will you tell me why hardy phlox turn yellow and then seem to rot off at the roots? They were planted outdoors and have received the same treatment as other bedding plants, but I have lost half the row from this rot. A. F. C.

Attacks of red spider often cause phlox to turn yellow. This is a hard pest to fight. Force of water, well directed through an upright spray nozzle, which can be held below the foliage, is about the only remedy. It is possible this may not be the trouble, however, with your plants. Too deep planting will cause the stems to rot off, while planting in soil containing too much nitrogenous manure will also cause them to die. Sometimes borers get into the stems. They are hard to locate, and if present the best plan is to cut off and burn the stems. Larvæ at the roots, especially those of the May beetle, are occasionally responsible for this yellowing of the shoots. C. W.

FORMULA FOR PUTTY.

A subscriber asks, on page 9 of the July 7 issue of The Review, how to make liquid putty. I make my own, of whiting, linseed oil and Japan drier, and find it equal to the "ready-for-use" kinds, and the cost is less.

Sift best whiting (thoroughly dried) into the oil through a household flour sifter, or other sieve, and stir until stiff enough to stay on the bars without running. The amount of each depends on the temperature; better make it a little too stiff, for the Japan drier will thin it some. This makes a skin on the surface and should be added when the putty is to be used—quantity about one teaspoonful to each pint, or perhaps less, according to the quality of the drier and conditions of the weather; stir at once and use soon. W. E. P.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DYING.

I am sending under separate cover two geranium leaves for your inspection. The plants from which these were taken have been on a shelf near the top of a back wall of a lean-to house and until a few days ago seemed perfectly healthy. Now I notice a great many of the leaves turning like the samples sent. I have had carnations on a lower bench and have been troubled with red spider. I think this is probably one reason for the leaves dying, but should like to have your opinion and advice in the matter. Kindly tell me the best thing to do for them. I have picked off all the badly affected leaves and removed the plants to a regular bench. The plants were rather close together on the shelf. Would that cause the trouble? F. W. D.

The leaves forwarded showed unmistakable signs of red spider. They have been growing in too hot and dry a position. You did right in removing them to a bench. Pick off all badly affected foliage. Spread the plants out well. Use the hose freely among them and they will soon improve. Unless you are growing these plants for winter flowering, it would be your best plan to plant them outdoors, where they would make decidedly better growth and more cuttings than if kept in pots. C. W.

BEGONIA CORALLINA LUCERNE.

That Begonia Corallina Lucerne is a plant of exceptional value to the trade is the opinion formed by William Bierstadt & Son, Springfield, Ill., as the result of a rather extended experience with the variety. So well do they think of it that they have worked up what they believe to be the largest stock of this variety anywhere in the world, feeling sure that as soon as it becomes well known it will have a large and constant sale.

The character of Begonia Corallina Lucerne is well shown in the accompanying illustration, which is from a plant grown by Bierstadt & Son. The specimen is in a 12-inch pot and stands five feet high from the top of the pot, the diameter of the plant being some four feet. This specimen has ten clusters of fully developed flowers, with numerous other clusters in different stages of development. Each cluster is composed of from fifty to seventy individual flowers, coral red in color. The leaves are olive green spotted with silver, and bright red beneath. It blooms continuously and freely from April to November, even small plants producing large clusters of bloom.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Seasonable Repairs.

Carnations and roses are now being thrown out and replanting is already well under way. Even at the hottest time of the year, the florist always finds plenty to do. There will be lots of bench building or repairing. With the increased use of cement, this latter will be less and less a factor each year. Indoor painting may be a necessity. It is hot work these torrid days, but cloths can be laid over the roof to make it more tolerable for the workmen. In winter, when some inside painting might be done, crops are in the way and the woodwork is moist from frost or condensation half the time. Summer, therefore, is the only time we can really do it satisfactorily. Repairing ventilators may be necessary. Do it now and, by the way, be sure that they are kept well oiled and greased, so that they will run easily. This is particularly necessary in houses where the ventilators are not self-oiling and up-to-date. It makes hard work for the employees when they are allowed to become dry.

If you have not before found time to do it, clean up around the houses well. Do not leave any empty pots or flats lying around. Get rid of any scattering bedding plants, which no one will want now. Get rid of the weeds. Keep the lawns mowed and the grass edges trimmed. All this may not bring you in any money right away, but it will tell later. The majority of customers love neatness and prefer to patronize a well-kept establishment to one where they are perpetually dodging weeds, stones, loam heaps and sundry receptacles. Yes, it pays to be neat both in the greenhouses and outside, and the most prosperous florists, you will note, are always those who follow these principles.

Outdoor Work.

While houses are being emptied and refilled, it may be well during the hottest hours of the day to call a brief halt on this work and give needed attention to outdoor operations. No matter how hot and dry the weather, weeds will grow apace. Hand or horse cultivation will take care of many of these, but not all. The hand hoe and weeder must be used among the plants not less than once in two weeks to keep them clean. The big weeds will need pulling by hand; smaller ones the hoe will account for. It is not possible to cultivate the ground too much these hot days. The more the soil is stirred, the better will the plants thrive, and especially necessary is it to get over the soil after heavy rains, which bake the surface.

Water the sweet peas if you would prolong their season in dry weather, and if you have them well mulched, as previously advised, they will stand a severe drought remarkably well. Be sure, however, to keep all seed pods removed.

You may want to sow some seeds from your best delphiniums, foxgloves, lupines or other hardy plants. Sow the seeds at once and you will get nice plants before fall. Any seed pods not needed should be removed. In the case of delphiniums, this will insure a good second crop late in August.

Unless your Japanese irises are in moist ground, water them well to improve the flowers and prolong the blooming season.

Early asters are starting to flower. The black beetle attacks are generally worst in August. The best remedy is to spray with Paris green, an ounce to twelve gallons of water. This will not hurt the plants or discolor the flowers, but it will settle the beetles.

Rose beetles are troublesome at this season. To protect roses, especially the white ones, a good plan is to use a few of the early flowering Hydrangea arborescens. The beetles will attack these and spare the roses.

Hydrangea Arborescens.

Every florist should plant some of the hardy early and perpetual blooming Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora. There have been several more Latin names tacked on by botanical experts, but the foregoing is sufficiently long for any ordinary grower. This hydrangea does not winter-kill. It flowers from June until frost. The flowers are pure white, excellent on the plant, for use in vases on long stems or in floral designs. The plant propagates readily from soft-wood cuttings and we have five-year-old plants now carrying seventy-five to eighty-five heads of bloom in the open. Some of these are nine to ten inches in diameter. Where white flowers are wanted in summer, this is simply an invaluable shrub to grow. It will transplant readily in either spring or fall, and in order to make it produce big heads, it should be pruned back each winter in the same way as H. paniculata.

Brief Reminders.

Cuttings of crassula, coccinea, show pelargonium, croton, dracæna, pandanus, allamanda, Ficus elastica and F. pandurata will root easily now. Be sure to keep the sand moist. The two first named require less moisture than the others.

What about the coal supply? Did you remember to order it while prices were down? They are now advancing. Get your supply ordered and hauled, if not yet done.

Cuttings of Lorraine begonias will soon root now and it is not too late to make nice 4-inch pot stock out of them.

Have you remembered to order your bulb supply for the coming fall? If not, take advantage of one of these hot days, lay off an hour or two and make out your list.

Spray chrysanthemums, gardenias, palms and other plants freely in hot weather. Use the hose twice a day also on azaleas, camellias, genistas, ericas and other plants growing outdoors.

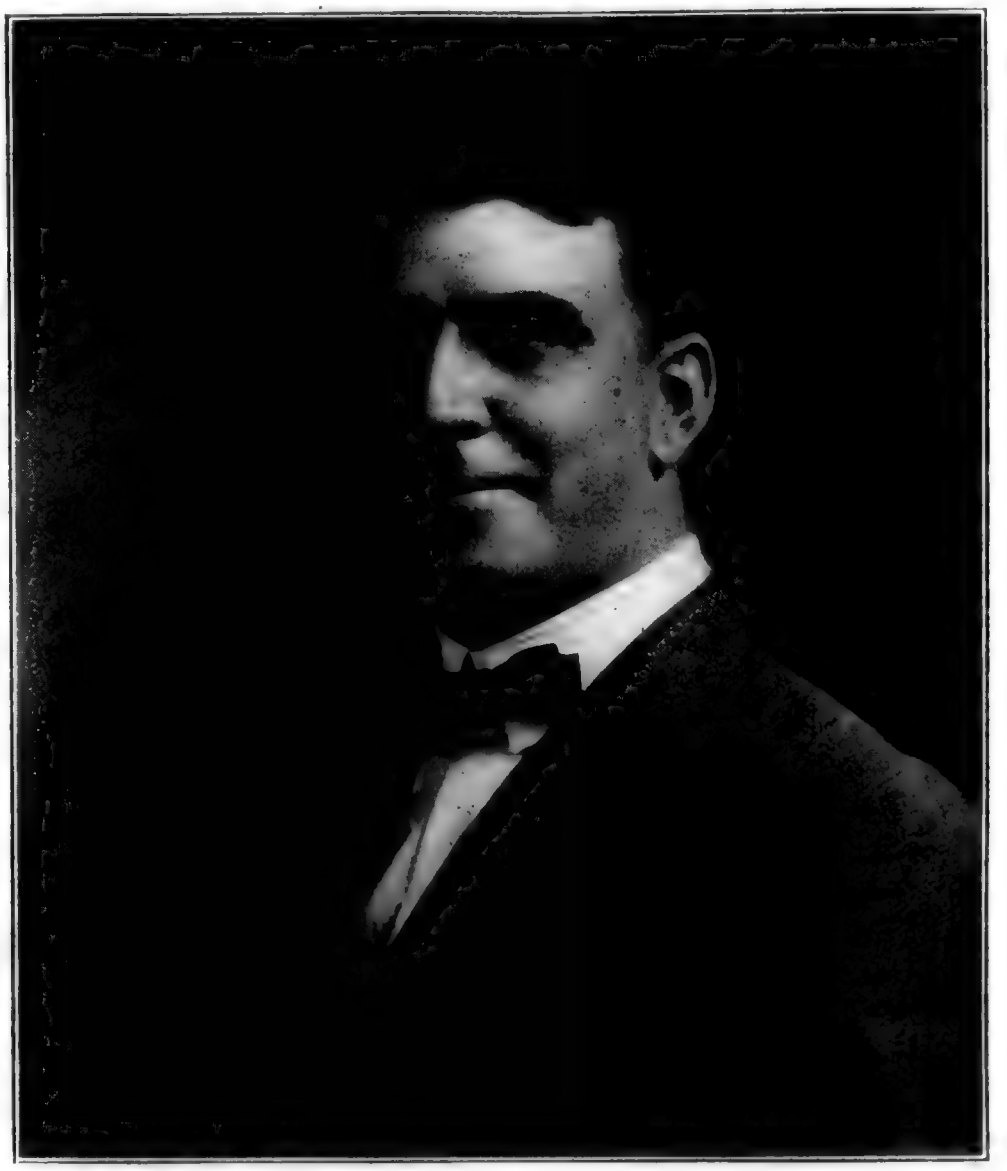
Keep late propagated hydrangeas potted along. Give flowering plants an abundance of water. Shade from bright sunshine.

Damp the floors and paths frequently in hot weather. It cools the houses, makes a better growing atmosphere and prevents attacks of thrips and spider.

Order mignonette and winter blooming sweet pea seed. It is rather too early to sow either of these yet, however.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.



Business as a whole has been decidedly dull for the last fortnight. The cuts from the plants grown for winter blooming, although in decreased supply, are still more or less of a glut on the market. All flowers, however, of real quality find a fair sale. Monday, July 11, the wholesale business was good, but we cannot tell at this writing whether the retailers were merely replenishing their supply or were buying for orders.

The flowers grown or forced, for this season of the year, are good. Longiflorums and valley are excellent, and auratum lilies are offered. Fine gladioli and asters find a ready sale, while water lilies are used extensively for window displays. The sweet peas do not hold up as they did a week or two ago. The supply of green goods is sufficient for all requests.

On Saturday the business in the flower market was slow. No single variety of flowers was cleaned up, even at low prices.

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held July 11 at the home of Gus Adrian in Clifton. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, C. E. Critchell; vice-president, William Murphy; secretary, Alex. Ostendarp; treasurer, E. A. Forter; director, W. Greensmith. Routine business was then attended to. After adjournment the club sat down to dinner. Miss Jennie Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian's charming daughter, and Frank Voltz entertained with a number of instrumental and vocal selections. The members were unanimous in declaring Mr. and Mrs. Adrian most amiable and delightful host and hostess.

Various Notes.

J. A. Peterson and Clarence Peterson have returned from their trip, and both say they have received large orders for Begonia Glory of Cincinnati.

P. O. Collentz, of New Madison, O., has begun to ship fine gladioli to C. E. Critchell. They will be arriving in quantity before long.

A. Sunderbruch's Sons are cutting elegant valley and longiflorums.

Sunday, July 10, William Murphy visited the various growers in the western part of the city. He says their carnations in the field and mums are in splendid condition. He is offering at his store good gladioli from local growers.

Graser & Humphreys, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., have a field of 12,000 early asters, the cut of which they will soon ship into the market.

Weiland & Olinger are receiving their first auratum lilies of this season. P. J. Olinger took a run down to the greenhouses at New Castle last week.

Ray Murphy has joined the ranks of benedicts. July 5 he and Miss Florence Lauber, of Delhi, were married.

R. A. Kelley has moved into his new store, one door east of his old location. The building and store have been rebuilt and remodeled. His neat displays in the plate-glass and marble windows attract attention.

J. William Rodgers has sold his greenhouse plant to W. H. Rutenschroer, who has occupied the place ever since Mr. Rodgers was first appointed superintendent of parks in this city. The consideration is said to have been $7,500.

William Meyers, on Central avenue, opposite the city hospital, has sold his store to Hauck Bros.

Miss Bossmeyer, at C. E. Critchell's, and Miss Clara Kyrk, at J. M. McCullough's Sons, are on their vacations, while Miss Margaret Onstead, at E. G. Gillett's, is home sick with the mumps.

Mrs. John Fries has gone to Martinsville, Ind., to cure her rheumatism. We are pleased to hear that she is improving rapidly.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, formerly of Rosebank, is in the city looking for greenhouses.

J. T. Herdegen, of Aurora, Ind., was a visitor July 11.

Make yourself, family and friends very much in evidence at the Florists' Club outing at the Country Club, Carthage, July 23. C. H. H.

OBITUARY.

J. W. Dudley.

J. W. Dudley, senior member of the firm of J. W. Dudley & Sons, Parkersburg, W. Va., died suddenly on Sunday evening, July 3, at his home in Dudleyville. He had been in ill health for nearly three years, afflicted with a complication of diseases, but the greater part of the time he was able to attend to business, though in that time he rarely went downtown, as was his custom before he became ill.

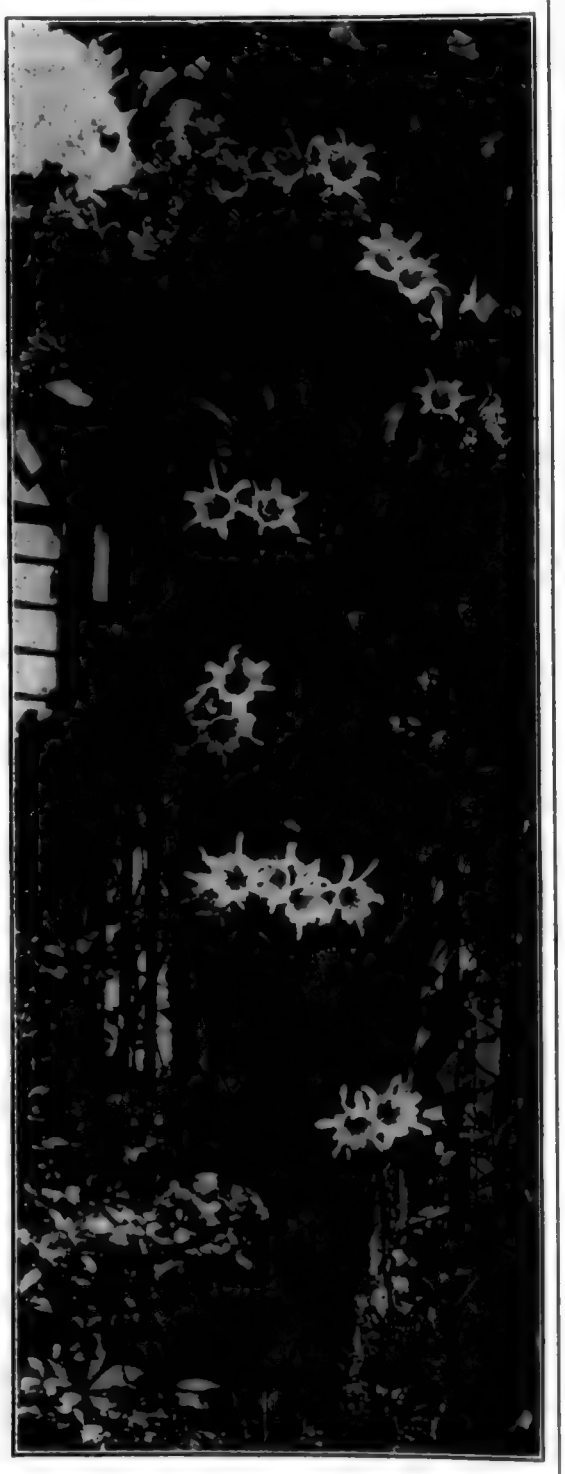
Mr. Dudley was 69 years of age, and a native of Oswego county, New York. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lysander Dudley. The family removed to Parkersburg about 1852, and the father became prominent in the business affairs of the community, as a contractor, some of the larger and most important of the older buildings of the city having been constructed by him.

J. W. Dudley, in his early manhood, devoted his energies to the establishment of a range of greenhouses. This business he made his life work, his father being associated with him. At the death of the latter his brother, Lysander, was connected with the enterprise. Of late years the firm has been J. W. Dudley & Sons. The business has grown to large proportions, being probably the most extensive of the kind in the state.

Next to his love for flowers Mr. Dudley delighted in politics, always keeping in close touch with political affairs. He served two terms as sheriff, from 1891 to 1895 and from 1901 to 1905.

He was married in 1862 to Miss Emma G. Leonard. Her death occurred April 15, 1903. The surviving children of this union are William Dudley, Charles P. Dudley, Mrs. Grace Shields, Miss Lou Dudley, Mrs. Lawrence O'Neil, Mrs. George D. Heaton, Mrs. Fred Woods, Mrs. F. C. Coffman, of Washington, Miss Elizabeth Dudley, Brainard and Albert Dudley.

Mr. Dudley's second marriage occurred four years ago. His second wife, who was Mrs. Sallie Woods, daughter of Rev. Dr. Walker, a prominent clergyman of Huntington, survives him.



Mr. Dudley was a stanch and consistent member of the Baptist church, with which he had been affiliated since early manhood, and of which he was a liberal supporter. He was devoted to his family, his home life being an ideal one. He was kind and generous to all, dispensing charity lavishly, but quietly and unostentatiously.

The funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon, July 5, at the family residence, by Rev. W. E. Henry, of the First Baptist church.

Thomas W. Dee.

Thomas W. Dee, formerly a florist in Boston, died at his home, 223 Brattle street, Cambridge, Mass., July 2, at the age of 73 years. He had been in poor health for more than a year, but was not taken dangerously ill until Memorial day. The burial was in the old Mount Auburn Catholic cemetery, in the family lot where Mrs. Dee was buried in 1876.

He was born May 27, 1837, in the Kittery navy yard, where his father was a commissioned officer. He attended Holy Cross College and later attended Nicollette College, in Quebec. He was a fluent French scholar. He served an apprenticeship in the Charlestown navy yard, and at the outbreak of the Civil war was appointed as assistant engineer in the navy, in the gunboat Coeur de Lion. He first went into the florists' business with John Galvin and later with William E. Doyle, under the firm name of Dee & Doyle, at the corner of Beacon and Tremont streets, Boston. Later he went into business with his brother, John Dee. He conducted as a separate business the great flower conservatories at Mount Auburn. He retired from active business on account of failing health eight years ago. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Gearan, with whom he had lived for many years.

Stump and Ismene.

J. W. H. Krumm.

John W. H. Krumm, formerly a florist, died July 1 at a hospital in St. Joseph, Mo., after an illness which had extended over a period of three years. He was 45 years old. He is survived by four brothers, Casper W., of Kansas City, William F., of Goff, Kan., and Henry and Fred, of St. Joseph, and by two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Lenzelere and Mrs. Fred Leucht, of St. Joseph.

STUMP AND ISMENE.

How a little ingenuity will transform an unsightly object into a thing of beauty and a joy forever is shown by the accompanying illustration, reproduced from a photograph made in the yard of J. N. King, the well-known florist of Norristown, Pa. An old stump, something more than five feet high and hollow, was filled with soil and a series of holes were cut in different parts of the stump. Then about fifty bulbs of Ismene calathina were planted. The photograph was made after the bulbs had produced abundant bloom. B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., who sent the photograph to The Review, said it "presented an exceptionally handsome appearance and has been in bloom during the entire month of June, showing what can be done with what would ordinarily be an eyesore; it can be made into a thing of beauty."

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., offers for registration the roses described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed names, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's descriptions: Name, Lady Cromwell. A sport of My Maryland, originating with A. N. Pierson, Inc., in 1908. This rose in every way resembles My Maryland, except in color. It is a shell pink outside, shading deeper toward the center, which is a creamy yellow, and sometimes quite a deep yellow. During the hot weather, however, the yellow center disappears, and the rose looks much the color of an Enchantress carnation. It is very fragrant. This rose will not be disseminated until the spring of 1912.

Name, Dark Pink Killarney. A sport of Killarney, originating with the Montrose Greenhouses, Montrose, Mass., and acquired by A. N. Pierson, Inc., by purchase. It is identical with the parent in habit and size of bloom. The color, however, is much darker than Killarney at all times of the year. This rose will be disseminated in 1911.

Public notice is hereby given that Hoopes Bro. & Thomas Co., of West Chester, Pa., offers for registration the rose described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's description: Name, Purity. A strong growing, climbing rose, making shoots of from ten to twelve inches in a season. Foliage, bright, glossy green, free from mildew or black spot. Flower four to five inches in diameter, pure ivory white. Petals of great substance and beautifully cupped. The plant is very floriferous, literally covering itself with its large flowers. Resembling the Clematis Henryi, they are borne on long stems twelve to eighteen inches long and are very fragrant. Buds are very large and fine for cutting. Can be used either as a pillar or climbing rose.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Interlaken, Mass.—Mrs. John E. Parsons is building a greenhouse here, 28x73.

Des Plaines, Ill.—A. T. Riley, formerly of North Tonawanda, N. Y., is now sales manager for the George M. Garland Co.

Maynard, Mass.—Albert Batley is building another greenhouse, 50x135, which will be one of the finest in this section of the state.

Rockville, Conn.—Theo. Staudt has bought the stock and fixtures in the store of J. McKenzie, in Exchange block.

McKinney, Tex.—W. Peirce, formerly of Dallas, has charge of the two greenhouses, 14x75, being built by the McKinney Nursery Co.

Fairmont, W. Va.—Large numbers of carnations were given out as souvenirs at the opening of George Daffin's new confectionery and flower store, in the Comerford building, on Main street.

Peoria, Ill.—Frank E. Rue has been moving a surplus stock of verbenas, and expediting business generally, by advertising that he would give the verbena plants free to purchasers of other stock.

Elmira, N. Y.—It is reported that Peter Kominos has been preparing to open a flower store at 311 East Water street, but that his former partner, Peter Makres, intended to secure an injunction restraining him from doing so, on account of an agreement, made before the dissolution of partnership, that Mr. Kominos would not engage again in the business in that neighborhood.

Houston, Tex.—H. H. Kuhlmann recently has taken over the entire business of Wm. Kutschbach and will hereafter run it in connection with his own. The Kutschbach store and greenhouses constituted the largest concern in the trade in Houston and the combined businesses make Mr. Kuhlmann an important factor in the flower trade of the southwest.

Gardner, Mass.—A recent fire at the Riverside Greenhouses, owned by Carl J. Erickson, destroyed four of the group of houses, besides the barn and carriage shed. The fire started from the boiler and had made much headway before help could be obtained from the fire department. The loss was estimated at $4,000, with only $1,500 of insurance. Since buying the property from C. S. Johnson four years ago, Mr. Erickson had doubled the size of the greenhouses and made other improvements which practically doubled the worth of the property. He says he intends to build again and start anew.

Elmhurst, Cal.—E. James & Co., at Hillside, are building an additional greenhouse.

Basil, O.—H. M. Paskins has had an excellent season and is on his way to the Pacific northwest for a vacation visit with a sister whom he has not seen in over forty years.

Savanna, Ill.—J. Y. Lambert & Son, of the Savanna Greenhouses, will extend their business so as to include the growing of vegetables for the wholesale trade. Several houses will be added for this purpose.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The city park commissioners have awarded to the King Construction Co. a contract for furnishing, complete, a greenhouse 20x107, to be attached to the present range on Elmwood avenue, in Delaware park.

Princeton, Ill.—The 42-foot brick smokestack at Carl Erickson's greenhouses was recently struck by lightning and about half of it was torn away. Bricks were thrown, it is said, a distance of fifty feet and many of them crashed through the glass of the houses. The chimney will be rebuilt at once.

Youngstown, O.—Wm. A. Wittman, a florist with a thorough experience in the best class of work, has opened a store at 41 North Phelps street. The store is one of the most up-to-date establishments in this part of the state. The room has been remodeled and greatly improved and, with its large and well-arranged stock, presents a most attractive appearance.

Saddle River, N. J.—J. E. Esler says the storm of June 18 was widespread in the states of Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, and considerable damage to greenhouse structures in all three states resulted. Quite a number were insured, but several got caught without insurance. The sequel is that the F. H. A. is having a boom. The figures now are considerably over 34,000,000 square feet of glass insured.

Marblehead, Mass.—The business formerly conducted by Larkin H. Hayden has now been reorganized and will bear the name of the Devereux Corporation Greenhouses. The officers of the new company are Larkin H. Hayden, president, and Roger Upton, treasurer. No secretary has yet been chosen. Mr. Hayden, who has been in the trade for the last twelve years, will continue as manager. The company's greenhouses, at the corner of Beach street and Atlantic avenue, will be enlarged to almost three times their present dimensions and will contain, when completed, about 25,000 square feet of glass.

Cheboygan, Mich.—It is said that G. H. Harrison has the boating fever and has purchased a launch.

Cromwell, Conn.—It is stated on good authority that A. N. Pierson is not entirely satisfied with White Killarney and will grow it less extensively the coming season.

Taunton, Mass.—At the Taunton greenhouses the June business this year surpassed all previous records. Trade during the whole of the last season has been satisfactory.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—It is reported that Sidney R. Lambourne, a florist at 334 Seventh East, was recently assaulted by a street car conductor after mildly remonstrating with the conductor because the car had not been stopped as requested. Mr. Lambourne reported his treatment to the police, and an investigation was begun by the railway claim agent.

Dallas, Tex.—At a meeting of the directors of the Seaboard National Bank of New York City, held July 7, E. H. R. Green, president of the Green Floral & Nursery Co., of this city, was elected a director of the bank, which is one of the largest and strongest in the United States. Mr. Green also is president of the Texas Midland railroad, but the rumor in New York is that he will in future spend most of his time in that city.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The State Florists' Association has announced that it will hold its fall show November 8 to 12, in Tomlinson hall. The preliminary premium list carries about $2,000 in prizes, and it is expected that special features will be added, which will run the total far above that sum. The board of managers for the show is as follows: J. S. Stuart, Anderson, general manager; H. Junge, Cumberland, assistant manager; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, secretary; H. L. Wiegand, Indianapolis, treasurer; F. E. Dorner, Lafayette, and E. H. Mann, Richmond.

Kansas City, Mo.—After twenty-one years at 1017 Broadway, Sam Murray is removing to 913 Grand avenue. He expects to be settled in his new location this week. The change was made necessary by the growth of the city. Once located in the most fashionable section, Mr. Murray found himself at last surrounded by wholesale houses and completely out of the way of the fashionable trade. The new store is not only in the best downtown district, accessible to the wealthy buyers, but will afford far larger facilities. Mr. Murray is fitting it up as one of the best appointed flower stores in the country.

OBITUARY.

J. W. Dudley.

J. W. Dudley, senior member of the firm of J. W. Dudley & Sons, Parkersburg, W. Va., died suddenly on Sunday evening, July 3, at his home in Dudleyville. He had been in ill health for nearly three years, afflicted with a complication of diseases, but the greater part of the time he was able to attend to business, though in that time he rarely went downtown, as was his custom before he became ill.

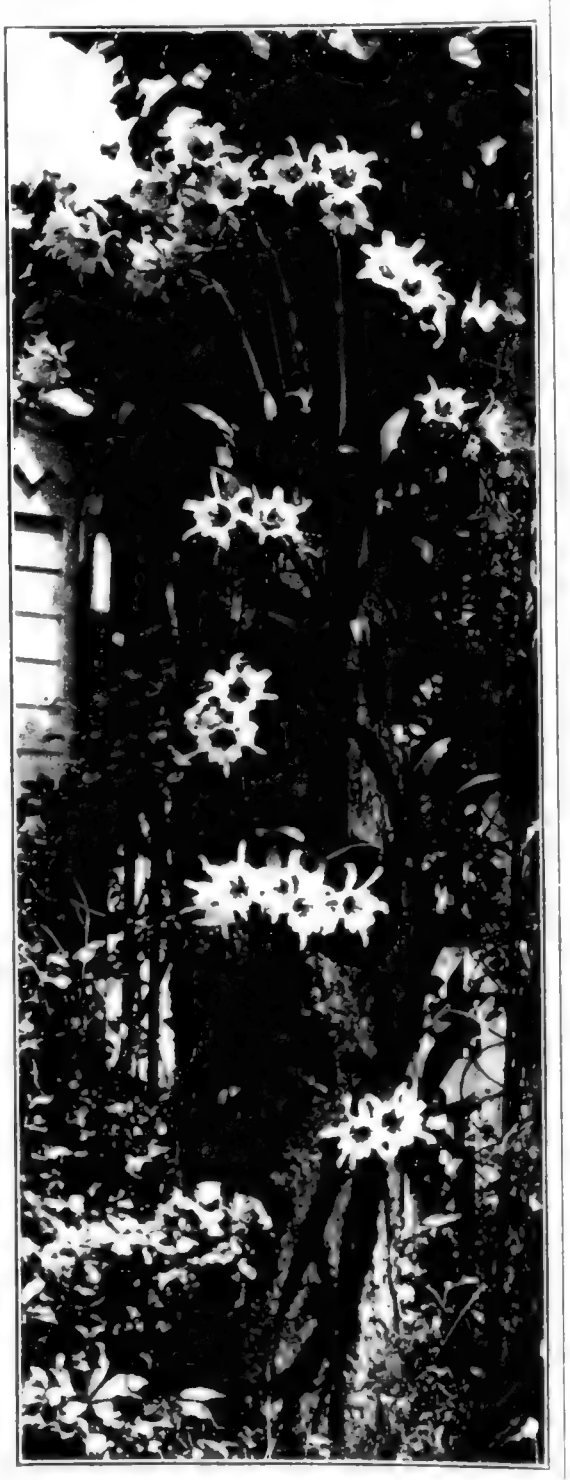
Mr. Dudley was 69 years of age, and a native of Oswego county, New York. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lysander Dudley. The family removed to Parkersburg about 1852, and the father became prominent in the business affairs of the community, as a contractor, some of the larger and most important of the older buildings of the city having been constructed by him.

J. W. Dudley, in his early manhood, devoted his energies to the establishment of a range of greenhouses. This business he made his life work, his father being associated with him. At the death of the latter his brother, Lysander, was connected with the enterprise. Of late years the firm has been J. W. Dudley & Sons. The business has grown to large proportions, being probably the most extensive of the kind in the state.

Next to his love for flowers Mr. Dudley delighted in politics, always keeping in close touch with political affairs. He served two terms as sheriff, from 1891 to 1895 and from 1901 to 1905.

He was married in 1862 to Miss Emma G. Leonard. Her death occurred April 15, 1903. The surviving children of this union are William Dudley, Charles P. Dudley, Mrs. Grace Shields, Miss Lou Dudley, Mrs. Lawrence O'Neil, Mrs. George D. Heaton, Mrs. Fred Woods, Mrs. F. C. Coffman, of Washington, Miss Elizabeth Dudley, Brainard and Albert Dudley.

Mr. Dudley's second marriage occurred four years ago. His second wife, who was Mrs. Sallie Woods, daughter of Rev. Dr. Walker, a prominent clergyman of Huntington, survives him.



Mr. Dudley was a stanch and consistent member of the Baptist church, with which he had been affiliated since early manhood, and of which he was a liberal supporter. He was devoted to his family, his home life being an ideal one. He was kind and generous to all, dispensing charity lavishly, but quietly and unostentatiously.

The funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon, July 5, at the family residence, by Rev. W. E. Henry, of the First Baptist church.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

YOU who are looking for opportunities to go into business will find many such in The Review's department of Want advertisements.

THE international flower show to be held at London, England, in 1912 is planned to open May 22. It is hoped to secure American coöperation.

THE rate of one and three-fifths fares for the round trip, on the certificate plan, has been authorized by the railroads for the S. A. F. convention at Rochester next month.

MANY people will tell you that the best index to a publication's closeness to its readers is the Want Ad department. And The Review's Want department is growing even faster than other parts of the paper.

IT appears that the cut flower possibilities of the peony are nowhere any better than in the section where they never fail to bloom by May 10 to 20. Fair prices always are realized in northern markets for good flowers well handled at Memorial day, and frequently fine prices are obtained, as was the case this year in middle western cities.

PROPOSE SPRING CONVENTION.

It is stated that the necessary steps have been taken to bring before the S. A. F., in form for action at Rochester, a proposal to change the date of the annual convention from midsummer to early Lent, a date corresponding with that of the society's National Flower Show at Boston in the spring of 1911.

For some time there has been complaint that the multiplication of trade societies was working disadvantageously in many ways: disadvantageously to individuals, who find they can ill afford the time and money required for attendance at all the meetings their inclination and interest prompts, and disadvantageously to the parent society and the special societies by dividing up the attendance and financial support. It has been apparent that the attendance at the conventions of the leading trade societies was not increasing at anything like the rate that the trade itself is growing; that the membership lists are not in any way representative of the trade at large as it exists today in this country, and that the value of the societies is impaired by a constantly increasing diffusion of the energies of the limited number of men whose services are available for such work.

To correct the tendency in the wrong direction has been a problem which has engaged the thought of some of the best men in the business, but little actual result was apparent until individual interests began to be strong enough to overcome the several strong special objections to concentration, the first real success being in combining the Carnation Society's show and the Rose Society's affair with next year's National Flower Show at Boston.

To effect a change of date of the S. A. F. convention and permanently combine these three meetings may not prove so easy a matter, but there undoubtedly now are many who would welcome a change to a spring date for the S. A. F. meeting irrespective of other than business and personal considerations. August is no longer the dull month it once was for the growers, and experience has shown that a considerable number of those who have leisure in that month prefer to spend it otherwise than in a hot convention hall.

The Great Central Market.

Last week's market, especially the latter part, was undeniably dull; the most optimistic could find nothing in it more encouraging than the diminishing supply of stock. The weather was the hottest of the year to date, and demand lighter than in any week this year; indeed, some of the wholesalers said they have not had so dull a week within two summers. The local retailers seem to have ceased pushing for business, making no further effort than to supply the few funeral designs that are called for. Many of them have no cut stock whatever in their windows and little in their ice-boxes. Shipping trade has been better than local business, but called principally for roses. Conditions are slightly better this week, because of showers and cooler weather.

The call for roses is in excess of the supply of really good stock. Rose receipts are not heavy and a large part of the stock continues to be of extremely poor quality, not usable on orders for anything but the cheapest of funeral work. The result is that after the wholesalers have done the large amount of sorting necessary to separate the few good flowers from the much greater number of poor ones, they expect and are able to demand good prices for the best, while there is almost no sale whatever for the culls. Beauties are not so abundant as they have been and are now pretty fair sale. Killarney is again proving the best summer rose among the pinks. White Killarney is fine in everything except color, but Kaiserin still has the call. Richmond is in large supply in several houses and is not in special request.

The receipts of carnations have been much heavier than usual, but are now on the downgrade and within a few days the supply will be reduced to the minimum. Dry weather has not been to the advantage of the asters, the arrival of which is now awaited with considerable eagerness. Where the stock has been watered, cutting will commence within a few days, but it will be August 1 before the deluge is in sight, even if the drought has not worked irreparable injury.

There are large supplies of gladioli. America and Augusta are fair sale, but the common sorts of indescribable color can only be sold cheaply. Auratum lilies have come to take the place of the callas that are gone. There continue to be plenty of Easter lilies. Valley is abundant. Quite a few Golden Glow mums are offered, but the supply is not constant and advance orders are advised if anybody really wants them. Shasta daisies are plentiful, but sell quite well. Coreopsis, gaillardia, feverfew and other outdoor flowers move slowly. The sweet peas are nearing the end of their season; few good ones now are seen and there is little call for them.

The peonies will hold out at least until the end of next week. The peony situation this year has reminded observers of the family that put a barrel of apples in the cellar in the fall; not wishing to lose the specked ones, they ate the spoiling apples first, and had not got down to the good ones when the bottom of the barrel was reached. This may not be true of everyone who stored peonies, but there are few exceptions; most of them have been eating rotten apples all season.

There is an abundance of all green stock, for the demand is light.

Club Meeting.

At its dinner at the Union restaurant, July 7, the Chicago Florists' Club prepared to go to the Rochester convention of the S. A. F. in a special train operated as a second section of the Lake Shore's famous Twentieth Century Limited, the eighteen-hour flyer to New York. The details are not complete, except that E. F. Winterson, chairman of the transportation committee, stated that the Lake Shore had been selected as the official route. The special train is contingent on having a party of 100 or more. To get this number will require that St. Louis, Milwaukee and other cities west and north join in, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo and others being picked up en route. The president was instructed to appoint a special entertainment committee to aid the transportation committee. The fare will be $15.38 going, $8.10 returning, with $3 each way for sleeper.

There were about forty present at the dinner, which everyone enjoyed. It was voted to hold a picnic Sunday, July 31, a committee, consisting of A. C. Kohlbrand, P. L. McKee and A. F. Longren being appointed to work with the standing committee on good of the club, which consists of Frank Pasternick, John Degnan and H. Schiller.

J. C. Vaughan and A. Lange were named as a committee to act for the club in an attempt to secure a payment of damages by the City Railway Co. for the death of Darby, who, it appears, left a deaf and dumb son in need of assistance. There was much general discussion of flower show, bowling, convention and other matters. Harry Philpott invited everybody to the C. H. A. convention at St. Catherines, August 10. Proposals for membership were three: H. C. Wendland, Elmhurst; Alex. Garland, Des Plaines; H. Yepson, Evanston.

No Picnic.

The picnic committee appointed at the last meeting of the Florists' Club held a meeting at E. C. Amling's July 11, at which J. P. Degnan, H. D. Schiller, A. C. Kohlbrand and Frank Pasternick were present. After going over the situation fully it was decided that none of the grounds available were satisfactory and that it would be wisest to omit the picnic for this year.

Flower Show Matters.

Following the adjourned quarterly meeting of the Horticultural Society, July 19, early action on the matter of the usual fall show is expected. As reported some months ago in The Review, the Coliseum will not be available at the customary date in November. It is stated that the executive committee is considering the First Regiment armory, also the Seventh, and that they are about the only places of suitable size now in sight. It is not thought the show will be permitted to fall through.

in this section, and says his plants seldom have looked better than they do at this date. He expects to begin cutting the latter part of next week.

H. W. Rogers, of Weiland & Risch, has been spending his vacation at Pentwater, Mich.

B. Abrahamson and a partner are preparing to launch the Florists' Automobile Delivery Co. The plan is to have two or more motor vehicles fitted with detachable signs. The cars are to be at the call of patrons and a sign is to be carried for each subscriber. It is figured that the cars will make a saving for florists and a profit for their owners.

Ned Washburn is again on duty at the city store of Bassett & Washburn, while Mrs. Horton is on a vacation.

A. H. Budlong says that the J. A. Budlong carnation houses will be all planted up by July 16. The stock was planted in the field exceptionally early. It went through the April freeze without apparent injury, has made good size, and Mr. Budlong says the plants are taking hold nicely, benching having been begun July 7.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. says business is exceptionally good for this time of year, principally orders for roses, but a number of customers they have not heard from for some time are now buying again.

G. H. Pieser, president of the Kennicott Bros. Co., had a narrow escape from the loss of his eyes when a piece of fireworks exploded prematurely at Aurora, where he was spending the Fourth. His face was badly burned, and his spectacles probably are all that saved his eyesight.

F. F. Benthey, with Kyle & Foerster, has returned from New Castle, where his sister has been critically ill.

Joe Dunn, for many years foreman for J. A. Budlong, has returned from Sturgis, Mich., where he recently went into business for himself. He has succeeded Fred Benthey as foreman at the Des Plaines plant of Hoerber Bros.

Charles Klehm says that his supply of peonies will hold out until about July 21. In spite of the fact that many peonies have spoiled since cutting, and that the demand is slack for other than the best, Mr. Klehm says he has since July 1 been taking in more money each day than in the corresponding days of last year. The quantity of peonies stored this season, counting all lots, was slightly more than one-third the quantity stored a year ago.

It is reported that George Reinberg has bought an automobile.

C. W. McKellar and wife, with a party of friends, started July 9 on a six weeks' automobile tour of the east. They expect to be at Rochester for the S. A. F. convention.

Peter Reinberg, Mrs. Reinberg, Henry Kranz and Mrs. Kranz started July 9 for a fortnight's trip through Yellowstone park.

Gus Alles, right-hand storeman for Wietor Bros., is on his annual vacation.

Henry Van Gelder reports as a visitor this week John H. Chisholm, manager for the J. C. Rennison Co., which has 100,000 feet of glass at Sioux City, Ia., but is a large buyer in this market.

Richard Weber, grower for Peter Reinberg, who shot one of his fellow employees on the Fourth, has been exonerated from blame by the coroner's jury.

W. E. Lynch says the summer cut flower business of E. H. Hunt the last two years was so much ahead of preceding seasons that he will make no complaint if July and August this year only come up to the recent records. He looks for much better sales as soon as good asters are available.

Henry Payne, formerly in business at Hinsdale, now is with the neighboring firm of Edwards & Fleming.

A. L. Randall Co. reports that every important carnation grower on its list of consignors was shipping heavily last week. W. W. Randall says the explanation of the large shipments continuing beyond the usual date is that the growers find it too dry to begin replanting operations; they are waiting for a good rain.

Recent visitors: Edward Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis.; M. M. Miesse and wife, Lancaster, O.; H. S. Morton, Los Angeles, Cal., who formerly was in business on Indiana avenue.

Chester, Pa.—J. F. Scallan says trade has been better this spring and summer than at any time since he started business.

Sewell, N. J.—John L. North was recently badly burned about the face by a preparation that was being used to cure a toothache. Part of the article was accidentally spilled, and as a result Mr. North's face will probably be scarred for life.

The manufacturer of an article used in all flower stores recently got out a special catalogue for his florists' line—it was a little the nicest book he ever had issued and in it he reproduced twelve letters from florists to prove that his merchandise was as good as his printing.

Of these twelve letters:

Nine proved to be from subscribers to The Review.

Two were from Review subscribers whose renewals were in process of collection.

[Seventy-five per cent of Review subscribers renew without missing even one copy, while on the very best of the standard monthly magazines the lapses are over fifty per cent.]

The twelfth letter was from a firm that had since gone out of business.

BOSTON.

The Market.

A general listlessness and extreme dullness pervade cut flower circles. Good flowers are becoming increasingly scarce and the demand is light. We have been sweltering with temperatures of 90 to 100 degrees in the shade, and this in itself suffices to put business down and out. The general verdict that there is absolutely nothing doing well portrays the situation. Good roses are scarce. A few decent quality Beauties are still seen, also excellent Kaiserin and Carnot. Killarney and Maryland are getting poorer all the time. Values are away down. Carnations also are poor—in fact, good flowers are the exception. A select few may make $2 per hundred, but the majority go at 25 to 50 cents. Sweet peas are abundant, but getting short-stemmed.

Trade in valley, cattleyas, lilies and callas is quite light. Gladioli are good, but sell slowly with the rest. Nymphæas are being used freely for window decorations. Bouvardia Humboldtii comes in small quantities and makes 50 cents per bunch. Good sweet sultan, candytuft, cornflower, asters, the latter in limited numbers as yet, and gypsophila are to be had. There is not much demand for asparagus and adiantum. Trade in pot plants has sunk to a low ebb. Hydrangeas are as much seen as anything, while some tuberous begonias, gloxinias and fuchsias are used.

Various Notes.

William A. Hastings, of the Park street flower market, left July 8 for cool Nantucket, to be away until early in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Neil, of Dorchester, are spending a few weeks at Ocean Grove, N. J. In the meantime the boys, Tom and Charlie, are hustling along necessary changes in the greenhouses.

William J. Thurston, the popular manager of the older Park Street flower market, accompanied by W. E. Turner, of Woburn, started July 11 for Jefferson, N. H., where their vacations will be spent.

Advices from S. J. Goddard show that gentleman to be thoroughly enjoying himself in the south of England. When last heard from he was at Bournemouth, one of the most beautiful of British watering places and health resorts.

E. Jackson Rogean, salesman for A. N. Pierson and other prominent growers, left July 8 for a trip to Nova Scotia.

A number of local horticulturists will visit Bar Harbor, Me., and officiate as judges at the third annual flower show there August 13 and 14.

The two wholesale flower markets have decided to close Saturdays during July and August, when business is at its lowest ebb. This change is much appreciated by the salesmen. W. H. Elliott and the Waban Rose Conservatories have adopted a similar rule and it now only remains for the wholesale commission people to do likewise and make the thing unanimous.

Joseph Margolis, of the firm of H. M. Robinson & Co., and Sidney Hoffman, the enterprising and popular Massachusetts avenue retailer, were among the passengers on the steamship Amerika, for Europe July 9. Each will make an extended tour and combine business with pleasure.

William McAlpine, chief salesman for the J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., of Auburn, R. I., in Boston, is enjoying his annual vacation at Exeter, N. H.

Edward Bingham, the well-known violet specialist of Dedham, sailed for England on the steamship Ivernia, July 5.

Samuel Kantz, buyer for F. H. Houghton, is making a tour of Atlantic City, New York, Philadelphia and sundry other places and will keep his eyes wide open for new floricultural ideas while away.

Mrs. Jarvis Cartwright, of Needham, died July 5 and was interred July 8. Our sincere sympathy goes out to the bereaved husband.

Edgar Bros., of Waverley, are just finishing construction work on their fine new greenhouse.

Edward Wood, of Lexington, is rebuilding one or two houses, building a new chimney and making lots of other improvements at present.

An interesting and charming hardy garden is that of Benjamin Worcester, Piety Corner, Waltham. Superb delphiniums, eight feet in height, grand candidum lilies and other hardy herbaceous plants are now a feature.

Thomas Clark, father of Thomas J. Clark, the well-known Boylston street florist, a familiar face for a number of years with Norton Bros., later with Houghton & Clark, and up to the time of his decease with his son, was taken ill July 3, died July 6 and was interred July 9. Quite a number of those in the trade remembered the deceased with floral souvenirs and attended to pay him their last mark of respect.

tion. He has worked hard during the last year and has earned a rest.

Mrs. Julius Heurlin and sons, Victor and Spencer, of the Blue Hill Nurseries, South Braintree, were passengers on the steamship Ivernia, for Liverpool, July 5. Mr. Heurlin will join them in Europe a little later on.

E. Allan Peirce is busy arranging for a special Pullman car for the Boston delegation to the Rochester convention and will be able to furnish all particulars as to rates, route, etc., within a day or two. The Seneca hotel will be the S. A. F. headquarters, according to Secretary Dorner, who states, however, that there are a number of other excellent hotels on the European plan.

George W. Butterworth has arrived safely in Europe and during the next few weeks will be busy visiting orchid collections over there.

The program of sports for the coming picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club is in the hands of the printers and all arrangements are well advanced. There will, as usual, be a goodly array of valuable and useful articles as prizes and fine weather alone is needed to make the affair a complete success.

of bloom. He did not thin out the old wood any, which looks wrong to me, as many of the bushes are quite dense. I have not had much experience with outdoor roses. J. J. W.

Hybrid perpetual roses, which are the varieties we presume you refer to, including such sorts as General Jacqueminot, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Paul Neyron, Magna Charta, Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. John Laing, etc., do better if pruned back quite severely each spring. The growths of the preceding year should be cut back so that from two to four eyes only are left, according to the strength of each. All dead and weak wood should be cut away entirely, and only strong, healthy shoots retained. By pruning more lightly a somewhat earlier lot of flowers can be had, but they will lack the quality produced on plants cut back more severely.

Hybrid tea and tea roses must be cut back much less severely than hybrid perpetuals. Ramblers should have none of the previous year's wood removed, except such as is dead and weak.

PLANTS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Please let me know when to plant the seeds of stocks, petunias, salvias and verbenas to have blooming plants by Memorial day? A. D.

Sow stocks and petunias at the end of February, Salvia splendens a month later, and verbenas the middle of March. The salvias are hardly likely to be much in flower at Memorial day. As a rule they do not bloom much before late summer or early fall. Plants from cuttings will flower earlier than seedlings. You will find hints as to the sowing of these and other bedding plants in the cultural department of The Review throughout the season. C. W.

Piqua, O.—Harry P. Smith has added a new line to his stock at his store on North Main street. In addition to his flowers, he will carry a good assortment of books, periodicals, tobacco, etc.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Another hot wave arrived with the current week, July 7, and continued several days. It had a marked effect on the market. The growers whose flowers have withstood previous onslaughts succumbed to this one, and shipments are lighter. The tone of the market is rather better. There is no more demand, but supply and demand are more evenly balanced. Business is about normal for the middle of July. There is a certain amount of shipping that comes in little puffs and gales and then subsides; quality only will do for these orders. The quality is like the "four hundred" to the four hundred thousand—still you can get the quality when you make it clear that that only is wanted.

Carnation shipments have fallen off decidedly. Asters of modest mien are increasing in numbers slowly. Easter lilies are good—their quality is more appreciated these hot days. Gladiolus in fancy varieties is fine and selling about as well as anything. Shasta daisies of superb quality are here, and with them sweet peas from a cooler clime that equal our best standard.

The rose assortment is made up of eastern Beauties of good quality, Kaiserin that unfortunately do not equal the demand on many days, and My Maryland, chiefly in medium and short lengths. There also are a few good Killarney and its white sister.

Valley, cattleyas and gardenias are obtainable, but play a less important part than a month ago. Greens are plentiful.

Club Meeting.

There was an interested audience at the postponed meeting of the Florists' Club, July 12, to hear W. A. Manda. His subject was "Is Ours a Profession or a Trade?" and he delivered an address highly cultivated and of great beauty. It was followed by the general discussion. J. Otto Thilow and others took the view that ours is a profession. A. Farenwald thought specializing tended to narrowness. Mr. Niessen advocated the advantages offered young men in horticulture. The address and debate were full of interest.

Various Notes.

Walter N. Yates, whose clever business ideas have often brightened this column, will sail for Europe July 23 to visit the nurseries of England, Holland, Belgium and France and gather material for next season's campaign.

S. Morris Jones has sold his entire block of stock in the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., retaining his office of treasurer of the company until the annual meeting this month. There will be no change in management of the company's affairs.

Casper and George L. Pennock, wholesale growers of roses and lilies of the valley at Lansdowne, will replant part of their Beauty range with Killarney this season. By the way, did you know that C. & G. L. Pennock are also retail coal dealers in Lansdowne? They find flowers and coal gee well together.

Harry Simpson, manager of the Floral Exchange, Edgely, Pa., has the reputation of being one of our hardest workers, as well as one of our cleverest mechanics. There is no labor-saving device applicable to the greenhouse that Mr. Simpson cannot rig and put in running order.

P. J. Lynch divides his time between West Grove, Pa., and New Castle, Ind., giving his friends on both sides of the Alleghanies words of genial optimism that warm their hearts.

Paul Berkowitz is enthusiastic over the wonderfully perfect orchids just received by H. Bayersdorfer & Co. from France. French ingenuity is making strides in this class of material. Flowers and foliage in great variety are now arriving.

The bay trees have been on the back tract during the last season, the demand falling off perceptibly.

A large gathering of members of the Florists' Club greeted W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., at Horticultural Robert Craig reports an unusually heavy demand for Pandanus Veitchii in sizes usable for vases and baskets.

There are two seedsmen who will undoubtedly make their mark during the next few years. Both are ambitious, enterprising and persevering. Both rejoice in the Christian name of Fred. Guess who?

N. Davis, of Jacksonville, Fla., was in town recently.

Stephen D. Green returned last week after a trip through the west and southwest, where he dealt largely in "futures," as he naively expressed it. When asked whether he felt southern competition in these sections, Mr. Green said another good thing: "We have imitators, not competitors."

Walter P. Stokes, writing to a friend in this city, speaks in glowing terms of the extent and system of the seed growing industry in England. "Eight hundred tests of peas and others in proportion" were seen through the pea and radish growing districts in Essex.

William Berger has placed an order with D. P. Connor for two 100-foot Lord & Burnham houses to be erected at the rear of his new store, for which plans have just been completed. Mr. Berger has sold part of his ground on Pulaski avenue and, it is understood, will remove the greenhouses thereon to his new properties.

M. Rice and Mrs. Rice took a jaunt to Coney Island. To please J. Austin Shaw I should like to say how much Mr. Rice admired this great New York shore resort, but truth compels me to admit that he prefers our own Willow Grove.

William C. Harry, well and favorably known at the Sign of the Rose, is the latest addition to the musical talent at the Pavilion at Ocean City, where he plays the trombone to the no small delight of his friends. Mr. Harry promises that music will not tempt him from flowers in the fall.

William J. Baker is enjoying a short vacation after the strenuous months following Easter.

George Auegle promises that the coming season will be the best in the history of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.

TRACHELIUM CÆRULEUM.

The tracheliums or throatworts are a small genus of biennial or perennial herbs, found in shady places in southern Europe. The best variety is T. cæruleum, quite popular as a border plant in Great Britain, where it blooms in August. In America this plant is occasionally listed by seedsmen, but has been much neglected. The best way to treat it here is as a biennial, sowing seed in early summer for blooming the following year. Seed sown now will produce strong flowering plants for next June. The seed germinates readily, and if first pricked off in flats and later planted out in coldframes to be wintered, like Canterbury bells or foxgloves, or potted on for flowering under glass, strong plants can be had before cold weather.

The plant with me flowered in June in a cool greenhouse. Even after some pinching it grew four to five feet in height. Cuttings, however, are said to produce dwarfer plants and can be inserted in late summer. The flowers are produced in dense, corymbosely branched panicles, not unlike gypso-phila heads, the color being a charming shade of violet blue, a shade of color which ladies are particularly partial to. The flowers last finely in water and their light, airy appearance attracts instant attention.

This plant is worthy the attention of private gardeners, both as a pot and border plant, while it should have some commercial possibilities also. In Great Britain it is popular, both as a greenhouse and border plant, and when better known it will be largely grown here. The plant belongs to the natural order campanulaceæ. C.

The Market.

The hot wave continues. "There is no business," is the universal greeting to one's "How's——" They do not give one time to ask the question. "Bad as every summer is," the oldest wholesaler says, "this season overtops them all." The hot weather does not seem to interfere with the quantity of shipments. The market simply cannot digest them. It would seem wise for the growers to hold and destroy everything that is not perfect. Such a course would be far better for them and for the business generally—in fact, several wholesalers have given these instructions to their shippers, for in many cases the cost of expressage is not realized. Day after day last week a big Brooklyn buyer carted away 5,000 carnations from the shipments of a grower of national reputation and paid only $10 for them. It would be money in the pockets of grower, wholesaler and retailer if every flower store would close during July and August.

Apart from funeral work there is absolutely nothing doing. It is next to impossible to quote prices. Buyers find no reasonable or unreasonable offer ignored. Hundreds of dollars' worth are destroyed daily, because no possible market can be made for the arrivals. Even the best stock deteriorates rapidly in the intense heat and only the select brings any price at all.

Beauties sell at from 15 cents down and few roses, even Kaiserin and Killarney, go above 3 cents, while vast quantities of both roses and carnations sell at 25 cents per hundred. Valley seems to be the only scarcity. It brought early in the week as high as $3 per hundred for the best. This is sweet pea week, and we will see the finest of them at the convention. There is no price for inferior stock, and the street is the only outlet.

The Week's Outings.

Members of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers, their wives, daughters and sweethearts to the number of seventy-five, including the guests, journeyed on the early train Thursday, July 7, to Lake Hopatcong, one of the prettiest sheets of water in the state. On arrival there at 10 a. m. the boat in waiting carried the company to the popular inn, where after a sumptuous breakfast the ladies enjoyed a two hours' sail around the charming lake, while swimming, boating and bowling kept the sterner sex interested. Then the privileges were reversed and the ladies' bowling contests for handsome prizes began. Mr. Nash, of Bronx park, and wife, who are camping on the shores of the lake, were welcome visitors during the afternoon. The weather was perfect. The contests were keenly enjoyed and the prizes well worth the winning. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Scholzel celebrated with the company their fourteenth wedding anniversary, and Mr. and Mrs. Wittman their twenty-fifth anniversary, which occurred only a few days before. The Schultheis brothers gave an exhibition of fancy swimming fully clothed, that was easily the popular hit of the

The fourth annual outing of the Greek-American Association, Thursday, July 7, overtopped all its predecessors in numbers and success. The attendance was close to 700. Nearly every wholesale house was represented, and many of the principals attended. Fraternity was splendidly demonstrated. All the events on the program were well contested and several Americans won prizes. No accident marred the pleasure of the day. George D. Nicholas waxed eloquent, as usual. The committees were made up of the best Grecian blood of the community, while the Greek wives and daughters demonstrated the continuance of the classic beauty that made ancient Athens famous. The prizes were numerous and valuable. The whole affair was a credit to its promoters, and it was unfortunate the same day was chosen as that selected by the plant growers, as it made a difference of nearly 100 in the attendance. But the boat was well filled and everybody who attended has a good word to say for the management.

Various Notes.

The seventy-ninth fair of the American Institute is announced for September 20 to 22 at the Berkeley Lyceum, also the annual chrysanthemum show at the same place November 9 to 11. The schedule of prizes, as usual, is large and attractive.

Cleary's Horticultural Co., on Vesey street, has closed for the season and the big auction mart has a "To Let" sign in the window.

Closing hour during the week, except Saturdays, is now 3 o'clock. Nearly every wholesaler observes the custom. The latest suggestion is to close on Sundays altogether until September 1. Few object, and it is entirely possible to eliminate the Sunday opening in the wholesale district.

Mr. Myer, of A. J. Guttman's, is enjoying his vacation at Liberty, N. Y. C. R. Hale, of the same house, welcomed July 4 the stork with a 12-pound boy. Mr. Guttman is busy with the development of his Best Oil Co. and enthusiastic as to its progress.

It will take another week to complete the new stores on West Twenty-eighth street. M. C. Ford's place needs only the finishing touches. George Saltford's big ice-box is already installed. The entire front of the big store of Cotsonas & Co. has been replaced and remodeled. The Geller Co. will begin improvements this week and Russin & Hanfling are pushing the changes at their place to a speedy completion.

As a parallel to the invasion of Twenty-eighth street by a Philadelphia wholesaler, Mr. Pierson, of the Cut Flower Co., says he is seriously considering the opening of a wholesale cut flower branch this fall in the City of Brotherly Love.

Charles Schenck and family are summering at White Lake, in the Catskills.

The Greek-American Florists' Supply Co. will open at 127 West Twenty-eighth street, occupying the entire second floor of the building. It is under efficient management and its field is wide.

R. T. Brown, manager of the Cottage Gardens Co., sailed Saturday, July 9, for his annual European trip.

John Krahl, foreman for Moore, Hentz & Nash, is away in his boat for a month's recreation on the Sound.

A fire last week at H. R. Crawbuck's, 370 Pearl street, Brooklyn, did about $200 damage, fully covered by insurance.

Bowling.

The bowlers to represent New York City at Rochester began practice Wednesday evening, July 6. The heat kept the attendance down. President Miller has announced his intention of participating in all future meetings and will be on hand every Wednesday. He is anxious that the New York club should do the society and his administration honor. The first three games resulted as follows:

Player.	1st	2d	3d	Av.
Fenrich	158	171	142	160
Manda	149	146	147	147
Scott	158	144	108	137
Shaw	133	124	139	132
Berry		121	173	147

Remember the date, every Wednesday evening, and the place, Thumm's alleys, Broadway and Thirty-first street. All members of the Florists' Club are invited to take part. Three test games are bowled each evening, and the five men with the best average will have the honor of representing New York at the convention bowling.

The Astorias have changed their name to the Long Island Florists' Bowling Club, and will practice every Tuesday afternoon until its members leave in W. H. Siebrecht's auto for the Flower City. This club insists upon preserving its own individuality and will strive for the honors, distinct from the New York Florists' Club. At the last meeting of the Astorias the averages in five games were: Donaldson, 175; Einsman, 156; Siebrecht, Sr., 155; Siebrecht, Jr., 153; Kessler, 153; Siebrecht, Henry, 121. Miesem, the star bowler of the team, is in Europe, but will be home early in August.

The Market.

For the last thirty days we have had practically no rain, but some exceedingly hot weather. For days at a stretch it has been from 95 to 104 degrees in the sun. Consequently stock is poor. Roses are small and soft. Carnations are small. Lilies are about the best flowers available. There has been a big demand for anything purple this week, as purple and white are the Elks' colors. Purple larkspur is selling readily at a good price, it being about the only good purple flower available. Purple peas also are in demand. A steady run of funeral work and an occasional wedding have kept the florists quite busy.

Various Notes.

Robert Watson is heels over head in the work of rebuilding his houses.

Wm. Hielscher disposed of his touring car at a pretty good figure after becoming an adept at the wheel.

Two stories have just been added to the already large building occupied by D. M. Ferry & Co. As the building covers nearly a block, this addition means a large increase in floor area.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taepke have returned from an extended honeymoon, spent in the East. They were well entertained by different members of the craft.

Mrs. Hugo Schroeter and her little son are visiting in Boston and Newport. At present they are staying with the Finlaysons on the beautiful estate of Larz Anderson, where Mr. Finlayson is in charge.

Purple and white are the predominating colors in Detroit this week, the Elks' annual convention being held here. Many of the florists downtown have elaborately decorated their store windows and store fronts to welcome the antlered herds. Friday, July 15, there is to be an automobile parade, when it is expected there will be over 1,000 autos in line. Many of these will be decorated, and some of the florists already have good orders.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange supplied many thousand yards of garland made of arborvitæ to the big stores for Elk decorations.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club is to be held at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange Monday evening, July 18. Lunch and refreshments will be provided by the entertainment committee, and a large attendance is looked for, as some important matters are to be settled.

The Market.

Business remains in the same condition as last week, little doing, and, as usual, the market is glutted with stock of all kinds in season. The retail stores say that the only business done by them last week was for funerals, but there was quite a bit of it. At the wholesale houses we see each morning large piles of carnations, sweet peas, roses and gladioli. These, with a few asters and a lot of outdoor stock, make up the daily market. The stock is more or less of poor quality, roses soft and carnations small and off color. Replanting time is now beginning at some of the large places, and this should soon make a scarcity in roses and carnations. Correct quotations are hard to give, as prices are changing almost daily.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Home Circle, as announced by Mrs. John Steidle, president, has been postponed until Thursday, July 28. The meeting should have taken place July 13, but, as originally planned, will be held at Mrs. Steidle's home in Central. The ladies should take the 1 o'clock Clayton car and all meet at the Autenreids hotel in Clayton. From there they will be taken in wagonettes to Mrs. Steidle's home. The husbands are also invited.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ellison have moved their residence out to Kirkwood for the summer and have abandoned their usual northern trip for this season at least.

President Matilda Meinhardt, of the Ladies' S. A. F., is spending ten days' vacation at Chautauqua, where they have a cottage.

Ludwig Zimmer has again leased his store at Biddle market. Mr. Zimmer says he had a splendid business season. He is contemplating quite a few alterations this summer.

The Retail Florists' Association has taken up the fight on crape-pullers and has appointed a committee of three florists from the south side to see what can be done to stop the practice.

W. C. Smith, Vincent Gorly and R. J. Windler left Monday, July 11, for Detroit, to attend the Elks' convention. All three promised to be back in time for the florists' picnic.

Adolph Brix and wife sold 316 feet of ground on Oxford Lane to the A. Brix Floral Co. last week. On this tract of land stand the greenhouses of the Brix Floral Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kuehn, with their little son, will spend a two weeks' vacation the last of this month in Milwaukee at the home of Mr. Kuehn's parents.

The craft has lost a valued friend in the death of Henry F. Kent, a patron of horticulture. Mr. Kent was a great lover of flowers and a close friend of the late Henry Shaw.

The hot weather of late has put a stop to bowling among the florists. It is hardly expected that a team will be made up to represent this city in the bowling tournament at Rochester next month.

Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., was a caller last week. Mr. Denker says he will make the trip to Rochester next month to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Albert Guma, of the George H. Angermueller force, is off for a few weeks' vacation. On his return Fred Alves will take two weeks, after which the boss takes his, which may be at Rochester next month.

The florists on South Grand avenue have agreed to close their places every other night during the week at 6 o'clock. North Grand avenue, west end and downtown florists, please take notice.

The wholesale florists have all agreed to close up half a day Thursday, July 21, so that all can attend the florists' picnic at Ramona park. A great many of the retailers will also close at noon on that day.

The trustees of the Florists' Club, who have the picnic in charge, say that everything is in readiness for this event. They report that all four wholesalers have donated $5 each for prizes, and that the prize list this year is larger than ever and prizes more valuable. A. J. Bentzen, Henry Ostertag and Charles E. Schoenle say they will be on hand early and take charge of the affairs and see that everybody has a good time. They have appointed Oscar Huettemann and George Schriefer to take charge of the ball game and umpire it. Oscar Kuehn will again be the official photographer, and Frank Fillmore, W. J. Pilcher and J. J. Beneke will form the reception committee. Handsome invitations have been issued and mailed to all in the trade, and it is to be hoped that all will give their employees a half holiday so they may attend.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

THE consolidated Boston seed houses will do business under the name of Fottler, Fiske & Rawson.

THE greater portion of the state of Nebraska received a good soaking July 7, the precipitation in some places reaching two inches.

F. L. HOGUE, president of the Hogue-Kellogg Co., Ventura, Cal., said July 5 that Lima bean crops in that district never had looked better at that date.

THE government crop report as of July 1 gave the condition of corn in Nebraska as 86, which is just the 10-year average, as against 91 a year ago, but the condition has improved considerably since the date of the report.

RAIN is needed in practically all the seed-growing sections east of the Rocky mountains. Crops are suffering, but there will be a rapid recovery of lost ground when good rains come, as they almost always do before it is too late.

THE Iowa pure seed law is to receive a test July 27 at Red Oak as applied to a farmer who sold seed corn to planters, in competition with the seedsmen, and is alleged to have delivered stock that did not come up to the standard required by the law.

TRAVELERS for northern seed houses have been prospecting in Texas and are sending home glowing reports of conditions there. Business with the seed houses there is excellent. There has been plenty of rain and market gardeners and truckers are feeling fine. Texas will have a big crop of corn this year—it no longer is a one crop state and seed orders there are not for packets or even pounds; Texas is one of the big seed buyers.

NEBRASKA CROP CONDITIONS.

William Emerson, manager of the Western Seed and Irrigation Co., reports generous rains throughout Nebraska last week and a marked improvement in the condition of crops growing for seed. Writing from Fremont July 9, he said:

"Nearly all sections of Nebraska have been favored with generous rains this past week, with cooler weather, and, we understand, the sections that needed rain the most have been favored with same.

"In this immediate vicinity we have had three good showers this week and a heavy shower this morning, and our crop reports from nearly all sections of Nebraska have been coming in, showing from fair to good stands in nearly all cases for vine seeds, but some small lots of corn were lost entirely during the cold, dry weather during May, in some cases necessitating replanting with other varieties, causing some of the corn crops to be late, although recent reports show that the corn is doing well.

"In some of the muskmelon and watermelon growing districts the long continued dry weather and high winds caused either partial stands or no stands whatever in some cases where the crops were blown out by the wind or cut off by the sand. We have been receiving reports this week, however, from these sections showing they have had liberal rains recently, which we trust will help the crops in those localities, so that they will not be total failures.

"While some of the crops will be late, we hope with favorable conditions the balance of the season to receive fair crops from most of our growers, although it is rather early to tell anything about deliveries."

HOLLAND SEED CROPS.

The seed growers in the Groningen district of Holland are well pleased with the situation to date. This district was favored by an exceptionally mild winter, the only loss of stock being on some low lands where there was too much moisture. The growing season thus far has been good and, with favorable weather at harvest, a much better yield than in 1909 is looked forward to.

Radish is an especially important crop in this district and has suffered as much as any, though prospects still are generally good. A considerable quantity of turnip is grown and, while the winter loss was insignificant, only a moderate yield is expected, insects having done considerable harm. Another important crop is spinach, of which a fine crop is in prospect, except in some fields which have been troubled with wireworm. In common with American growers of peas, a fair yield of early sorts is expected, with later varieties short. Of garden beans only a short crop is expected, the stand being thin, and growers anticipate firm prices. Grass seeds are a rather important feature and crops generally are excellent this season.

IN SOUTHERN MICHIGAN.

Conditions in southern Michigan are not unsatisfactory to the seed growers. The vine seeds, radish and tomato are getting along as well as usual. Writing from Jackson, S. M. Isbell & Co. say: "We do not believe the hot weather has done us any damage to speak of. Of course, we do not grow peas at all in this locality, and do not include them in this statement. Our principal crops here are vine seeds and tomato, and the heat is all right for them, providing we have enough moisture. Just now we would like a good shower, but nothing is particularly suffering as yet. All crops are progressing rapidly."

FERRYS INCREASE CAPITAL.

Increase in capitalization by the sum of $250,000 was authorized at a special meeting of the directors of D. M. Ferry & Co., held at Detroit, June 22. The meeting also authorized a renewal of the incorporation for the limit set by law.

The addition to capital raises the amount from $800,000 to $1,050,000, increasing the number of shares from 32,000 to 42,000, of a par value of $25 per share. All the new stock will be taken by the company's present stockholders.

"We have been putting a good deal of money into new buildings and additions to our plant and it seemed only right we should increase the capital to offset this outlay," said Lem W. Bowen, president and general manager. "We are planning no further extensions at present."

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending July 2 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Anise	2	$ 50	Lycopodium	25	$1,897
Caraway	100	612	Mustard	95	701

Grass	336	1,374

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $3,469.

THE PACK OF PEAS.

A short pack of peas with the canners may not mean a short crop for seed purposes, although the similar conditions are likely to occur together, but the results for the canning season always are of interest to the seedsmen. The pack is pretty well over. One Wisconsin packer reports but sixty cases of Alaskas to the acre, against ninety to 110 cases under ordinary weather conditions. Other packers in that state estimate an output of but fifty per cent on early and thirty to sixty per cent on late varieties, according to locations. The peas also promise to be uneven in quality, owing to lack of moisture.

Why the seed supply may be better than the pack is shown by the references to get-away crops in the letters from several packers: "We have had extremely dry, hot weather. To illustrate the condition here, will say we started packing peas on Monday and have already jumped 200 acres and left them for seed purposes. I understand they are having the same conditions in many sections of this state."

A leading packer in Michigan writes: "We feel at the present time if we harvest fifty per cent of a pea crop we will do well. This is about the way things are in this state all over as far as peas go. Wisconsin, I understand, is in much worse shape than we are. I had a man over here today from that state and he told me the best crops of peas were in Warsaw, and in that vicinity they would not harvest much more than fifty per cent of a crop at best. Our Alaskas are coming in all at once. We are doing everything we can to save our crop. The first, second and third sowing are coming all together, and this is the case with the entire crop of Alaska peas in Michigan and Wisconsin."

THE FIELD SEED BUSINESS.

Slightly over 50,000 mail orders for seeds were filled this season by the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., representing a good gain over the previous season and affording funds for a dividend of 8 per cent, declared July

1. At the same time Henry Field was reëlected president and manager of the business, with Harry Eaton secretary and treasurer. The board of directors consists, in addition, of A. L. P. Thompson, G. C. Mitchell, D. S. Lake, E. S. Welch and Elbert Read. Messrs. Lake and Welch are widely known in the nursery trade, in which they are engaged, Mr. Welch having, in fact, been elected vice-president of the American Association of Nurserymen at the convention at Denver in June.

Shenandoah is proud of the Field Seed concern for the money it brings to the town and largely leaves there. For instance, the Field postage bill helped the local postmaster make a showing to the extent of $13,000; the payroll last year was $24,000, and $45,000 was paid to local farmers on corn contracts.

BULB-GROWING IN FRANCE.

Toulon Is the Center.

Shipments of flowering bulbs from these parts to the United States during the past few years have been larger in number than formerly, but in many instances the values of the invoices have been smaller, says U. S. Consular Agent F. M. Mansfield in a report made public July 5 by the Department of Commerce. The same, he says, is probably true of shipments to other countries. This has been caused by the shortage in the larger sizes of narcissus and hyacinth bulbs, the prices of which, continually tending to increase, make up the greater sum total of the amount of the invoices. From this it is to be inferred that the demand for the finest qualities is constantly increasing, and this of itself should tend to stimulate the American grower to reproduce the varieties which are sought so greatly.

Growers Seek Direct Market.

There is a growing disposition on the part of the small grower to find his market direct, without the intervention of the middleman, the wholesaler, or shipper. There are many difficulties in his way, but, so far as relations with buyers in the United States are concerned, there is no reason why a producer of even so small a quantity of bulbs as 50,000 or 100,000 might not, if he could finance the affair, open up an outlet until the industry in the United States (at Bellingham, Wash., or elsewhere) can actually be made to compete with the product grown here in the south of France. While syndication has been the means by which the bulb-growing and cut-flower industry has been developed in the Department of the Var, it has its disadvantages, and many small growers are beginning to see the advantages of dealing directly with the foreign consumers. One such is known to have sold the first year of such direct business but 50,000 bulbs to a dealer in the United States, but for the second year the order was increased to 125,000, and the present year sees a standing order of 250,000 bulbs. The order is placed under certain restrictions and conditions as to price and quality, and is intended to cover the grower's entire crop.

The wholesaler naturally endeavors to hold his source of supply unto himself. Sometimes he holds the grower in such a way as to make competition out of the question—by advances on the growing crop, by supplying seed bulbs to the small grower for planting, and taking in return all the crop exceeding a certain dimension, leaving the grower the small bulbs for replanting, propagating, and developing the following year for his own profit—but, generally speaking, the relations between the grower and the buyer are those of price and quality.

Expenses and Profits.

The crop does not always produce the same results, even under similar conditions, whether with respect to quantity or with regard to quality, but in general when a narcissus bulb has produced, as the result of a single planting, several seasons perhaps in the ground, say six or seven bulbilles or detached bulbs, it is invariably worthless except as a reproducer, the flower that it produces being inferior. On a plantation where the bulbs have been planted only one season, and three or four bulbilles have been produced, it is reasonable to suppose that, upon replanting, all will produce blooms of a satisfying and even gratifying luxuriance. In general all that is specifically noted with regard to the methods of marketing the narcissus bulbs applies also to hyacinths, freesias, Lilium candidum, etc. Narcissus bulbs usually produce a first-class crop of three-fifths of those planted (3,000 to the are=119.6 square yards), which approach five inches, and are marketable at an average pric of 25 francs ($4.83) per thousand, while the other two-fifths are valued at only 12 francs ($2.32) per thousand. expense of cultivation is estimated at 20 francs per hectare (or 100 ares = 2.471 acres), which leaves a profit of 40 francs ($7.72) per are, or 4,000 francs ($772) per hectare (2.471 acres). This represents the profit of the grower who sells on the spot to the dealer and shipper, the latter assuming all further expenses of marketing, but who demand fifty additional bulbs per thousand purchased for contingent shrinkage.

Methods of Irrigation.

The bulb gardens and flower plantations of the Department of the Var are all, as are the plantations devoted to the growing of early vegetables, dependent upon artificial irrigation. Soil and climate, favorable as they are hereabouts, must be supplemented by an adequate system of irrigation of some sort, or the crops fall off considerably. A means of frequent watering is indispensable. The rainfall is not abundant, but in the spring and autumn it often comes in a sufficient quantity to be of great benefit, though even at these times the plantations may suffer greatly for lack of moisture. For exploitation on a more or less extended scale little attempt is made to supplant nature's water supply, but the flower and bulb and seed growers and the truck gardens are dependent at all times on artificial means of raising and distributing irrigating water.

All is open-air culture here, the only artificial protection given against the chills of night and possible though infrequent frosts being in few instances by glazed sashes, or more frequently by straw mattings suspended over the growing vegetables, fruits, and flowers, but open at the sides. In addition, where even this protection is not thought necessary, there may be a windbreak of cypress or a lean-to of a sort of heavy matting of reeds.

The distribution of the water supply is sometimes by flumes or sluices of wood or concrete, more often by mere ditches cut around through the beds, seldom by drains or gutters of tile or pipe laid on the surface or below it. A great loss continually goes on with regard to the water supply as furnished at the well or pumps.

Almost invariably the water hoisting machinery in use is of the variety called noria, an adaptation with little improvement of that used in biblical times, and since in the Holy Land, Egypt, Algeria, and Tunisia. It is practically an endless-chain bucket arrangement hanging down into the well, the gourds or pottery receptacles of the Arab and Berber having given way to zinc pan-like pails.

If the noria is small it is worked by one or two persons, or the whole family may turn the great geared pole windlass for an hour or two each day. In this case the area worked is of small proportions, and much of the flower culture here is on this scale. With a larger noria a donkey, mule, or horse is used, sometimes a tandem of two. Raising water in this manner does not seem particularly arduous, but three horses per day are readily tired out thereat, as is the case with a noria recently installed. This primitive and cumbersome machine has thirty buckets attached to its chain, emptying from each bucket nearly eight gallons of water at a time, but it is impossible to run it with less than three horses per day. A greater quantity of water was used on the flower farm where this large machine was recently installed than on any other property visited, and the machine was considered the most efficient of its kind that could be secured.

Vegetable Forcing.

VEGETABLE GROWERS TO MEET.

Sam W. Severance, secretary, states that the third annual convention of the Greenhouse Vegetable Growers' and Market Gardeners' Association of America will be held at Grand Rapids, Mich., September 27 to 29, and promises to be the most successful ever held by that organization. A splendid program is being prepared and subjects of interest to the vegetable forcer, market gardener and truck farmer will have a place in it. Grand Rapids is the home of Grand Rapids Lettuce and Davis Perfect Cucumber, and the convention will afford an opportunity to visit the famous forcing establishments in that city.

STRAWBERRY RUNNERS.

Should strawberry runners be nipped before and during fruiting time, to retain the strength in the plants?

J. J. H.

Little would be gained by removing the runners from the strawberry plants during the fruiting period. Anything gained by so doing would be more than offset by the delay in securing runners for fruiting crowns for the following year. I always like to get runners as early as possible and plan to commence layering in pots as soon as the fruit is picked. Early in August is a good time to prepare and plant a new bed. If strong layers from pots are used, a fine crop can be had the following season by adopting the hill system of culture, in preference to matted rows, which are generally adopted commercially.

PACIFIC COAST.

Florists of Portland and the Pacific Coast will be interested in the illustration showing the store of R. C. Cook, Portland, which appears on another page of this issue.

STUDY OF PLANT DISEASES.

E. J. Wickson, of Berkeley, director of the Southern California Pathological Laboratory, has announced a plan for the coming season's work which is of great importance to the horticultural interests of the state, as it deals with some of the greatest problems confronting us at this time. A brief resume of the schedule is as follows:

The effort to circumvent the walnut blight will continue, with a search for such immune varieties as have been gathered and planted in the vicinity of the plant disease laboratory at Whittier, including careful exploration for trees which are productive in spite of the blight in various parts of the state. Scions are taken from such trees and grafted into various stocks, so that systematic observations can be made.

Investigations in orange growing. Particular attention will be given to brown spot, which has caused great losses in shipping; also gum diseases and yellowing of citrus fruits. Fertilization will be studied through field experiments and laboratory tests.

Pomological study of the navel oranges, with a view to the selection of improved types; a study of the phases of development of the fruit, and similar research extended to other citrus varieties.

The investigation of the life histories of the more important insects of citrus fruits will be continued.

The culture and commercial handling of lemons will be investigated on a broader scale. The disease known as anthracnose, or wither tip, will receive particular attention.

Studies and field tests of protective treatments of leading commercial vegetables will be extended.

Crown gall, or root knot, of stone fruits will receive systematic study and curative treatment.

The test of peaches with a view to securing varieties of more regular growth and production, under conditions which invite unreasonable activity or dormancy, will be continued.

Propagation and growth tests of various fruits and timber trees and other plants with sewage irrigation, in cooperation with the city of Pasadena, upon a farm owned for that purpose by the city.

Increased equipment of the plant disease laboratory at Whittier and the citrus experiment station at Riverside will be secured, through appropriations for that purpose by the California legislature of 1909.

Especial work under the above appropriations, for the investigations on the conditions and problems attending the culture of crops in the Imperial valley and similar adjacent sections, will be pursued. G.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

It seems that the less said about business the better, unless one is not particular as to what he makes a record of. The weather continues to be rather warm and the nights quite cool. The warm weather has had the effect of bringing all kinds of stock into town in large lots. This is not quite true of roses, however, as this flower is not much in evidence and those that are shown are of poor quality. This is to be expected at this time, but the dear public does not understand it and as a consequence there is a good demand for any fairly good roses.

Carnations are good, but the price is low. Sweet peas still sell well, but there is a great scarcity of long-stemmed stock. The newer sorts of gladioli are plentiful and move easily. Dahlias are not yet at their best, but promise to be of elegant quality and

Various Notes.

A. Rolker, of August Rolker & Sons, is in town and has been calling on some of the larger growers. Mr. Rolker will go southward in a few days, to see that portion of the state, and will depart for the east later by the way of Portland and Seattle.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has finished the first range of glass and is at present constructing a large area of lath houses.

Charles Leopold, one of San Francisco's pioneer florists, has taken charge of the new store of the H. M. Sanborn Co., in Berkeley.

William Heuer, recently of Portland, Ore., is in town, with the intention of locating permanently in the neighborhood of San Francisco.

C. H. Perkins, of the Jackson & Perkins Co., of Newark, N. Y., is in town.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society has announced an excursion to Santa Cruz, July 17. Frank Pelicano is chairman of the committee, which fact insures a good time for all who attend.

Andrew Johnson, well known by the gardening fraternity in this region, is on a visit to this city, from which he has been absent for several years. He has spent the last two seasons in the city of Mexico.

Fred Buss, of the California Seed Co., has returned to town after a two weeks' stay in the San Benito mountains.

F. Ludemann has removed from his old location near the Presidio and is now at 1810 Lyon street, on the corner of California street. G.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

NURSERY interests in the southwest are pleased with the growing conditions so far this season.

THE Davis Nursery & Seed Co. has removed its headquarters from Madison, N. Y., to Utica, N. Y., where the offices are located in the Arcade building.

LEON MANFROY recently severed his connection with the Leon Nurseries, at Miami, Fla., and Leon G. Dermigny is now the sole proprietor of the business.

JOHN C. OLMSTED, Brookline, Mass., spent the last days of June at Dayton, O., where he is planning a general system of parks for the local commissioners.

THE Western Nursery Co., of Logan, Utah, has been incorporated, with a capital of $10,000. F. E. Clark is president; H. C. Clark, vice-president and general manager; George D. Cardon, secretary, and Katherine S. Clark, treasurer.

THE nursery business of Frank Kadlec, at Evanston, Ill., has now been incorporated, under the name of the Frank Kadlec Nursery Co., with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are Frank Kadlec, Harry T. Kadlec and Herbert H. Kordt.

THE Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., of Sioux City, Ia., has accepted a proposition made by the Commercial Club of Colome, one of the new towns in the Rosebud country of South Dakota, and will start a nursery in the edge of that town.

FREDERICK W. KELSEY'S description of the park system of Essex county, New Jersey, said to be the first in the United States undertaken under county control, has been reprinted in pamphlet form from the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, where it had its first publication.

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the American Nurserymen's Protective Association was held at Denver, Colo., June 9. The reports of officers showed the year to have been one of increased activity and prosperity, both for the association and its members. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; vice-president, W. F. Heikes, Huntsville, Ala.; secretary, Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.; executive committee, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; section No. 1, Charles J. Brown, Rochester, N. Y.; section No. 2, H. B. Chase, Huntsville, Ala.; section No. 3, Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y.; section No. 4, D. S. Lake, Shenandoah, Ia.; section No. 5, E. R. Taylor, Topeka, Kan.; section No. 6, J. S. Kerr, Sherman, Tex.

UNITED STATES NURSERY LANDS.

[A paper by W. H. Stark, of Louisiana, Mo., read at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Denver, and continued from the Review of July 7.]

The Tendency to Specialize.

Specialized propagation is the cheapest, and produces the best stock. It is becoming more of a practice each year, which makes for keener competition. No one place will grow a complete assortment, and the retail nurseryman who will furnish the best stock to the customer is the one whose trees are grown in that part of the country best adapted to their growth and where the men have reduced the propagation of that one thing to a science. The successful grower is a specialist in his line. The belt along Lake Erie can grow finely rooted grape, gooseberry and currant. Vincennes is especially favorable for cherry. In the south cheap labor and land give them a great advantage in propagation of June-budded peach. Kansas is the source of a large per cent of the native apple and pear stocks.

However, France is the source of supply of the bulk of fruit tree stocks for the nursery world. California can and should grow many of the roses, from hardwood cuttings. Why strive to compete with these growers? The retailer who grows the strongest and hardiest trees must eventually become a specialist in one or more things and secure the balance of his list from other specialists. Frequently northern buyers are prejudiced in favor of trees which have the "home-grown brand," but which were really produced by a grower in another section of the country, who had the right soil and climate for producing the best trees. To carry specialization to the most profitable point, it is necessary to do so on a permanent basis, to own the land and control the labor. Specialization becomes necessary when a trade is established and when competition is a question of cheaper and more efficient production.

Greater Economy and Less Risk.

In a new trade the greatest net profits are made by the man who succeeds in turning his money over the oftenest, regardless of most other considerations. The margin between cost of production and selling price is so wide that he can afford to disregard many small items if he can only increase the sales. That was true of the bicycle business. It is true of the automobile business today, and it will be true of the manufacture of flying machines. We have already passed this stage in the nursery business, and the profit comes from the small economies and short cuts in all branches of the work. For instance, it is only by owning the land that you can afford to furnish houses for your workmen and keep a store so that they can get supplies at cost. Such a force of laborers cause less trouble and are more efficient and better trained. Teams receive better care if each teamster lives near the barn and looks after his own mules or horses.

As the business becomes settled, many of the risks should be gradually eliminated, and yet there are few occupations, outside of making moonshine whisky, which have the same number of risks as that of growing and marketing trees. Stock must be purchased a year or more ahead and planted for a fickle and inconsistent market two or three years later. During the entire two or three years they are at any time liable to severe injury or destruction by insects, drought, frosts and what not. Then, when the trees are dug, along comes the inspector and exclaims, "Knots! Take 'em to the brush pile." These risks will always have to be taken into consideration. The ownership of land equalizes the loss from such risks by enabling the grower to distribute it over a longer period.

It is not possible, however, to eliminate all of the many risks in the business, and the customer should pay a price which covers the cost of producing blocks of trees where the stands are poor. Prices should not be based alone on the cost of growing a block of trees where the stand is ninety-eight per cent.

Upholding the Prices.

The prices received for trees are too low—lower in proportion than practically any other commodity, when you consider the cost of production, the large risks, and an erratic demand changing like the shifting sand bars of our Missouri river. This is partly the fault of the men who place too low an estimate on these factors, but they pay the penalty, and are being constantly eliminated by a natural process of selection. Also part of the blame for unnecessarily low prices must be placed on the man who increases his propagation faster than his marketing ability, and weakens his business by spreading out over too much leased land. The balance of the blame for the low prices will have to be shouldered by the rest of you. Although you do not come in either of the above classes, you allow them to establish the low standard of prices.

The nursery business is largely one of faith, both for the buyer and seller, and is most successful on a permanent basis. Formerly, when the industry was less experienced and the conditions different, nursery centers were established by local market facilities or by the individuality of one man who developed the business; others sprang up around him, to take advantage of the labor which he had trained and the reputation which he had created for the district. At one time a large percentage of stock was grown in western New York; central Illinois was also an old-time nursery center. But now it is a question primarily of land conveniently located to labor and railroads. There are many such sections in the United States adapted to nursery purposes, and some of them are little known.

Some Good Nursery Sections.

There are tracts in the Connecticut river valley where the soil is good. They have an abundance of rainfall and protecting snows in the winter. Farther south the alluvial sandy soils of the Delmarvia peninsula produce peach and apple. Western New York and the Lake Erie belt are well known. The Appalachian mountain districts offer some good land. In Florida the pecan is easily grown. The same is true of many sections along the entire northern part of the Gulf shore. The peach of the south has already been mentioned; also the cherry districts. Michigan produces strawberry plants, raspberry and blackberry. The Ozarks produce good apple. Kansas has a monopoly on the American grown apple seedlings. The gravelly lake regions of Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin grow good gooseberry and currant. The irrigated valleys of the west have a great deal of land which produces fine root systems and is conveniently situated. Some of the valleys of the southwest are especially adapted to the Vinifera grape, and are free from phylloxera. The nursery business has made rapid growth in Montana. The irrigated and non-irrigated valleys of the northwest are the center of a large fruit industry. Everywhere there are the opportunities for business and for securing land.

Do not get the impression that I think ownership of land is a cure-all for every ill of the nursery business. It is not, but it helps to remove the trade from the realms of speculation, tends toward permanency, economical production and safe marketing at fair prices.

You should own land if you are to meet future competition most successfully.

A BLUE ROSE

The Greatest Rose Novelty of the Century

It flowered with us this season and was greatly admired.

The New Rambler (Violet Blue), hailed by the German rose growers as the forerunner of a genuinely cornflower blue rose, is a seedling of Crimson Rambler, very vigorous and hardy, and free blooming.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business has been dull during the last week; no more so than is generally expected at this season, but noticeable after the steady trade that has continued up to the present. Several large funerals, however, have pieced out well. Sweet peas are now at their height and, while not an actual glut on the market, are in great plenty. Carnations are off. Roses are equal to all demands. Prices range at the usual schedule for the summer season.

Various Notes.

Many of the florists have joined the half-holiday closing movement and close their stores at noon Fridays during July and August.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island is arranging to pay a visit to Rhode Island College, at Kingston, on Monday, July 18.

Stewart Ritchie had the decorations for the Riggs-French wedding, at Newport, last week.

William Appleton is under the weather, the excessive heat aggravating his troubles.

Albert Holscher, of Olneyville, is bringing in some fine sweet peas in light colors.

Albert Bavier, who has been in charge of the flower department of L. Dimond & Sons, Inc., this city, has severed his connection therewith and is now at his home in Meriden, Conn.

John M. Greene, of Harrison street, this city, has purchased a lot of land on Waldo street, with a small greenhouse thereon, formerly belonging to the late W. A. Munroe. He is preparing to move his stock to the new place, which he intends to enlarge and improve.

M. Walsh, for several years with William Hay, Arlington, is now with the new firm of Burke & Burns.

At the last meeting of the board of aldermen of Newport, Arend Brandt and Patrick Reynolds were drawn as grand jurors, and James Matson, Joseph Gibson and John Baumgartner as petit jurors.

Maxwell Villers, with Johnston Bros., on Dorrance street, is enjoying all his leisure time this summer in canoeing on the Pawtuxet river.

W. S. Pino has gone with his family to his cottage at Quonochontaug for the summer. This is on the south coast of Rhode Island, overlooking the Atlantic ocean.

Simon Peterson, of East Providence, has been quite busy with funeral work the last week or so.

H. C. Neubrand, with W. S. Pino, has been spending his vacation at Rochester and Webster, N. Y.

A range of greenhouses is being erected on the estate of Arthur Curtis Brown, at Newport, by Hitchings & Co., of New York.

William E. Chappell had several pieces for the Walter Darby funeral.

Eugene McCarron furnished a number of fine designs for the funeral of Robert N. Walker.

Hitchings & Co., of New York, are erecting a range of greenhouses on the Grosvenor estate, at Newport.

Carl Jurgens, of Newport, has abandoned his place on Mill street and is giving his entire attention to his new range at Middletown. He will set apart several of his Middletown houses to the growing of valley.

Robert Vanmeader, of this city, has purchased a farm at Swansea on which there are several small greenhouses, which he contemplates adding to in the near future. W. H. M.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business is about the same as usual at this time of year, with little doing except funeral work, which has been good all through the season. Outdoor flowers are quite plentiful. Carnations are still in the market, but they are small and of poor quality. They retail at 50 cents per dozen. Roses bring from $1 to $1.50 per dozen, and sweet peas, which are in heavy supply, go for almost nothing; the best long-stem blooms can be had for 10 cents per bunch, and from 25 to 50 cents per hundred is the general price.

There is plenty of candytuft, sweet alyssum and other flowers to help out these hot summer days. Rambler and Dorothy Perkins roses are grand sights. These two old favorites seem to grow more popular each year, and nearly every yard, regardless of size, has at least one of these climbers.

The plant trade is practically ended, and everyone is well satisfied with the results. Asters will soon be in bloom and will help the cut flower business. Young carnations in the field look fairly good, although last week was exceptionally hot and some good rains are badly needed.

Various Notes.

Most of the uptown stores now close at noon Wednesdays for a half holiday, and at 6 o'clock on other evenings.

E. Y. Peirce has finished planting his roses and mums. He has between 4,000 and 5,000 of the latter. Mr. Peirce reports business unusually good for the summer months.

A. B. Hathaway has some of the finest sweet peas ever seen here.

Peter Murray is building a new range of greenhouses at Fairhaven, and says that business is fine. His landscape gardening work is increasing every year.

All the stores closed at noon on the Fourth. No extra business is reported for this holiday. W. L.

Bloomington, Ill.—F. A. Baller says that business this spring has been good, as estimated by the demand for stock, but has not been profitable for him, on account of the late frosts, which destroyed his fruit and his outdoor crop of flowers. The prospects now are reassuring, but the spring of 1910, he says, will be unpleasantly remembered by him.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business was in keeping with the season last week. With the exception of flowers for a large funeral at Fortville, there was little doing. However, this funeral helped out considerably, as Bertermann Bros. Co. made several trips with their auto delivery truck and A. Wiegand & Sons sent enough work to fill two express cars on the interurban.

Various Notes.

E. Roepke, of the Roepke-Rieman Co., is back after a ten days' vacation at Sandusky and Put in Bay.

Homer Wiegand is somewhere on the road to Detroit in his automobile, where he has gone to attend the Elks' convention this week.

Frank Hasselman, of the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co., is back from a two weeks' stay in New York.

Nixon Gano, of Martinsville, came to the city to attend the meeting of the State Florists' Association last week.

George Wiegand is back at work after a short vacation.

Alfred Brandt reports his new automobile a success.

A number of the members of the State Florists' Association are going to Winona, Wednesday, July 20, to attend the meeting of the Northern Indiana Florists' Association.

Herman Junge, of the Smith & Young Co., Cumberland, thinks he has the best device for hauling soil for filling benches that he has seen to date. It is a car, running on steel tracks, which can be dumped and put back in position in less than a minute. Mr. Junge intends to get a patent on this car and then put it on the market.

Hans Kipke spent a few days in Chicago recently.

John Rieman says fishing up the river has been poor so far this season.

E. A. Nelson will pitch his camp on Eagle Creek next week. H. L. W.

Northampton, Mass.—H. W. Field has bought an extensive tract of the Watson estate, fronting on Prospect street, has removed the fence and is preparing to merge the tract with his land just below it. The land extends from the street to the woods in the rear. Until it is needed for his own business, Mr. Field intends to permit the use of part of the tract as a playground for the children of the neighborhood. Already some swings have been put up.

Heacock's Large Palms in Cedar Tubs—Durable, Serviceable, and Good for Lots of Rough Handling.

The "Heacock Way" of growing Palms means a lot more than developing perfect plants, though we're proud enough of that. It means growing them—the large sizes especially—in substantially built tubs of Virginia cedar, well-hooped and neatly painted. We have found, by careful trial, that the larger sizes do better in tubs than in pots and hereafter will supply our Kentias, in 7 inches and above, in these cedar tubs.

You will appreciate this fact because you can handle the outfit as you please, without danger of breaking it; you can carry it around by the top with the assurance that the tub won't fall—and you know that a plant never fits rightly, once the pot has come off. Therefore the "tubbed" palm grows, and ships, and handles, better than the potted one, and gives better satisfaction in every way. Your customers, too, will find them just as ornamental as jardinieres, and easier to handle.

Putting our palms in tubs because it makes them grow better, is only a single instance of the pains we take to grow Palms that will really succeed—make money for you and please your trade. The fact that we have been serving the same customers season after season for years, and that we are continually adding to our list of new ones, rather indicates to us that our palms are what the trade wants. Are you with us? If not, we'll welcome an opportunity to demonstrate!

The Market.

We are having extremely warm weather, after a splendid rain a few days ago. June was a good month for the florists, with many weddings and several commencements. Flowers are plentiful. Home-grown Beauties are fine. Speciosum lilies are seen in some of the stores and add much to the general appearance.

GAILLARDIAS.

What can I do for my gaillardias? I have quite a number just beginning to bloom. There are long green worms boring holes in the stalks and destroying the plants. I pulled the first plants affected and burned them, but there are more worms. What can I do to get rid of them? C. B.

I do not know what particular caterpillar is causing the damage to your gaillardias, but they undoubtedly can be destroyed by spraying. Arsenate of lead would be the best solution to use, at the rate of four pounds to fifty gallons of water, but this would whiten and somewhat disfigure the plants while blooming. Paris green at the rate of one ounce to fifteen gallons of water, or white hellebore, one ounce to three gallons of water, thoroughly sprayed over the plants, should clean out the pests, provided the poison is not washed off by rain for a few hours after being applied. C. W.

FERTILIZER FOR SWEET PEAS.

What amount of bone meal should be put in the soil for sweet peas in a house 23x200, which has 3,200 square feet of bench space? What amount of pulverized sheep manure or shredded cattle manure should be put in the same house in lieu of rotted manure, the soil being rich from outside manuring?
C. G. P.

I would not advise the use of bone meal in the benches for sweet peas at sowing or planting time, unless the bone has been mixed in the soil for some time previously. A much better plan would be to apply it in the form of a top-dressing when the plants show the need of some food, preferably when they are flowering. For 3,200 square feet of bench space use 150 pounds as a top-dressing, loosening the surface after applying it and before watering.

If you use pulverized sheep manure and it is a good brand, a ton would not be too much to apply, as sweet peas like a generous soil. Of shredded cattle manure, it would be necessary to use half as much again of it to accomplish the same results.

If your soil has previously been well manured, the foregoing quantities well spaded in or mixed with the soil before being placed in the benches should suffice. One or two top-dressings of sheep manure or fine bone applied during the growing season are beneficial. I would use half a ton of the sheep manure at each top-dressing. C. W.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE COAL MARKET.

The Illinois mines, with the exception of a few in the Belleville district, have been shut down on account of a miners' strike since March 31, and this has had a tendency to keep up the price on all bituminous coal because the supply has been restricted chiefly to the West Virginia and Indiana fields. However, it looks as though a settlement will be reached and work resumed sometime before August 1. This will be none too soon, as the shipping of coal is likely to be exceptionally heavy in the early fall, in an endeavor to forestall a shortage of cars that threatens to be even worse than last year.

There are now only a third as many idle coal cars as there were a year ago at this time, and the indications point to a heavy increase in coal buying in the next few months. It seems, therefore, as though nothing can prevent a more serious car famine this fall than has been experienced in many years. It therefore behooves the florists to have an ample stock on hand at the beginning of the season and run no risks of a freeze-up next winter. It is almost certain that the price will advance steadily from now on, so the wise ones will buy now, thereby saving much money, time and worry.

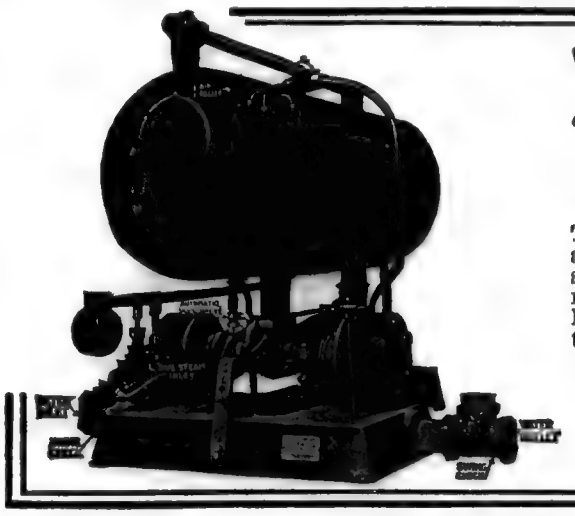
USING 4-INCH PIPE.

I intend to build two even-span houses, running east and west. Each house will be 20x86 feet, twelve feet to the ridge and six feet to the gutters. They will be connected. The north wall will be built of 8-inch concrete blocks to the gutter. The east gables will be glass down to within three feet of the ground, and the lower three feet will be concrete blocks. The south wall will have three feet of glass and three feet of double 1-inch boards. The west gables will be joined to a shed.

I intend to use 4-inch pipe, as I have some of it on hand. Will two overhead flows and four returns under the benches be sufficient in each house, to heat them to 55 degrees, with the outside temperature at 10 degrees below zero? Should the flow pipes rise or fall to the farther end of the houses? Any information you can give me will be appreciated. I am located in southeastern Wisconsin. A. R.

To heat the north house, seven 4-inch pipes will answer. Of these, two should be flows and the others returns. The extra return should be on the exposed side of the house. The south house, which has three feet of glass in the side wall, should have eight 4-inch pipes. Either two, three or four can be flows, according to the arrangement of the benches.

The best circulation can be secured when the flow pipes have a slight fall, but, if the boiler is below the level, it is often more convenient to give a rise to the flows when 4-inch pipe is used.



A SMALL HOUSE.

Will you please tell me how to pipe a greenhouse, 18x38 feet; five feet six inches high on the south side, seven feet high on the north side and fourteen feet high in the center, with glass in both ends? There will be two benches, each six feet wide, with a walk eighteen inches wide at the sides and a 3-foot walk in the center. My boiler has a capacity of 450 feet. How many 1¼-inch, 1½-inch or 2-inch pipes will be needed? What will be the best way to heat it to 70 degrees at 20 degrees below zero? It is Wisconsin climate. The flows are 2-inch pipe. The boiler will be down about two and one-half feet below the return coil. W. I. S.

It is inferred from the size of your plant that hot water is the style of heating to be used. On this basis, using 1½-inch pipe with 2-inch flow pipes or risers, it will be necessary to install twenty-one lines of 1½-inch pipe to maintain a temperature of 70 degrees in this house, with water in the boiler at 180 degrees, when it is 20 degrees below zero outdoors. F. R.

THREE VIOLET HOUSES.

I have three violet houses, 18x100 feet and seven feet to the ridge, with three feet of board wall on the north side and two feet on the south. I should greatly appreciate your kindness if you could tell me what system of piping would be best to use for hot water. I have a lot of 3-inch and 2-inch pipes, and should like to use them. The boiler pit is at the end of the middle house, and is three feet deep; I could not get it deeper, as the ground is low. There is a space of five feet between each two houses. My idea is to run a 3-inch flow to the end of the north house and one

"DETROIT" AUTOMATIC RETURN STEAM TRAPS

"We have been using two of your 'Detroit' Traps the past winter on a Gravity System and find they keep the pipe clear of condensation, therefore making the return do as much as the flow. We are able to heat with less number of pipe than formerly and keep the houses far more even in temperature."

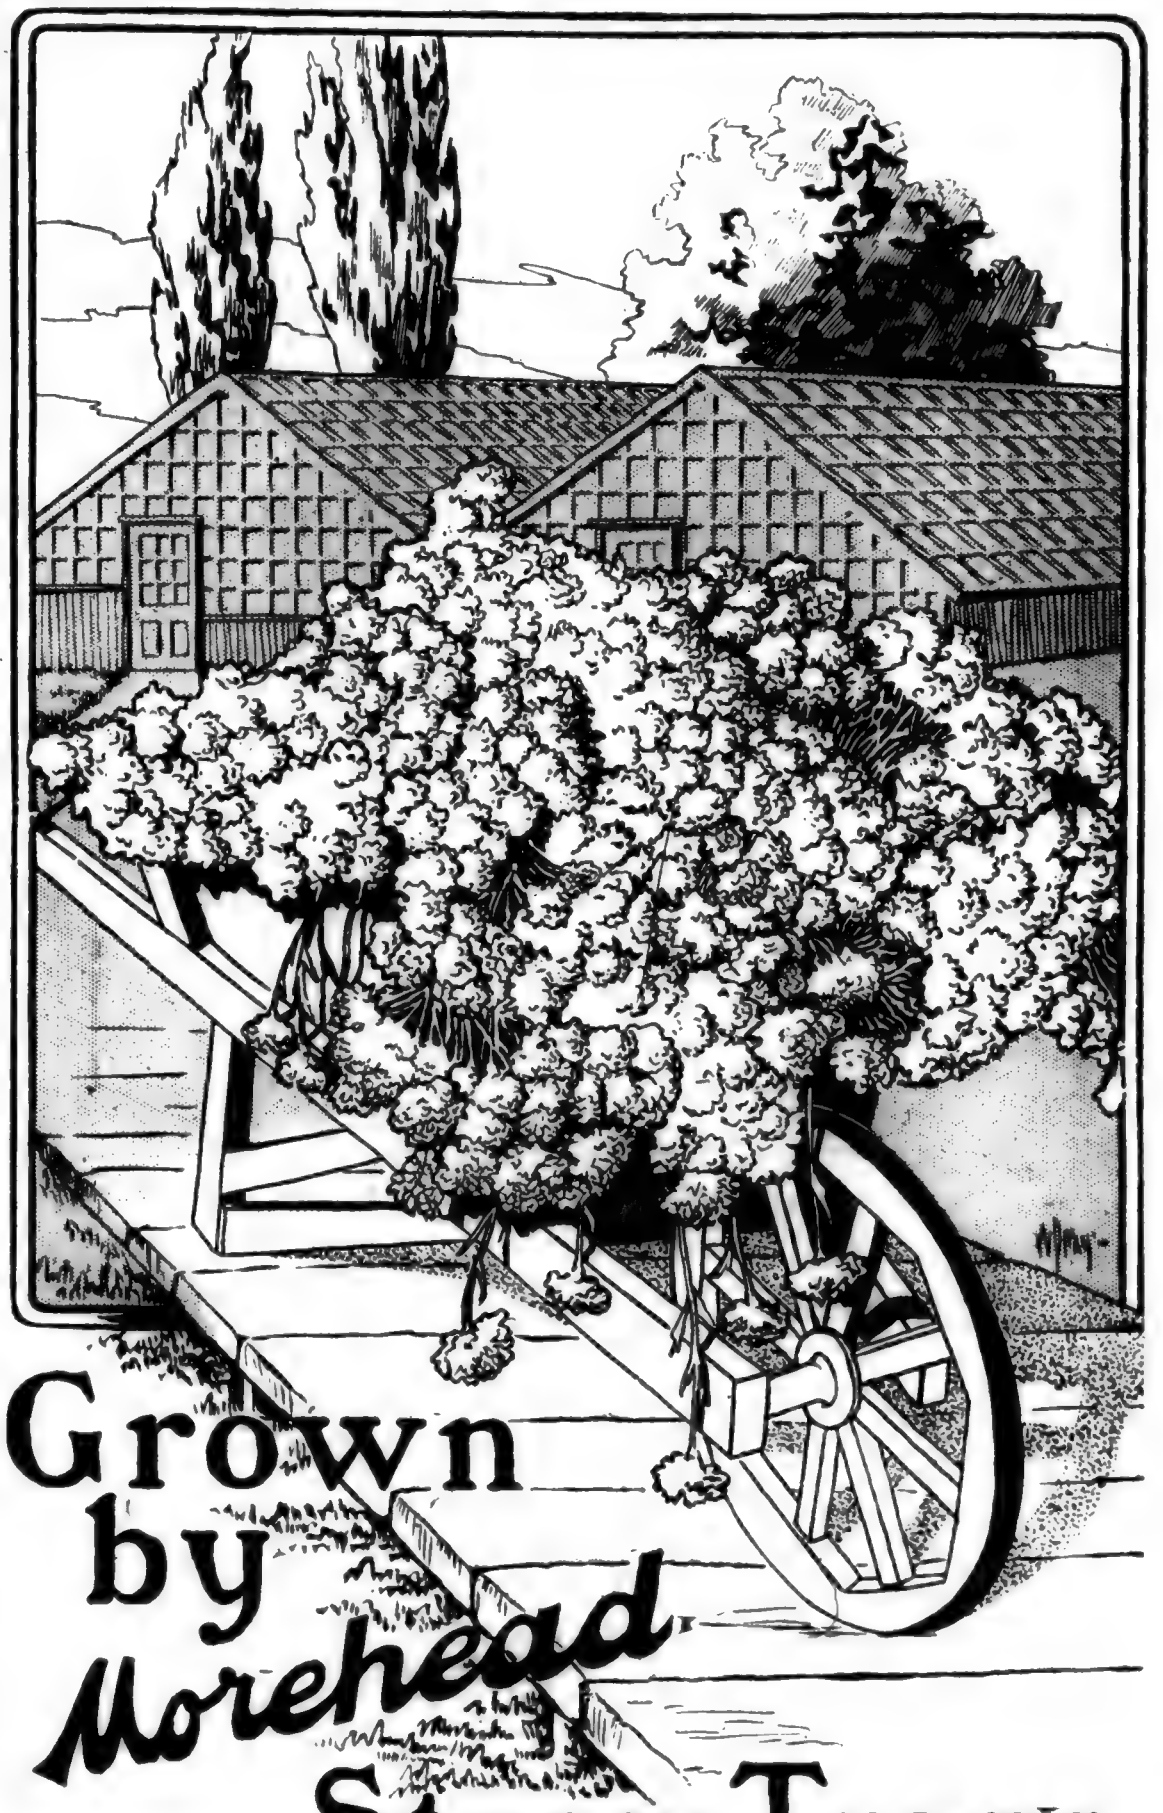
3-inch flow to supply the middle and the south house. From this point I will run two 2-inch flows in each house to the other end, having the highest point at the boiler and giving one foot of fall for the 100 feet. From these I would have two 2-inch returns on the north side and one 2-inch return on the south, with one foot of fall toward the boiler. Do you think this would be satisfactory?

In using this system, how many air valves would be needed and where should they be placed? How high above the highest point of the system should the expansion tank be placed? My boiler is rated at 2,525 square feet of radiation. I am located in Maryland.

E. A. P.



The plan for arranging the main flow pipes is a good one, but it will be better to have three 2-inch flow pipes in each house and the same number of 2-inch returns, although it would answer to use two 2-inch flows and four 2-inch returns. Carry the flow pipes at least as high as the purlins and, if possible, keep the returns well up to the height of the plates. Place the expansion tank as high as convenient, connecting it to the highest point of each main flow pipe, which should be directly above the boiler. With the piping arranged in this way, there will be no need for any air valves.

ONE IOWA HOUSE.

We intend to erect a greenhouse, 18x80, and should like to know what kind of heating plant you would recommend. We wish to use an upright boiler if possible. Which would you recommend, hot water or steam? What is the best way to pipe a building of this size? Please let us know as soon as convenient, as we are building our house now.

S. & L.

While either steam or hot water could be used in a house of the size described,

Grown by Morehead Steam Traps

FLORISTS everywhere are using Morehead Steam Traps. A Morehead Return Trap installation is a proven economic investment. It purges your steam heating lines of all condensation, returning it direct to your boilers as pure, hot feed water.

The resulting uniform temperature in all parts of the houses insures a better growth of stock, and a saving in fuel, water and labor sufficient to pay for the installation in a few months.

A complete proposition and descriptive catalogue will be mailed on request.

it is generally better to use hot water in small houses. An upright boiler can be used if the cellar is sufficiently deep to bring the return above the top of the boiler.

A good way to pipe the house will be to run a 2½-inch flow on each plate and use ten 2-inch returns, with five on each of the side walls, provided 60 degrees is desired. For 50 degrees only eight returns will be required. The boiler should be rated for about 800 square feet of radiating surface.

IMPROVED THERMOSTATS.

An officer of the Standard Thermometer Co., Boston, states that in the last season or two they have received a number of requests from florists for a special thermostat, the device that rings a bell at a distant point whenever the temperature in a greenhouse goes above or below the points at which the alarm is wanted. Some florists have asked for a thermostat in a sealed case, to prevent derangement by excessive dampness, and others have asked that it be locked, so that no one except the man with most at stake could change the degree at which the bell would ring. To meet these calls the company has been at work on a special instrument that it now has perfected. It is hermetically sealed so as to be impervious to moisture and is also padlocked so that no one except the man who carries the key can touch the instrument. Supply houses also handle a registering thermometer made by this concern, that is in a padlocked case. Many growers use them.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

The weather in Pittsburg has been hotter than—well, it has been so hot that business is not thought of. A few little trades in flowers are made from day to day, but not enough to talk about as business.

There are still some good roses, lilies, valley and America gladioli; sweet peas are cooked when they reach the city. A few asters are making their appearance, but no one seems to want them.

Various Notes.

On the great and glorious Fourth, the Allison Park carnation belt was well represented in the grand parade which the village makes every Independence day. Uncle John Wyland was conspicuous in handling the reins over a span of beautiful ponies drawing a float decorated with carnations and greens. Albert Lorch had a float with a miniature greenhouse planted in carnations. T. P. Langhans, in his wonderful shay, drawn by his grand and noble steed Jenco, helped make up a parade that could only receive justice at the hands of the writer of the "Bifigville Bugle."

The I. S. Crall Co., Monongahela, Pa., is busy putting up a couple of new houses for cut flowers.

A number of the employees of the A. W. Smith Co., including Earl Tipton, wife and family, Morris Stein and Alden Gross, left July 1 for Canfield, O., the home of the Altimo Culture Co., one of this company's outside branches; here they will live in tents and, while they will assist in the work of the gardens, at the same time they will be laying up a reserve force of energy for

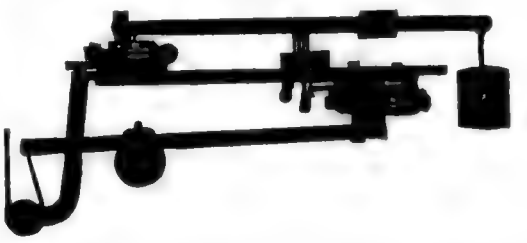
Would You Save One-Quarter of Your Coal Bill?

INSTALL



A Kitts Improved Hydraulic Damper Regulator.

Florist Peter Crowe, Rose Place, Utica, N. Y., voluntarily writes:—

"I am very much pleased to let you know that the Damper Regulator I bought from you last fall is by far the best apparatus for greenhouse purposes. I had my book-keeper compare my coal bill of last with that of this year and I find a saving of one quarter the amount of this year's coal over last year's; also the past winter was a great deal colder and longer than the winter before.

"There is another very good feature about the Damper Regulator, as it keeps a uniform heat in all the houses at all times by putting on and shutting off pipes. And I find that my Roses and Ferns did far better this winter than any winter so far, as the temperature was so uniform at all times.

"My reason for writing you is to let you know, and also to thank you for bringing my attention to the Regulator, and I assure you I cannot speak too highly of this machine."

Are not facts like these worth an investigation?

T. P. Langhans and Wm. Loew are the committee on transportation for the S. A. F. convention, to be held in Rochester, August 16 to 19. They report a rate of $12.23 round trip by the certificate plan, going almost any time, but leaving Rochester August 23 on the return trip. The rate for a Pullman berth is $2, and for a parlor car seat $1.25. As it is believed quite a party will go from Pittsburg, it is desired that all who expect to do so will notify this committee at once so that they may secure a special car and have the party travel together.

Imitation of Electric Rubber Hose

is constantly attempted. But infringement of our basic patents would be necessary to successful imitation. The courts prevent infringement. All efforts of imitators, therefore, have been failures.

No one can make a hose as efficient, as durable, as economical as Electric Rubber Hose. It is a manufacturing impossibility.

Imitation has to stop at the very point where efficiency begins.

Our seamless jackets of seine twine, our pure rubber tubes, our process of amalgamating jackets and tubes into a unified fabric, represents the highest and greatest achievement in hose construction.

It is a matter of sound business judgment for you to use such hose in your greenhouse.

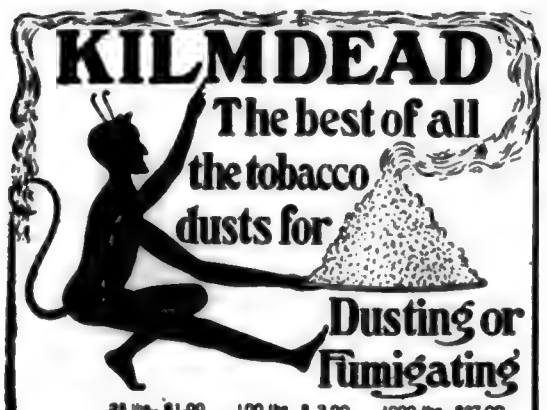
The Market.

"The melancholy days have come," for the florist. In addition to the usual quiet of this season of the year, the damage done to outdoor stock by the unfavorable weather is serious. Old residents are vying with one another to remember a case of such long protracted drought as we have had. Sweet peas are not good. Other hardy stock, such as Shasta daisies, etc., are standing the weather fairly well. On account of the heat, indoor stock is poor; roses are small and short, and carnations about gone. There are a few gladioli and lilies to help out.

Business is quiet in general in the downtown stores, as the hot weather has not been conducive to social gatherings.

Various Notes.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has a good crop of Easter lilies ready for the market.



William Topel, formerly with R. A. Latham, is now with the L. S. Donaldson Co.

Rice Bros. are unloading a carload of fancy sphagnum moss at a low price. Business has been good with them and stock fairly plentiful.

Louis Grisbach, of Vasatka & Grisbach, was married June 28 to Miss Edith Haney. The congratulations of the trade are with him. M. E. M.

"A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE"

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

Business has settled down to the usual summer dullness. Funeral work is about all the storemen have any call for, but there has been a good deal of that lately. Roses and carnations are not extra good. Sweet peas are getting short of stem.

Our dry, hot spell was broken with a heavy shower July 3, and since then we have had more rain than we needed.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons report that business has been good with them.

Ben Kramer reports a good business for the last two weeks.

Louis Fritsch will build one more house, 20x65 feet, for pot plants. He says business is quite good.

Royston & Fenton have their roses planted and they are getting a good start. They find it necessary to reglaze their houses this summer, owing to poor putty being used in the first place. They lost considerable glass last winter on account of this. E. L. F.

Massillon, O.—Tom and Frank Kester, now known in the trade as Kester Bros., are erecting two greenhouses, each 20x100, on East Oak street, where they have leased four acres of land. Frank Kester was formerly with A. Weaver, on East Main street.

Worcester, Mass.—Several members of the trade here, including C. D. Thayer, F. E. Keyes and H. F. A. Lange, are making liberal contributions of flower and vegetable plants, seeds, etc., to the so-called "garden cities," the garden plots which are being laid out and cared for, in different parts of the city, under the management of the Worcester Social Settlement.

Both wholesalers and retailers state that business last week was unusually quiet. Sweet peas have been plentiful and of extremely good quality, considering the dry weather. Rain has fallen only once since the middle of June; consequently plants of all kinds show the lack of moisture. The recently planted aster fields are especially in need of water.

Preparations for the Convention.

Fred W. Vick, vice-president of the S. A. F. and chairman of the Rochester executive committee, says that the plans for entertaining the members of the S. A. F. during convention week are well under way. The sporting committee has completed arrangements for the bowling and shooting contests, and plans have been perfected for an afternoon's outing at Manitou Beach, a beautiful lake resort, reached by a ten-mile trolley ride along the shore of Lake Ontario. Nor have the ladies been forgotten; Charles Ogsten is busy preparing a series of entertainments, including automobile rides, concerts, etc., that will especially please the ladies.

Captains of bowling teams intending to compete in the bowling tournament at the convention are requested to communicate at once with A. F. Vick, P. O. Box 613, Rochester, N. Y., the chairman of the S. A. F. sport committee. It is necessary that the list of participating teams be completed at once. The Grand Central Bowling Alleys have been engaged for the contests. The Grand Central is equipped with twelve Brunswick-Balke-Collender alleys and the 1910 pattern Backus pin-setters. Undoubtedly these are the best alleys in the city. Ample accommodations will be provided for both players and spectators.

Various Notes.

George B. Hart, wholesale florist, is installing a new cold storage plant in his warehouse. The room is of concrete blocks, is thirty-five feet long, and provides separate apartments for carnations and roses, as well as storage space for large quantities of cut flowers and plants. E. F. R.

How to Save Money

No. 3

WHEN building a greenhouse use only first-class material. Money is more often saved by paying a high price than when you pay a low price. There are different grades in greenhouse material the same as in shoes, clothes, meats and automobiles. One dozen eggs at 15 cents may be ten years old and rotten; another dozen at 30 cents may be good and fresh. On the 15 cent dozen you lose all you pay; on the 30 cent dozen you get your money's worth, and what is more you don't feel like the fellow who bought a gold brick and his wife found it out—but we'll tell you that story another time.

"Better write us before you build."

A COMPLICATION OF DISEASES.

I am sending you six rose leaves, each of which is attacked with a different disease, and I should like to know what the diseases are and what is the treatment for them. I have classified them by numbers, 1, 2, 3, etc. No. 1 is a yellowish-green leaf, with small, black, dry blotches scattered over the surface, which is greenish around the blotches. No. 2 is a leaf eaten out on the side. No. 3 is brownish, with small red spots. No. 4 is reddish around the edge, on top of the leaf. No. 5 is a yellow leaf. No. 6 has a black, dry spot in the middle. W. R.

Leaf No. 1 is affected with black spot, a fungous trouble rather prevalent at this season, especially in houses which are inclined to be too damp and moist. Though possibly not generated by these conditions, it is in just such situations that the spores germinate and grow rapidly. Nos. 3 and 6 also are affected with the same trouble, although in a different stage. Remedy: Pick off all affected leaves and burn them; give plenty of ventilation and keep on a few inches of air at night; keep the atmosphere as dry as is consistent with the health of the plants and scatter some quick lime under the benches. This trouble will probably disappear as the plants get stronger.

No. 2 has been attacked by the larvæ of the rose-leaf saw-fly, or Hylotoma rosæ. This species is frequently quite destructive and ought to be exterminated with all possible speed. Remedy: Take one pound of brown sugar and one ounce of Paris green; mix when in the dry state until they are thoroughly incorporated, then add to each pound of the mixture ten gallons of water; spray the foliage with this twice a week. The mixture can be used much stronger than this if a small piece of lime is added to neutralize the caustic properties of the arsenic. This, of course, only destroys the larvæ.

To kill the perfect insect, or saw-fly, use pyrethrum powder, or buhach, in a fresh condition. This can be distributed with the sulphur blower, say twice a week, taking care to have it reach every part of the house, especially under the benches and wherever there are likely to be ground weeds.

No. 4 shows evidence of scalding, and this would indicate a close, moist atmosphere and deficient ventilation at night. There is also mildew present in the house. This should be remedied by a free distribution of the flowers of sulphur.

All of the samples show the effects of being attacked by thrips. These insects can do a great amount of damage when the plants are in flower and should be exterminated at once. Cayenne pepper burned in the house is one of the surest remedies, and it can be used in quantities without harming the plants. One pound to each 1,000 cubic feet of space would be about right. This can be done twice a week, choosing a cool, moist evening for the operation and leaving the ventilators closed till morning. Ribes.

ROSE RUST.

What remedy can you give for rose rust on outdoor roses? How should affected plants be treated? C. D. W.

The best remedy for rose rust, or Phragmidium mucronatum, is to carefully gather all the affected leaves and burn them.

As a preventive, a liberal dusting with Fostite twice a week will help materially. This can be applied in the dry form by the sulphur distributor, or it can be applied in the liquid form with the sprayer. One-quarter pound to five gallons of water is sufficiently strong if applied twice a week.

Ribes.

CONVENTION PROGRAM.

BLACK APHIS ON FERNS.

I have about forty Cibotium Schiedei ferns to look after, which were attacked with the black aphis when turned over to me. How can this aphis be removed, or, in other words, what is the best thing to add to the water when washing them? Then, later, what can the plants be sprayed with in order to prevent any further trouble with this pest?

The plants, in pots from 5-inch to 10-inch sizes, stand elevated on pots and stands in a well ventilated little house, which is shaded with whitewash on the outside and cheesecloth on the inside. How often is syringing with clear water beneficial? E. O.

Black aphis may be destroyed by fumigating with nicotine paper, but the young fronds of Cibotium Schiedei are rather susceptible to the effect of the smoke, and the tips of fronds that are just expanding are liable to be somewhat injured. Try spraying with a solution of nicotine extract, one teaspoonful to a gallon of water, afterward shaking off the surplus of the solution from the young fronds. The mature fronds would not be injured by either the smoke or the solution, but care is needed to save the growing tips.

Syringing with clear water is not often required by cibotiums, except in extremely hot and dry weather, and under such conditions of weather a light syringing each day will do no harm. W. H. T.

THE SOCIETY AND ITS FUTURE.

[President Harry Turner's address at the second annual convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, in New York city, July 12 and 13, 1910.]

The sweet pea abounds in excellent qualities, being a flower of great beauty, with a color range probably not surpassed by any other family. Nature, time and hybridists have produced every imaginable self color; wonderful combinations of colors, with the wings and standard of distinct hue; suffusions, blush shadings and striped effects which are dear to the heart of the sweet pea enthusiast.

When the sweet pea is examined and its fragrance is enjoyed by the ordinary lover of flowers, the exclamations of delight and wonder almost prove equal to the wonderful range of color possible to be shown from an up-to-date collection of our favorite. Our favorite is becoming so popular, and so many experts from two continents are continually advancing the types and the beauty of the flower, that it is no easy problem to keep up with the times by making a selection of the finest varieties, possessing beauty of color, excellence of type, robust constitution and distinctness.

A Great Field of Usefulness.

This is a point where our society will prove its usefulness, by endeavoring by every legitimate means to raise the standard already attained, put the O. K. of approval on the best, and reduce the number of synonymous varieties existing. Our nomenclature committee has done good work in this direction. Professors Craig and Beal will enlighten us on this important matter, after giving the subject close study and methodical attention at the Cornell trial grounds.

We all feel proud of our exhibition here today. One year ago, at the inauguration of the society, all taking part were enthusiastic about results. These results are developing rapidly, and I venture to say that a few years hence ours will be a strong, useful and influential society.

I well remember the enthusiasm caused by the formation of the National Sweet Pea Society of England, and note the good work they have done. Exhibitions I have attended in London, Shrewsbury and other cities have proved the great possibilities of the poor man's orchid.

Eckford and His Successors.

Our friend the late Henry Eckford, the father of sweet peas, with his wonderful collection of the grandiflora type, did yeoman service in attracting attention to these fragrant flowers under high development. His unique collections at Shrewsbury alone proved their popularity. It looks like an easy prophecy to say that the Spencer type, which certainly has greater charms, will eventually supersede the grandiflora type, and we may expect the future to produce something more beautiful than we can at present imagine.

Mr. Burpee and other experts are working along the right lines by producing beautiful varieties and holding them until they feel assured the progeny is fixed and will come true. If our life memberships would increase as rapidly as new varieties are introduced, we could prophecy a bright financial future.

I appeal to all interested in the seed business to give their financial support by becoming life members. Support the society in its infancy, and as it grows and develops the society will help support you. I venture to state that increased sales will prove this a good business proposition.

The Society's Hopeful Outlook.

I feel sure, however, that the society will prove its worthiness, and lack of funds will not prevent its doing the good work started or carrying on efficiently all it has pledged itself to do.

We must remember that great oaks from little acorns grow, and thus we may confidently believe that a great society was born July 7, 1909, when thirteen members were enrolled and the society known as the National Sweet Pea Society of America was inaugurated, and in years to come the charter members will point with pride to the first exhibition of fifteen hundred vases, even supposing we are then in convention and admiring an exhibition of fifteen thousand vases.

On behalf of the society, I desire to thank all donors of prizes for their generous support, Professor Craig and his assistants for their valuable aid in conducting the trial grounds at Cornell University, and the horticultural press for the notices published, which have helped us much during our pioneer period.

GOOD COMMERCIAL PEONIES.

Kindly name three peonies, red, white and pink, for commercial use.

C. W. M.

You should grow more than one variety of each color of peony, in order to allow of a longer succession of blooms. In whites, Mme. de Verneville, Festiva maxima and Couronne d'Or will please you. In pinks, M. Jules Elie, Mme. Emile Galle and Richardson's Grandiflora are good, while Felix Crousse and M. Cahuzac are desirable dark reds. The best time to plant is September, and the earlier in the month they are set out the better.

C. W.

SORTS FOR A BEGINNER.

I want to have a bench of carnations and should like to carry white and two shades of pink. Would you kindly advise me what varieties to get? My house is piped for 50 degrees. Is there any red carnation that I can grow with the pink and white sorts? I am located in the state of New York.

G. W. B.

There are perhaps no varieties which are more universally satisfactory than Enchantress and its two sports, White Enchantress and Rose-pink Enchantress. Naturally these three varieties will get along together in the same house and under similar treatment.

Other varieties have their friends, almost to the exclusion of these three sorts, but in most cases their popularity is limited to certain localities, or scattered. Among these may be mentioned White Perfection, Lady Bountiful, Winsor, Afterglow, Aristocrat, Victoria, Winona, etc.

Pink Delight would be one of the greatest sorts ever introduced, were it easier to propagate. When its wants become better understood, it will no doubt become a general favorite, as it has every quality needed by a commercial sort.

In red you can grow Beacon and Victory successfully with the Enchantress sorts. Both are good.

You should also buy a few of the new ones in limited quantities. Each season you will find one or more which you can profitably add to your list. This year there are several which will undoubtedly be grown extensively for several years. Some will find favor in one section, while others will find it in another. Perhaps one or two may duplicate the record set by Enchantress. Time alone will tell. A. F. J. B.

SHEEP MANURE IN COMPOST.

I have a lot of sheep manure which I should like to mix with sod for carnations, instead of cow manure. Would it be suitable for this? If so, in what proportions should I mix it with the sod? The sod is blue grass and well rotted. M. H. L.

There is perhaps no more complete manure to be had than that from well-fed cattle. Other manures are rich in certain elements used by plants as food, but none seems so perfectly balanced as the cattle manure. Many growers, however, are so situated that it is difficult to procure cattle manure. Hence, other fertilizers must be made use of. By using several kinds you can produce results nearly, if not quite, as good as you could with the cattle manure.

We use a great deal of stable manure now, as a base, adding sheep manure and shredded cattle manure to bring it up in the elements lacking in the stable manure.

In your case I would not hesitate to use the sheep manure in the soil. How strong it should be used will depend on how it has been handled. If it has been kept dry, so that it contains its full strength, you can mix it with the soil at the rate of about one part in fifteen. If it has lain outdoors and been leached by the rains you can use it in larger proportion.

A few years ago we had a pile of the rough litter as it came from the sheep pens, lying outdoors. One of our men got onto this pile instead of the cattle manure when mulching a mum bed. He put it on a full inch thick, as he had been told, and, to our surprise and relief, no ill results followed. Had it not been leached considerably, we feel sure the plants would have suffered. A. F. J. B.

A SAMPLE OF SOIL.

I am sending you, under separate cover, a sample of soil and should like to know whether it would be good for roses and carnations. It is from a low, swampy place. I had some potted roses shipped in and, as nearly as I can tell, the soil looked like this. If this is not suitable soil for the purpose, please advise me as to the best kind to use.

S. & L.

The sample of soil is not suitable for either roses or carnations; it is simply sour, swamp mud.

Try to get a yellowish loam, with at least thirty-five per cent of clay. If you can find such a soil in old pasture land, take the top spit, six inches deep, and add to it decomposed cow manure in the proportion of four of soil to one of manure. Chop up and mix thoroughly. In the course of four or five days it will be in good condition to bench.

A sprinkling of bone meal over the bench previous to planting will be of great benefit. Ribes.

ROSES WITH CARNATIONS.

I wish to inquire if there is some free blooming white or pink rose that would do well in a carnation house. Which is considered better, grafted or own-root stock? When should they be planted? A. O. C.

If the temperature of the carnation house does not fall below 54 degrees, several varieties of roses will do fairly well in it, although they would fare much better at 56 degrees. Bride or White Killarney would be suitable for white and Bridesmaid or Pink Killarney for pink. Grafted stock would be preferable under such conditions and they ought to be planted as soon as possible. Ribes.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

The Question of Feeding.

The plants that were set out on the benches in May will now be benefited in many cases by light applications of fertilizers in some form or other. The question of feeding chrysanthemums is a large one. The average commercial grower does not, of course, feed nearly so heavily as the exhibition grower. In the first place, he does not have to get the last particle of size into the flower, as a small flower that has grown hardy stands shipping better and gives more satisfaction, and, in the second place, the cost of production is a large factor in determining whether the mum crop is a profitable one or not.

I always figure, after a plant has been set out from eight to ten weeks, that it has then arrived at that condition of growth when a little feeding will be beneficial. This could be in the form of a sprinkling of bone flour, covered with a mulch of half an inch of well rotted manure, or in the form of waterings with liquid cow or sheep manure. Personally, I always like a light mulch on my beds. It keeps the roots cooler and the beds do not need soaking so often, but it also seems to make the plant produce a great many more suckers, which is one phase that can well be dispensed with.

Taking the Buds.

Buds may be secured now on Golden Glow, Monrovia and October Frost, right along as soon as they are produced, as it is the early bud on these varieties that produces the heavy flower and swells the bank account.

It is not wise to give the plants a heavy feeding just at the time they are setting buds, because, when the side shoots are pinched off, the growth is necessarily checked and all the strength of the plant is diverted into the tiny flower bud and the foliage.

Midseason varieties that are producing buds at this time should have the bud pinched out and the plant encouraged to make further growth. It will be found that the second growth below the bud is almost invariably a much better growth to keep than the one next to the bud, as it frequently happens that the first growth will make three or four leaves and then produce another bud, instead of pushing right along and producing a healthy shoot.

Attention must be given these hot days to watering and spraying. We make a practice of spraying our houses, side walls, roof, plants and beds several times during the day. This cools off the temperature nicely and is a great help to the plants in producing and holding large, luxuriant leaves, as evaporation is not nearly so rapid where the atmosphere is kept moist.

Planting Late Varieties.

Late varieties—that is, kinds intended for later flowering and flowering around Thanksgiving—can be planted any time now with profit.

Chadwick does not get away nearly so rapidly as some other varieties, but it makes up for it when once it does get a start. These plants in the late house will, of course, be kept growing after the others have set buds, so if any buds appear at this time, or next month, they should be kept closely pinched off and the plants encouraged to make all the growth possible. If you have any plants that you are planning to flower in 6-inch pots, for single stems, they should be potted from the 2½-inch to the 6-inch pots just as soon as they are ready to be shifted. It is the height of folly to let them get potbound at any stage of the game, and particularly just now, with the weather running so warm and dry.

Singles or any other varieties that are intended to make specimen plants, should not be pinched any more, but should be tied into shape so that the finishing growth will not be too stiff and formal.

Thrips and Other Pests.

Caterpillars are beginning to show on the plants and should be closely looked out for. This is easy if one catches the colony just when the eggs are hatched, before they scatter over the plants. One squeeze of the thumb and finger and all is over, but if you let these caterpillars get big enough, it necessitates a great deal of labor and hand picking to clean them off again.

The ladybug is now, in most cases, taking care of the green and black fly, but if these pests are at all numerous in the house, it is best to do a little fumigating. The house can be closed down about 9 o'clock in the evening and opened again by daylight, and under such conditions no harm will be done to the plants, but never let the sun rise on a closed house or when the house is sweating, as it tends to start leaf disease and other troubles.

There are tiny yellowish white thrips in our section that do a great deal of damage if not closely followed up. They are always on the under side of the leaf, and often, with a novice, it is not before the plant shows unmistakable signs of not being happy that their presence is detected. Look your plants over today and, if you see any signs of this trouble, get busy with a good sprayer and spray underneath the leaves, washing off every leaf, commencing from the ground and going up. I have seen this little pest practically destroy a man's labor of several months, simply because he did not know enough to wash the under side of the leaf as well as the top.

C. H. Totty.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lorraine Begonias.

Lorraine begonias, while they may not appear to be making the progress we should like to see, will soon make up for it when the first cool night of autumn arrives. Growers not well acquainted with these begonias and their characteristics sometimes become discouraged at their slow rate of growth in the hottest summer months, but so long as they are healthy no concern need be felt.

Do not allow them to get potbound before giving them a shift. Be sure not to use a stiff, heavy compost. What they revel in is a soil composed of equal parts of fibrous loam, flaky leaf-mold and well decayed cow manure or screenings from an old hotbed, adding a good dash of sharp sand. A light, rich and porous compost is what they specially like. Keep runaway shoots pinched back. Remove all flowers. Do not allow scum to form on the surface of the soil. Give the plants a fresh stand before they crowd each other, and grow them moderately warm. They like a place quite close to the glass and should not be heavily shaded. Though heavy shading might produce green looking plants, they would be soft and spindling compared with those grown in stronger light.

Cyclamens.

While torrid weather continues, cyclamens, provided they are being grown in coldframes, will be much better without any sashes over them at all, except when there are signs of torrential rain. If lath shadings are used and run over the beds during bright sunshine, the plants will be cooler and do much better without any glass covering. Play the hose over the shading twice or thrice a day, just sufficiently to damp over and at the same time cool and refresh the plants. Be sure the shadings are raised so that a good current of air can blow in at both the top and bottom; four to six inches of an elevation will suffice.

Cyclamens do not like hot weather and, like quite a few other plants, do not make rapid headway in July and August. The most forward plants should now be sufficiently strong to go into 6-inch pots. In potting, do not bury the corm; it should be just sufficiently deep in the soil to hold the plant firm. Too high an elevation, with a shaky top, means a worthless plant and is even worse than burying it. The soil should be well firmed and be sure to allow a liberal space for water. Two-thirds good fibrous loam and one-third decayed cow manure, passed through a half-inch screen, forms a good potting medium. Add to the foregoing some sharp sand, fine broken charcoal and a 3-inch potful of Clay's fertilizer to each bushel of soil.

Poinsettias.

Cuttings of poinsettias can be inserted until the middle of August, and the late ones, while they will not make large bracts, are really preferable for making up into pans, owing to their dwarfness. In putting in cuttings during this hot weather, trim the leaves off quite closely and let the cuttings lie in a pail of water half an hour, to help plump them up. If the sand is sharp, so that water passes away freely, there should be little trouble from damping off. Be sure to examine the cuttings frequently and, just as soon as they have made roots an inch long, pot them. If left longer the roots will be broken; the cuttings will soon harden and never make as satisfactory plants as if potted more promptly.

The earliest rooted cuttings are, or soon should be, planted out in benches. This is the way to get big bracts for Christmas, but be sure to grow them in a house where a minimum temperature of 60 to 65 degrees can be maintained while the bracts are developing. Any compost suitable for carnations or chrysanthemums will grow first-class poinsettias. Plants in pots should not receive any shade when once they have become established in their first pots. No plant requires more careful watering if good foliage is wanted. The drainage in the pots or pans should be fairly liberal. Avoid using too much manure in the soil, as it is better to supply this later, in the way of top-dressings or waterings with liquid manure.

Achimenes.

Achimenes are not a great deal grown commercially, but are useful in July and August, when flowering plants are none too plentiful. If in pots or pans, light stakes should be used for each flowering stem before the blooms start to open. Leave these a little longer than the shoots are, as they will be the better of another tie later, to keep them erect. These are excellent basket plants, and to display their full beauty they should be grown in this way, where flowering basket plants can be used in summer. Treatment such as has been advised for gloxinias, in former issues, answers well for achimenes. A cool, airy house, well shaded, is what they want in summer. Too often they are seen in so-called stove houses, drawn and spindling, a mere ghost of what they should be. For window or piazza boxes, where they are not exposed to sun or wind, achimenes are satisfactory summer plants. The large flowered varieties are the only ones worth growing.

Adiantums.

The sale for maidenhair fronds is now at its lowest. Every effort should be made to build up strong plants, which will have an abundance of firm, dark green, well ripened fronds when the real selling season again opens. The houses should have sufficient shade to make the fronds dark in color. The pots should never suffer from want of water, or a lamentable loss of foliage is bound to result. Feeding should be given regularly. A good liquid is soot and cow manure. The former helps to keep the fronds a fine, rich green color and might, with advantage, be more generally used, not only on adiantums, but on all other ferns, as well as palms and foliage plants generally.

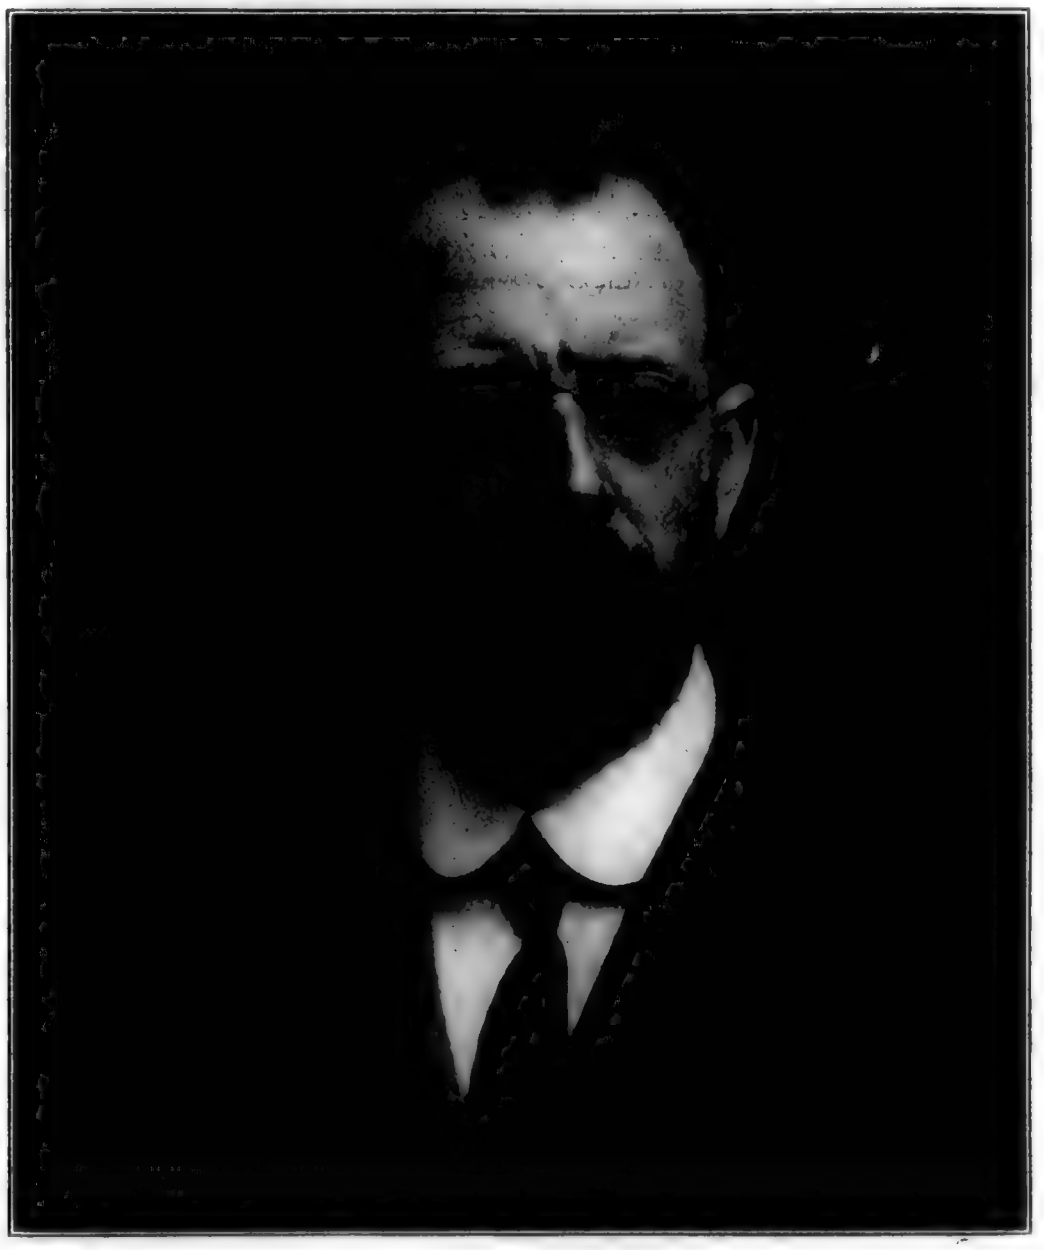
If there is no suitable greenhouse for growing adiantums in summer, a well-shaded frame should be used. In this the growth will be far better than in even the best built greenhouse, as the plants are close to the glass, and their growth will surprise those who have never yet tried this method of culture. Look out for snails. Scatter lime about their haunts and lay baits, in the way of cabbage or lettuce leaves and slices of root crops, examining them at least once a day.

Clerodendron Fallax.

The climbing clerodendrons, such as Thomsonæ and Balfourianum, are old favorites and much better known than the shrubby section. Of the latter class C. fallax, a native of Java, has been a popular pot plant in Europe for many years, and is to a limited extent grown in America. It flowers during the summer months, and its large, terminal, erect panicles of rich scarlet flowers are showy and last well in bloom. The large, dark green cordate-ovate leaves are in themselves quite handsome.

While classed as a tropical plant, this clerodendron grows capitally in either a frame or ordinary greenhouse in summer. Its propagation is easy; seeds germinate readily, and if they are sown in January, strong blooming plants may be had the first season. Soft-wood cuttings root in a brisk heat, while pieces of stem cut up in short lengths will also soon produce growths in a warm propagating bed. Among summer flowering pot plants, Clerodendron fallax is well worthy of the attention of florists.



Genistas.

Genistas are making excellent growth in spite of the hot weather. Pots are much better plunged to the brim in ashes or loam during the summer months. This reduces the watering, keeps the roots cooler and moister and the plants grow much better. Young stock propagated in late winter should now be ready to go into 5-inch or 6-inch pots. Keep them well pinched and they will do much better outdoors on a bed of ashes than in the greenhouses. Keep older plants well sheared, to make them thick and bushy. This work should be done at least once in three weeks. Use the hose freely over the plants in hot, dry weather.

ANOTHER FORMULA FOR PUTTY.

In a recent issue of The Review a subscriber inquired how to compound "a greenhouse putty, for use in a putty bulb, that will not run in warm weather or heave in cold weather, and that will be pliable at all seasons." A reply to this inquiry appeared in The Review of July 14, page 9, giving complete directions as to the making of a liquid putty with whiting, linseed oil and Japan drier.

A. C. Canfield, of Springfield, Ill., now submits another formula, which is quite simple, and which, he says, he has used satisfactorily for the last eight years. It is as follows: One-third lard oil, two-thirds linseed oil and enough whiting to produce the desired consistency.

The powers that be in Cincinnati exercise a nice discrimination in their selection of park officials. It is not in every city that the counsels of the florists are heeded in park matters, but in Cincinnati for years and years a florist has been superintendent of the park system; not one florist, but one florist after another. The result of having trained florists in charge of park work is apparent in the fine condition of the Cincinnati parks, not only this year but in other years, and in increasing ratio each year.

Herbert Greensmith was appointed superintendent of parks at Cincinnati at a comparatively recent date, but his training, particularly with hardy plants, has been the work of a lifetime. Mr. Greensmith is a gentleman of erudition, and there are in this country few better authorities on hardy perennials. For years he was associated with the Dreer establishment at Riverton, N. J. The Dreer institution does not often let one of its men get away, but when one does leave that exceedingly well-managed place to go into the service of the public, that portion of the public that gains his services almost invariably is to be congratulated.

Mr. Greensmith's commercial training resulted in his quick affiliation with the trade interests at Cincinnati, and at the last meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Club he was elected a director of that organization for a three years' term. The portrait reproduced herewith is from a photograph made within the week.

SNAPS AND CALLAS FOR MARKET.

In The Review for June 30, the answer to the inquiry of J. G. S. B. regarding snapdragons made me think I should like to give my experience and also ask a few questions. Last fall I took up and benched a few snaps that had bloomed in the field. I cut fine spikes of blooms all winter and spring until the first part of June, some spikes measuring over five feet, and it seemed the longer they bloomed the better they got. I always cut them back to about three or four inches of the ground, when they would break again. Now, the question I would like to ask is this: Having had such good success with snaps, would it be profitable to grow them for wholesale markets, and also would callas pay as a wholesale cut flower, as our soil seems to be well adapted to their culture? We are located in Iowa. G. H.

In wholesale markets there usually is a good demand for snapdragons that are of really first-class quality. Long, straight stems are a necessity. Nothing else is worth sending in. Pink sells best, after that yellow and white. They must be put on the market unbruised by travel if they are to sell in competition with the stock that has not stood a journey. Callas are not now as profitable a cut flower as they were before fumigating. The house can be closed down about 9 o'clock in the evening and opened again by daylight, and under such conditions no harm will be done to the plants, but never let the sun rise on a closed house or when the house is sweating, as it tends to start leaf disease and other troubles.

There are tiny yellowish white thrips in our section that do a great deal of damage if not closely followed up. They are always on the under side of the leaf, and often, with a novice, it is not before the plant shows unmistakable signs of not being happy that their presence is detected. Look your plants over today and, if you see any signs of this trouble, get busy with a good sprayer and spray underneath the leaves, washing off every leaf, commencing from the ground and going up. I have seen this little pest practically destroy a man's labor of several months, simply because he did not know enough to wash the under side of the leaf as well as the top. C. H. Totty.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lorraine Begonias.

Lorraine begonias, while they may not appear to be making the progress we should like to see, will soon make up for it when the first cool night of autumn arrives. Growers not well acquainted with these begonias and their characteristics sometimes become discouraged at their slow rate of growth in the hottest summer months, but so long as they are healthy no concern need be felt.

Do not allow them to get potbound before giving them a shift. Be sure not to use a stiff, heavy compost. What they revel in is a soil composed of equal parts of fibrous loam, flaky leaf-mold and well decayed cow manure or screenings from an old hotbed, adding a good dash of sharp sand. A light, rich and porous compost is what they specially like. Keep runaway shoots pinched back. Remove all flowers. Do not allow scum to form on the surface of the soil. Give the plants a fresh stand before they crowd each other, and grow them moderately warm. They like a place quite close to the glass and should not be heavily shaded. Though heavy shading might produce green looking plants, they would be soft and spindling compared with those grown in stronger light.

Cyclamens.

While torrid weather continues, cyclamens, provided they are being grown in coldframes, will be much better without any sashes over them at all, except when there are signs of torrential rain. If lath shadings are used and run over the beds during bright sunshine, the plants will be cooler and do much better without any glass covering. Play the hose over the shading twice or thrice a day, just sufficiently to damp over and at the same time cool and refresh the plants. Be sure the shadings are raised so that a good current of air can blow in at both the top and bottom; four to six inches of an elevation will suffice.

Cyclamens do not like hot weather and, like quite a few other plants, do not make rapid headway in July and August. The most forward plants should now be sufficiently strong to go into 6 inch pots. In potting, do not bury the corm; it should be just sufficiently deep in the soil to hold the plant firm. Too high an elevation, with a shaky top, means a worthless plant and is even worse than burying it. The soil should be well firmed and be sure to allow a liberal space for water. Two-thirds good fibrous loam and one-third decayed cow manure, passed through a half-inch screen, forms a good potting medium. Add to the foregoing some sharp sand, fine broken charcoal and a 3-inch potful of Clay's fertilizer to each bushel of soil.

Poinsettias.

Cuttings of poinsettias can be inserted until the middle of August, and the late ones, while they will not make large bracts, are really preferable for making up into pans, owing to their dwarfness. In putting in cuttings during this hot weather, trim the leaves off quite closely and let the cuttings lie in a pail of water half an hour, to help plump them up. If the sand is sharp, so that water passes away freely, there should be little trouble from damping off. Be sure to examine the cuttings frequently and, just as soon as they have made roots an inch long, pot them. If left longer the roots will be broken; the cuttings will soon harden and never make as satisfactory plants as if potted more promptly.

The earliest rooted cuttings are, or soon should be, planted out in benches. This is the way to get big bracts for Christmas, but be sure to grow them in a house where a minimum temperature of 60 to 65 degrees can be maintained while the bracts are developing. Any compost suitable for carnations or chrysanthemums will grow first-class poinsettias. Plants in pots should not receive any shade when once they have become established in their first pots. No plant requires more careful watering if good foliage is wanted. The drainage in the pots or pans should be fairly liberal. Avoid using too much manure in the soil, as it is better to supply this later, in the way of top dressings or waterings with liquid manure.

Achimenes.

Achimenes are not a great deal grown commercially, but are useful in July and August, when flowering plants are none too plentiful. If in pots or pans, light stakes should be used for each flowering stem before the blooms start to open. Leave these a little longer than the shoots are, as they will be the better of another tie later, to keep them erect. These are excellent basket plants, and to display their full beauty they should be grown in this way, where flowering basket plants can be used in summer. Treatment such as has been advised for gloxinias, in former issues, answers well for achimenes. A cool, airy house, well shaded, is what they want in summer. Too often they are seen in so-called stove houses, drawn and spindling, a mere ghost of what they should be. For window or piazza boxes, where they are not exposed to sun or wind, achimenes are satisfactory summer plants. The large flowered varieties are the only ones worth growing.

Adiantums.

The sale for maidenhair fronds is now at its lowest. Every effort should be made to build up strong plants, which will have an abundance of firm, dark green, well ripened fronds when the real selling season again opens. The houses should have sufficient shade to make the fronds dark in color. The pots should never suffer from want of water, or a lamentable loss of foliage is bound to result. Feeding should be given regularly. A good liquid is soot and cow manure. The former helps to eep the fronds a fine, rich green color nd might, with advantage, be more enerally used, not only on adiantums, ut on all other ferns, as well as palms nd foliage plants generally.

If there is no suitable greenhouse for rowing adiantums in summer, a well-aded frame should be used. In this the rowth will be far better than in even e best built greenhouse, as the plants re close to the glass, and their growth ill surprise those who have never yet ed this method of culture. Look out r snails. Scatter lime about their unts and lay baits, in the way of bbage or lettuce leaves and slices of ot crops, examining them at least ee a day.

Clerodendron Fallax.

The climbing clerodendrons, such as homsonæ and Balfourianum, are old vorites and much better known than e shrubby section. Of the latter ss C. fallax, a native of Java, has en a popular pot plant in Europe for any years, and is to a limited extent own in America. It flowers during e summer months, and its large, ter-nal, erect panicles of rich scarlet owers are showy and last well in oom. The large, dark green cordate-vate leaves are in themselves quite ndsome.

While classed as a tropical plant, this erodendron grows capitally in either frame or ordinary greenhouse in sum-r. Its propagation is easy; seeds rminate readily, and if they are sown January, strong blooming plants ay be had the first season. Soft-wood ttings root in a brisk heat, while eces of stem cut up in short lengths ill also soon produce growths in a warm propagating bed. Among summer owering pot plants, Clerodendron fal-x is well worthy of the attention of orists.

Genistas.

Genistas are making excellent growth spite of the hot weather. Pots are uch better plunged to the brim in shes or loam during the summer onths. This reduces the watering, eps the roots cooler and moister and e plants grow much better. Young ck propagated in late winter should w be ready to go into 5-inch or uch pots. Easter lilies were available all the year around, but callas still sell steadily if not briskly; it largely depends on the size of the market and how well it is supplied with similar stock at the time one's crop is ready.

SEASONABLE SEED SOWING.

Pansies.

From July 20 to August 15 pansy seed should be sown, the earlier date being for the more northerly states and the later period for the south. As a general rule, the first week in August is selected by a majority of the large growers as a suitable date. There are a number of American specialists who handle excellent, large-flowered strains of pansy seed. The bulk of this, however, comes from Europe. Trimardeau Giant, either mixed or in separate shades, is an excellent pansy, possessing a robust constitution. Fine named varieties of this pansy are: Queen of the Blues, lavender blue; Snow Queen, pure white; Emperor William, fine dark blue; Golden Gem, clear yellow, and King of Blacks, coal black. Cassier's Giant is a grand strain, the big flowers being beautifully blotched. Where rich red and wine shades are wanted, nothing can beat Mme. Perret. The seedlings, however, do not grow so lustily as the Trimardeau varieties.

Seed sowing is usually done in the open by the large specialists, the beds being covered by a light mulch until germination takes place. Where at most a few thousand plants only are needed, a better and surer plan is to sow in coldframes in a compost of leaf-mold and loam. Some old, well decayed hotbed manure can also be added with benefit. After sowing, soak the soil well and cover with board shutters, mats or heavy cloth until the seedlings germinate. Then let light in gradually. Be sure to keep the ground moist, but let in a good current of air, top and bottom, as a close, stuffy atmosphere will cause the little seedlings to damp off.

Bedding Violas.

Bedding violas have smaller flowers than pansies and are minus the blotches peculiar to the latter. They are, however, much freer blooming and for dotting among such bulbs as hyacinths and tulips, or making separate beds in partial shade, they are well worthy of more attention. Their treatment is precisely the same as recommended for pansies. Sow the seed broadcast, and when of sufficient size transplant three inches apart each way in coldframes or outdoors in beds on well drained ground, where water cannot lie. Such sorts as Admiration, dark blue; Mauve Queen, light blue; White Perfection, pure white; Blue Perfection, mauve, and grandiflora lutea, golden yellow, are all strictly first-class.

Myosotis.

Myosotis always meets with a big sale in the spring months. Like the violas, it is splendid for filling in between bulbs, and there is also a strong call for it for cemetery planting. The first week in August is sufficiently early to sow myosotis, as the seedlings grow rapidly. For spring bedding the variety sylvatica, of spreading and robust habit, is the best. For pot culture or planting along the edges of benches, M. dissitiflora is excellent, as is the variety Royal Blue, which latter carries extra strong stems. Where compact plants are wanted for setting in baskets, nothing can be better than the variety Alpestris Victoria, procurable in separate shades of blue, pink and pure white. The greatest seller is, of course, blue, but there are some customers who are quite carried away with the pink variety. These myosotis are excellent for planting in the rock garden or for natural planting in any place where they can have a little shade.

Double Daisies.

Double daisies need not be sown before the beginning or middle of August, as they grow quickly. They are satisfactory as a groundwork in bulb beds and, given some shade and water, will bloom all summer. They sell well put up in small baskets in spring and, while they will never be disposed of in any such quantities as pansies, it will pay any country florist to grow a few hundreds or thousands for spring trade. Seed is procurable in either mixtures or separate shades of pink and white. The flowers come quite double from seed. Treated the same as pansies, they will succeed nicely.

Freesia Purity.

FREESIAS.

The bulbs of freesias will be procurable within a few days and, where a batch is wanted for Christmas or New Year's, the bulbs should be placed in flats or large pans at once. For compost, two-thirds well decayed fibrous loam, one-third cow manure, well dried and passed through a ½-inch screen, and to which is added some flaky leafmold and a good dash of sharp sand, will be found all right. Freesias do well in flats containing four inches of soil, or in pans ten to twelve inches in diameter, which can be set on shelves. The latter method of culture gives better spikes than the flats. The finest of all freesias is Fischer's Purity, but a good strain of refracta alba, when well grown, is not to be despised.

In planting just cover the bulbs. Set the pans or flats on a cool cellar floor, or in coldframes. The former is best. Give a good watering and keep shaded until growth has started, when light must be given. Frame culture until the end of September is the best.

FLOWER SHOWS IN LONDON.

Royal Horticultural Society.

Two great shows have just been held in London—the summer show of the Royal Horticultural Society, at Holland Park, and the summer show of the National Rose Society, at the Royal Botanic Gardens.

The dominant feature of the Horticultural Society's show was hardy flowers, set up in great profusion by the principal growers. In all the collections delphiniums were the leading flowers. Rock garden and Japanese garden exhibits were popular and there were, in addition, grand banks of orchids and carnations and fine groups of roses and sweet peas.

Amos Perry, Enfield, outdistanced all exhibitors with delphiniums, putting up huge groups of stately spikes in great variety and obtaining awards of merit for Lamartini and Belladonna semiplena. The new and popular delphinium, Rev. E. Lascelles, was put up in excellent form by the raisers, A. A. Walters & Son, Bath. Frank Lilley, Guernsey, specialized in early flowering gladioli, showing eight or ten splendid varieties and obtaining an award of merit for King Edward VII.

In roses the sensation of the day was Juliet, from William Paul & Sons, Waltham Cross; this received a first-class certificate. It is difficult to describe the colors—pink and rose, shot with gold. Alex. Dickson & Sons, Newtownards, received awards of merit for Mrs. Foley Hobbs and Mary, Countess of Ilchester.

The Lyon rose dominated the rose section. Fine blooms were in evidence from Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park; Paul & Son, Cheshunt; Ben Cant & Son, Colchester, and many others. It is in great demand.

Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham, were strongly represented by Wichuraianas in variety, in standards and dwarfs.

All the leading carnation men were in evidence with splendid vases of blooms, notably Stuart Low & Co.; W. H. Page, Hampton; A. F. Dutton, Iver; H. Burnett, Guernsey; C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, etc.

Blackmore & Langdon, Bath, exhibited marvelous begonias and received an award of merit for Mrs. W. L. Ainslie.

In orchids, Stuart Low & Co. were again to the front, receiving a first-class certificate for Cattleya Mendellii, variety Stuart Low. Sander & Sons, Bruges and St. Albans, received a similar honor for Miltonia vexillaria Lambeaniana, and awards of merit for Cattleya Mendellii King George, Cypripedium Curtisii, variety Sander, and Cattleya Dietrichiana.

Novelties worthy of note were: Sodenia, a bright, rosy crimson polyantha rose from C. Weigand, Germany; Pink Pearl, an early flowering gladiolus raised by P. Vos, Sassenheim, Holland; Queen of the Balcony, a scarlet ivy-leaved pelargonium from W. Leib, Crefeld, Germany, and Lathyrus Pink Pearl, from Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham.

National Rose Show.

This was held July 8 and was an extensive show, of great beauty. In new varieties the prize of honor is the society's gold medal, and though there were many novelties, some of great beauty and promise, only four secured the coveted award; namely, Edward Mawley, a dark crimson hybrid tea, the sensation of the show, from McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland; Mrs. Joseph H. Welch, pink, from the same firm; Lady Hillingdon, from Lowe & Shawyer, Ltd., Uxbridge, and Rayon d'Or, from A. R. Waddell.

Silver gilt medals were awarded to Evelyn Dauntsey, pink, from S. McGredy & Son; Mrs. George Shawyer, from Lowe & Shawyer; St. Helena, from B. R. Cant & Co., Colchester, and Mrs. Foley Hobbs, from Alex. Dickson & Sons, Newtownards.

The champion trophy, for seventy-two blooms, was won by Alex. Dickson & Sons. In the hybrid tea section, Hugh Dickson, Belfast, was the winner, and in the tea and noisette class, George Prince, Oxford.

For decorative roses the leading prize winners were J. Mattock and Frank Cant & Co.; for groups of roses, George Paul & Sons, Hobbies, Ltd., and J. Mattock; for twelve vases of new seedling roses, Hugh Dickson, first; Alexander Dickson & Son, second.

The class for table decorations brought out a strong competition and many lovely decorative effects were produced, the first prize going to a table decorated with the Lyon rose; Irish Elegance, second.

American Visitors.

Among the American visitors to the foregoing shows, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., were keen scrutinizers of roses, carnations and other subjects, especially the novelties. They were the guests of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, July 5. Mr. Hill entertained the members in capital style with a chat on carnations and, by special request, he gave his views on the season's American novelties. Taking them one by one, he reviewed their salient features, greatly to the interest and delight of his English audience, humorously remarking at the outset that, if he went wrong, Mr. Goddard would pull him up. Mr. Goddard substantiated Mr. Hill's views and spoke mainly on the exhibits he had seen that day at Holland Park. A discussion followed, and both Americans were most enthusiastically thanked for their genial speeches.

Bee.

Baseball and Crescent.

BASEBALL AND CRESCENT.

Probably as unusual a design as any retail florist ever was called on to make was that demanded of Rocklin & Lehman, Sioux City, Ia., for which nothing would do but a crescent on base, with which was to be combined a representation of a baseball, the design being for the players in the Sioux City League. How M. Rocklin met the unusual requirements of the case is shown in the accompanying illustration, which is from a photograph which the purchasers had made, which latter fact throws a side light on how satisfactorily the job was done. The design stood six feet high; the base was made with Sprengeri and cycas leaves for green and with water lilies, Easter lilies and a few roses. The crescent was made in the conventional form, with an edging of galax leaves and a background of asters, upon which were set roses and water lilies. The representation of the baseball was attached to the upper point of the crescent by a wire which was covered by the chiffon bow. Instead of making the ball round, only a hemisphere was made, on a background of galax. White carnations were used for the leather, with red carnations representing the stitches. The initials of the league were put on with the patent immortelle letters.

The average florist doubtless would consider this a better design had its special feature been omitted, but when customers want something of this character it usually indicates their willingness to pay a special price to get it, and when the ideas are well carried out better satisfaction for the customer usually results than where the florist tries to change the course of events and sell something more conventional.

Logansport, Ind.—C. Kielsing & Son will erect two connected iron-frame greenhouses, each 32x325. The George M. Garland Co. material will be used.

Easter lilies were available all the year around, but callas still sell steadily if not briskly; it largely depends on the size of the market and how well it is supplied with similar stock at the time one's crop is ready.

The Lyon rose dominated the rose section. Fine blooms were in evidence from Stuart Low & Co. Bush Hill Park; Paul & Son, Cheshunt; Ben Cant & Son, Colchester, and many others. It is in great demand.

Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham, were strongly represented by Wichuraianas in variety, as standards and dwarfs.

All the leading carnation men were in evidence with splendid vases of blooms, notably Stuart Low & Co.; W. J. Page, Hampton; A. F. Dutton, Iver; J. Burnett, Guernsey; C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, etc.

Blackmore & Langdon, Bath, exhibited marvelous begonias and received an award of merit for Mrs. W. L. Winslie.

In orchids, Stuart Low & Co. were again to the front, receiving a first-class certificate for Cattleya Mendellii, variety Stuart Low. Sander & Sons, Bruges and St. Albans, received a similar honor for Miltonia vexillaria Lambeauiana, and awards of merit for Cattleya Mendellii King George, Cypripedium Curtisii, variety Sander, and Cattleya Dietrichiana.

Novelties worthy of note were: Sonenia, a bright, rosy crimson polyantha rose from C. Weigand, Germany; Pink Pearl, an early flowering gladiolus raised by P. Vos, Sassenheim, Holland; Queen of the Balcony, a scarlet ivy-leaved pelargonium from W. Leib, Crefeld, Germany, and Lathyrus Pink Pearl, from Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham.

National Rose Show.

This was held July 8 and was an extensive show, of great beauty. In new varieties the prize of honor is the society's gold medal, and though there were many novelties, some of great beauty and promise, only four secured the coveted award; namely, Edward Mawley, a dark crimson hybrid tea, the sensation of the show, from McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland; Mrs. Joseph H. Welch, pink, from the same firm; Lady Hillingdon, from Lowe & Shawyer, Ltd., Uxbridge, and Rayon d'Or, from A. R. Waddell.

Silver gilt medals were awarded to Evelyn Dauntsey, pink, from S. McGredy & Son; Mrs. George Shawyer, from Lowe & Shawyer; St. Helena, from B. R. Cant & Co., Colchester, and Mrs. Foley Hobbs, from Alex. Dickson Sons, Newtownards.

The champion trophy, for seventy-two blooms, was won by Alex. Dickson Sons. In the hybrid tea section, Hugh Dickson, Belfast, was the winner, and in the tea and noisette class, George Prince, Oxford.

For decorative roses the leading prize winners were J. Mattock and Frank Cant & Co.; for groups of roses, George Paul & Sons, Hobbies, Ltd., and J. Mattock; for twelve vases of new seedling roses, Hugh Dickson, first; Alexander Dickson & Son, second.

The class for table decorations brought out a strong competition and many lovely decorative effects were produced, the first prize going to a table decorated with the Lyon rose; Irish Elegance, second.

American Visitors.

Among the American visitors to the foregoing shows, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., were keen scrutinizers of roses, carnations and other subjects, especially the novelties. They were the guests of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, July 5. Mr. Hill entertained the members in capital style with a chat on carnations and, by special request, he gave his views on the season's American novelties. Taking them one by one, he reviewed their salient features, greatly to the interest and delight of his English audience, humorously remarking at the outset that, if he went wrong, Mr. Goddard would pull him up. Mr. Goddard substantiated Mr. Hill's views and spoke mainly on the exhibits he had seen that day at Holland Park. A discussion followed, and both Americans were most enthusiastically thanked for their genial speeches.

Baseball and Crescent.

BASEBALL AND CRESCENT.

Probably as unusual a design as any retail florist ever was called on to make was that demanded of Rocklin & Lehman, Sioux City, Ia., for which nothing would do but a crescent on base, with which was to be combined a representation of a baseball, the design being for the players in the Sioux City League. How M. Rocklin met the unusual requirements of the case is shown in the accompanying illustration, which is from a photograph which the purchasers had made, which latter fact throws a side light on how satisfactorily the job was done. The design stood six feet high; the base was made with Sprengeri and cycas leaves for green and with water lilies, Easter lilies and a few roses. The crescent was made in the conventional form, with an edging of galax leaves and a background of asters, upon which were set roses and water lilies. The representation of the baseball was attached to the upper point of the crescent by a wire which was covered by the chiffon bow. Instead of making the ball round, only a hemisphere was made, on a background of galax. White carnations were used for the leather, with red carnations representing the stitches. The initials of the league were put on with the patent immortelle letters.

The average florist doubtless would consider this a better design had its special feature been omitted, but when customers want something of this character it usually indicates their willingness to pay a special price to get it, and when the ideas are well carried out better satisfaction for the customer usually results than where the florist tries to change the course of events and sell something more conventional.

REMOVING CEMENT FROM TILE.

Is there anything that will loosen Portland cement after it becomes set and dried hard? We have a tile chimney which we intend to tear down, and we wish to remove the cement without injury to the tile. C. L. W.

Strcng solutions of hydrochloride and sulphuric acid have slight effect upon concrete or cement sand mortar. Under the circumstances, it will be impossible for you, perhaps, to remove the mortar joint from the tile with chisels, as the joints are not easily accessible. If this is the case, I can see no way of applying acid to the joints in such a manner that it will be effective.

If the tile chimney can be taken down and the joints broken with a chisel or by some other method, the cement mortar can possibly be cleaned from the tile with a commercial solution of either of the above named acids and a wire brush. If, however, the cement mortar is first-class, I have no doubt but what the cost of breaking the joints and cleaning the tile will be much more than that of new tile.

ONE'S OWN MISTAKES.

If an express company gives a receipt for a shipment to be forwarded to a specified destination and the package is in error marked to another place and so forwarded, are the shippers under obligations to pay the extra charge, or should they pay only the tariff to the point specified in the receipt? If the same thing occurs and the package contains articles of a perishable nature, is the express company under legal obligations to pay shipper for loss sustained? T.

The shipper is bound to pay express charges in this case to the place to which the direction on the package indicated that it was to be carried. If the articles were of a perishable nature, and were lost by reason of the mistake, the shipper must bear the loss. The mistake was made by the shipper, and it is proper that he should bear all resulting loss. He gave the direction that the company put upon the receipt, and he also marked the package, and any mistake that was made was his mistake in the first place. It might have been possible for the company to discover it more promptly, by extra vigilance, but a carrier is not bound to assume that the shipper will make mistakes of this kind, and to be specially upon the lookout for them.—Journal of Commerce.

TAX ON GROWING STOCK.

I write you in regard to a little matter I saw in The Review a few months ago. I have mislaid the copy and am unable to find the facts. I was notified a few days ago to appear before the city board of tax review to answer why I had not paid a tax on my greenhouse stock. I am under the impression that the article I saw in The Review stated it was tried in court and that we were not to pay a tax on our growing stock. Could you at once write me where I can find out the facts of the matter? Any information you can give me will be thankfully received. R. B.

The Review has published a considerable number of articles regarding taxation of florists' growing crops. Laws vary in the different states, so that conditions are not similar, but in general the trouble arises through the efforts of local taxing officials to raise revenue; in their eagerness they go beyond the limits of the state laws under which they work.

There are only two things to be done: You should go to your taxing body and make a strong but good-natured statement of the facts; endeavor to show the taxing authorities that the florists' growing crops in the benches are in the same class with farmers' growing crops, which are not taxable. If you do not succeed in getting the assessment adjusted to your satisfaction, the only other thing to do is to hire a lawyer, but usually taxing bodies are reasonable and it is possible to show them that such stock as carnation and rose plants growing in the bench have no taxable value.

CINCH BUGS ON ASTERS.

A fly, one of which you will find in the enclosed envelope, stings or taps the stems from a half-inch to five inches under the bud of the asters. The buds then wither. This insect is of a species somewhere between a mosquito and a common house-fly in size and appearance. Can you tell us what to do to kill these pests? D. & W.

The cinch bug, which annually does a great deal of damage to chrysanthemums when grown outdoors, also to Pyrethrum uliginosum, asters and other members of the compositæ family, is a hard pest to fight. Growers of chrysanthemums in pots outdoors sometimes use a framework of mosquito screening, with which to enclose their plants. Poisons are of no avail. Soapy and nicotine solutions seem equally futile. Spraying with some bitter tasting liquid, such as is obtained by soaking quassia chips in water, is the best remedy I have tried, but even this is not a complete success. I am inclined to think that by using kerosene emulsion, or Whale Oil soap in conjunction with the quassia chip extract that the pests may be tempted to give the plants a wide berth. Perhaps some other readers can give us some helpful suggestions on this subject. C. W.

MOTHS IN GREENHOUSE.

At the present time I am troubled by a kind of tiny moth. They invade my greenhouses by the hundreds and seem to damage chiefly chrysanthemums, heliotropes and cinerarias. I have never been troubled by them before, and I would be glad to know of some way to get rid of them. I have used nicotine fumigation and spraying, but of no avail. I am enclosing some of the moths and caterpillars so you can see what they are. T. B.

This particular moth I have not seen before. It is much smaller than the common white butterfly, so destructive sometimes on chrysanthemums, mignonette, cinerarias, etc., and of a brown color. Fumigation, if persisted in, should account for many of the moths themselves. Try fly papers also to catch them. Spraying with some poison is necessary to kill the larvæ, which do the real damage. Paris green is liable to burn the leaves. Arsenate of lead will rather disfigure them. Try white hellebore at the rate of one pound to fifteen or twenty gallons of water, directing it below the leaves, or it can be applied in powder form through a pair of sulphur bellows, damping over the foliage first to make it adhere. If you keep up the fumigation, selecting the coolest nights for this operation, and use the hellebore, you should speedily get the upper hand of your foes. C. W.

PHLOX AND HOLLYHOCKS.

I wish to grow a number of perennial phlox and hollyhocks to bloom next summer. Can I sow seed now and obtain blooming plants by July 1, 1911, in this Arkansas climate? Is it better to sow the seed in greenhouses or in frames, and do the seedlings require any shade? G. T. D.

Hollyhock seed should be sown now in order to get strong plants for blooming with you about July 1 next year. The seed can be sown either outdoors or in a coldframe. I prefer the latter, as the seed can be watered, insuring better germination. Shading until the seedlings are up is an advantage.

You cannot now get good plants of perennial phlox from either seed or cuttings. The best method of propagation is from cuttings taken when the plants commence to grow in spring. Root these in sand, as you would chrysanthemums. Plant out in nursery rows and you will get fine plants for selling in fall or spring. You can also increase stock by dividing old clumps, but cuttings give better results. Your best plan now would be to buy some field-grown plants of the phlox this fall. They are better planted in October rather than in the spring. C. W.

A TYPICAL ESTABLISHMENT.

The accompanying illustrations are typical of a great number of florists' establishments the country over, though this one chances to be located at Denver, Colo., which is one of the stepping stones of the trade, between the central west and the Pacific coast. This is the residence and range of Thurston H. U. Smith, who does a general retail business. The location, at 2961 Lawrence street, is well adapted to the purpose and Mr. Smith has gathered about himself facilities for handling about anything that comes along, in plant renting, funeral designs or garden work. He believes in practicing what all florists should preach and his vine-clad residence is surrounded by a well-kept flower garden that both brings orders and supplies the stock to fill them. Having only three greenhouses, Mr. Smith must buy a large part of the stock he uses. The longest house, 104 feet, shows in one of the pictures. The two other houses, on the other side of this, are each forty-four feet long.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF TODAY.

It is generally admitted that the business problem is to reach the buyer. When material is produced it is often hard, very hard, to find an outlet for it at paying prices. An outlet can generally be found for plants or flowers at some price, but competition and the fact that so many customers must be tempted make ruinously low prices easy. Under these conditions it is especially interesting to see what the bright minds in our business are doing today.

An instance that occurred in Philadelphia during May and June is the distribution by one of our hustling florists of the blue rose. He was able to purchase a good supply of this novelty and decided to put it on the market. His idea was that, owing to remoteness of his establishment from the heart of the city, it would be unwise to have his customers for the blue rose come in person, as this would only increase his selling expenses. He therefore gave a mailing address only in his attractively worded offers published in the daily papers. The first point to be decided after this was the price of the rose. It had been purchased at $10 per hundred in small pots. Therefore 50 cents seemed to insure a satisfactory profit after deducting all expenses for packing and mailing. Upon second thought, however, it seemed easier for the customer to slip a dollar note in his envelope than coin, and then the dollar note has the additional advantage of enhancing the value of the purchase. So it was decided that the selling price should be $1 each. Here is a sample of the offer:

We are introducing this beautiful color, for which we have waited centuries. Healthy, living, perfectly hardy plants, grown and shipped in flower pots. Sent prepaid on receipt of $1. Will bear in abundance year after year.

This brought results; later it was decided to improve on the offer by giving two roses for $1.50, your own rose for $1 and a discount of 50 cents on your friend's rose if you secured the order. With the plant sent to each buyer was a neat little slip saying that if you could get the names of three friends whom you considered likely to buy the blue roses or other horticultural products you would receive another blue rose for 50 cents. A second slip, attractively worded, was also sent to each customer. Here it is:

Roses without number there are—dozens and hundreds of every imaginable tint and shade, from cold, glittering snow white, through all the delicate modulation of color in pale tints of salmon, flesh and pink and deepest crimson, to a color so dark that it might almost be called black—and yet, with all this lavish and bountiful distribution, blue has persistently evaded the efforts even of those who have devoted their lives to it.

But it is here at last, and it has remained for this first decade of the twentieth century, which has seen the discovery of the North Pole, the practical application of the flying machine, and development of many other heretofore "impossible" things, to witness this latest triumph in the realm of growing things—The Blue Rose.

The easiest way to describe it is to say it is a Blue Crimson Rambler—that is, imagine a climbing Rose with all the strength and vigor of the Crimson Rambler, covering immense spaces with its wondrous heavy canes and large, splendid foliage, and bearing immense trusses of Roses, all the way from twenty to 100 in number, but, instead of the gorgeous crimson flowers we all know so well, picture it in your mind with similar clusters of exquisitely beautiful Violet Blue Roses.

The Rose World is wild about the Blue Roses, and we expect even our enormous stock of the plants to be speedily exhausted.

This wonderful production of the heretofore elusive color in the Rose World is a seedling from the Crimson Rambler discovered by a poor German florist.

What a beautiful effect can be produced by having a red, white and blue Rambler all trailing on the same porch, fence or trellis, forming the national colors, or even on the lawn, or in the rose garden. It is a mistaken idea that ramblers have to have a support; they can be grown very successfully in bush form.

We control almost all the stock in the United States for this season. We are advertising same and meeting with excellent results, as the color is generally desired and every one seems anxious to be the first to plant same in their garden.

While our floral artists may not agree that the proposed color scheme is in good taste, they will certainly accept this as an example of modern business methods applied to flowers.

The returns have been large.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Nathan Smith.

Mrs. Nathan Smith, mother of Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., died July 12, of heart failure, at Rochester, Mich., where she was visiting a niece. Though nearly 87 years of age, she had been apparently unusually well when she left home a few days before.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Green, who were pioneers of Flint and Genesee county. She was born in New York state before the family removed to the wilderness, but was only a little girl when the trip west was made by her people. She was married at Southfield, Mich., and the first year of her married life was spent near Birmingham. Afterward the family home for sixteen years was at Detroit, where Mr. Smith worked at his trade as a cabinet maker.

After their removal to Adrian, Mr. Smith continued to work at his trade, while Mrs. Smith presided over the home and busied herself with her plants and flowers, as an expression of an inherent love. From a conservatory, which was first a part of her home at 167 West Maumee street, have developed the greenhouses of Elmer D. Smith & Co., wholesalers, at 167 to 175 West Maumee street, and formerly conducted by Nathan Smith & Son. Mr. Smith, with the growing demands of the greenhouse business, finally gave up his trade to assist Mrs. Smith, and together they developed the work step by step, assisted by the son, who later took over the management and who achieved such success in chrysanthemum development as to win national recognition. Another son, Alfred, died of pneumonia, while serving in the civil war. The husband died three years ago.

Mrs. Annie Russler.

Mrs. Annie Russler, well known in the trade about Chicago, died at Roseland, Ill., Sunday, July 17, of cancer, the funeral being held July 21 from 11217 Michigan avenue. Mrs. Russler was the divorced wife of Jacob Russler, who has for years operated the greenhouses near Mount Hope cemetery, Morgan Park, Ill. Since the family troubles which resulted in a separation Mrs. Russler has conducted a successful retail flower store for her own account at Roseland, where she died.

Gustav Drobisch.

Gustav Drobisch, one of the pioneer florists of Columbus, O., died at his residence, 1265 South High street, July 9. Death was due to a complication of diseases, but his illness was only of a week's duration. He was born in Saxony, Germany, and came to this country when only 14 years of age. He was one of the few surviving charter members of the Humboldt Verein, the oldest of the German literary societies in Columbus. He had been engaged in growing flowers at the same place for forty years. He left a widow and five daughters, Mrs. R. D. Simpson, Mrs. Jacob Elsper, Mrs. Herman Kropp, Mrs. W. R. Jones and Miss Alma Drobisch.

Elmhurst, N. Y.—H. Bottjer died last April and Mrs. Bottjer, who has continued the business until now, has decided to close it out.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

There is every indication that the first exhibition of gladiolus blooms, under the direction of the American Gladiolus Society, will be very successful, but we hope that everyone interested in gladioli will lend his aid in making it an unusual success. Our membership now is about 110. We would like to double this before the annual meeting in August. Let us all give a boost. Start it by sending your application.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The general opinion of the store men is that this summer is unusually quiet. Stock is limited and what there is does not show up well. Lilies are plentiful and are used mostly in funeral work.

Various Notes.

This city is to have another wholesale house, to be opened August 15 by Good & Halliday on Genesee street. Mr. Good came recently from the east and has just ended a term of service with S. A. Anderson. Mr. Halliday is a Buffalo man. This will give Buffalo three wholesale houses.

J. N. Bailey, of the Buffalo Cut Flower Co., has been ill for some time and has gone away for his health.

The picnic committee of the Florists' Club has arranged an excellent program for the annual picnic, to be held at Fort Erie Grove, July 27. The boats run every five minutes and the place will be at the disposal of the members. A complete stadium will be the scene of the ball game and other sports, and several prizes have been arranged for.

For the last few years the downtown stores have closed at 6:30 p. m. during the dull summer season, but owing to one or two holding out, the others have this year to keep open just the same as in winter. Only a little business is done in the stores after dark, but the owners cannot see the reason for closing.

J. Rowland Cloudsley, of the Lenox Flower Shop, was slightly injured last week while out on a launch trip. Two boats collided and it was only by good fortune that he was not severely injured.

STORING BEGONIAS.

Will you please inform me as to the best way to dry and store tuberous-rooted begonias? I have never been able to carry them through the winter; they always suffered with dry rot.

A. U. M.

Do not dry off your begonias too suddenly. This is a common error and a fertile cause of the tubers dry-rotting in winter. When the tops are entirely decayed and the soil about dry, so that it readily falls away, you can shake out the tubers and pack them in fine sawdust, sand or loam, storing them on a shelf in a dry room or cellar, where the temperature in winter runs from 45 to 50 degrees. A high temperature, such as suits fancy caladiums and gloxinias, is unsuitable for tuberous begonias. The tubers can be packed in boxes or bags, the former being preferable.

C. W.

Norwalk, O.—Fred G. Laible, who conducts a flower store in connection with his undertaking business on Benedict avenue, has sold a half interest in his business to F. P. Sheldon, of Fitchville, and the name of the new firm is Laible & Sheldon.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Oskaloosa, Ia.—Miller E. Terry, employed by a local florist, and Miss Aneta L. Stapela were married at Parkersburg, July 12.

Hoopeston, Ill.—Andrew Peterson and his family are spending a fortnight camping on the river near Momence, Ill.

Memphis, Tenn.—Application for a charter has been filed by the Idlewild Greenhouses; capital, $20,000. The incorporators are: C. W. Schwill, T. G. Owen, W. H. Englehart, Otto Schwill and I. H. Peres.

Lenox, Mass.—The Lenox Horticultural Society will hold its annual summer exhibition at the town hall, Thursday, July 28. This exhibition consists chiefly of annuals and perennials, sweet peas, fruits and vegetables.

Massillon, O.—Frank Kestes, who has been working for A. Weaver for the last few years, has formed a partnership with his brother and they are erecting two greenhouses at the east edge of town for growing a general line of stock. The firm name will be Kestes Bros.

Quincy, Mass.—On the Fourth of July, William Patterson made use of a parade to good effect for advertising purposes. He entered the procession with a wagon that was beautifully decorated with rambler roses and he scattered roses and carnations, it is said, generously all along the route.

Paterson, N. J.—The Paterson Floral Co., which was burned out at 304 Main street, in the fire of June 27, is now located permanently at 227 Market street. The name, Paterson Floral Co., however, has been dropped, and the new establishment will be known as The Flower Shop. The proprietors are Stoutenborough & Smith.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—One of the write-up magazines of the class that does not enjoy the second-class mail privilege, and which usually depends for circulation upon the sale of copies to the people written up, recently devoted an issue to Columbia county, of which this place is the seat. Four of the florists of the county bought copies entitling them to illustrated write-ups.

Newburgh, N. Y.—At the annual meeting of the Yuess Gardens Co. the following officers were elected: President, W. Stanley Murtfeldt; vice-president, Percy W. Herbert; secretary, Walter Mott; treasurer, R. Harry Cathcart, Jr. These also constitute the board of directors. Mr. Herbert has charge of the nursery and greenhouse plant. Mr. Mott will continue to manage the seed and bulb department, also acting as traveling salesman. All are well known to the trade.

Villa Ridge, Ill.—The heavy storms of wind and rain last week did much damage to the outdoor flowers grown here for the Chicago market.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—Leon E. Sawicki, who for many years has been employed on the big places around Chicago, has leased greenhouses here and gone into business for himself.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The American Association of Park Superintendents will hold its annual convention here August 6 to 10. A side trip to the Gettysburg battlefield will be one of the features.

St. Albans, Vt.—Henry Bryant, of Congress street, has transferred his florist business to George Cooke, of South Main street, who will take possession July 30, and carry it on in connection with his own greenhouses.

Vincennes, Ind.—Edward Schultz, who recently came here from Little Rock or Peoria, and rented the greenhouse of T. C. Dunn, has been enlivening things to a marked degree, but not in a way to add to the joys of life. Within the last few days Schultz and his landlord have had a physical encounter, and each has caused a warrant to be issued for the other.

Glenside, Pa.—No longer will it be necessary for perspiring mankind to push the heavy running lawn mower through the tall grass every Saturday half-holiday during the dog days—William W. Harrison, florist, nurseryman and landscapist, has come to the rescue! July 5 Mr. Harrison was granted a patent on a motor-driven mower, so that all the man who walks behind must do is steer.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The appointment of judges and the selection of rules to govern the flower show to be held in Temple theater, August 18 to 20, was the principal business transacted by the El Paso County Horticultural Society at its regular meeting July 5. A motion was also passed that if the theater is not large enough to care for all the exhibits, steps will be taken to erect a tent on Kiowa street, adjoining the building.

Gendbrugge, Belgium.—The fetes to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of Louis Van Houtte, possibly the most renowned of Belgian nurserymen, were held here June 26. Early in the morning the populace was astir, flags and banners floated in the air in the fronts of the houses, and Venetian masts were erected in the streets, with baskets of flowers half-way up, and surmounted with banners. There was a large gathering of those now in the trade to participate in the ceremonies. The present Van Houtte establishment here has, as part of its equipment, eighty-two greenhouses.

Dedham, Mass.—Edward Bingham and his son, Edward, Jr., sailed July 5 on the Ivernia for a short trip to England and Ireland.

Catskill, N. Y.—Henry Hansen is making a trip to the Fatherland, the first since he left it nearly forty years ago. He expects to be back in time for the convention.

Bellefonte, Pa.—Mrs. W. B. Johnson, who successfully conducts the greenhouse near Long's mill, was taken suddenly ill with acute indigestion July 10, and her condition is serious.

Rochester, N. H.—A large number of people were at Melvin Folsom's greenhouse on North Main street, Sunday night, July 10, to see his night blooming cereus, which was in full bloom for several hours.

Southampton, L. I.—Much interest was shown by the summer residents this year in the fourth annual exhibition of the Southampton Horticultural Society, which was held July 20 and 21. A number of prizes were offered and competition was keen.

Montreal, Que.—Hall & Robinson call attention that ocean steamers sail at daybreak at this port, and say several orders for flowers to be delivered on board have arrived too late. For execution, orders must reach Montreal the day before the steamer sails.

Wooster, O.—F. H. De Witt & Co. went into bankruptcy July 15. No statement of the liabilities or assets has been given out by W. F. Kean, the referee. De Witt & Co. made a specialty of geraniums for the trade, and last season introduced a novelty called Red Wing.

Huntsville, Ala.—John Scott, formerly at Lebanon, Tenn., responding to an advertisement in The Review, has bought out the establishment of John T. Fisher, at this place. There are eight houses in all, and he is giving them a thorough overhauling. He also has material on the ground for two additional houses 25x125, with boiler-room and potting-shed. The new houses are to be devoted to carnations.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.—The Misses Mildred and Ruth Flick are now associated in business with the Flick Floral Co., in the store on West Berry street, which has been conducted by Miss C. B. Flick for a number of years. Both young ladies are nieces of Miss Flick, and Miss Mildred Flick has been an assistant in the store for six years. Miss Ruth Flick has just completed the course of study at a local academy and she is now assuming part charge of the work of the store.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Now is the time to begin advertising your surplus of field-grown carnation plants.

The first half of July is the dullest time of the florists' year—we all are on the up grade once more.

Now while trade is dullest is an excellent time to collect the bills outstanding on last season's business.

There are a lot of good things offered in the Want ad columns of The Review. It pays to watch these pages.

St. Louis wants the S. A. F. convention in 1911 and it is said the Florists' Club and Horticultural Society there will join hands in an endeavor to secure a favorable vote at Rochester. Montreal will not renew its invitation for 1911, but will be in the field for 1912.

Our neighbors in Canada are as bad off as are the people of the United States in respect to the tariff; the florists there are not satisfied with the rates, but do not agree among themselves as to what they should be. They will make an effort to reconcile differences of opinion at the convention at St. Catherines next month and, by united action, get the tariff shaped to the ideas of the majority.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Kessler Bros., 52 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, and G. Dreyer, Woodside, L. I., offer for registration the fern described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date. Raiser's description: A sport of Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and of the Scottii type; of compact growth, with flat leaves of dark green color; the fronds are narrow and droop over the pot when the plant is full grown. Name: Nephrolepis Dreyerii.

H. B. Dorner, Sec'y.

July 14, 1910.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Rochester is making a strong effort to have a great show for the S. A. F. in August, and the American Rose Society will call a meeting during the convention. President Elliott will do all that is in his power to push the society along, following in the footsteps of the able men who were his predecessors.

A matter of some importance that will be brought up for consideration at Rochester will be looking forward to special prizes to be offered at the spring show of 1911. The American Rose Society, in the combined show of all flowers, wants to take the lead. Probably sixty per cent of all flowers raised for sale in America are roses, and what we want to do is to get in advance enough people interested to make the rose show in 1911 the best exhibit that can be produced. We would like to have prizes enough to warrant drawing exhibits from every point within transportable distances.

HOTELS AT ROCHESTER.

The hotels at Rochester are preparing to accommodate all who may attend the S. A. F. convention, but the wise visitor will engage his room at an early date. Although Rochester is well supplied with first-class hotels, it is not at all improbable that they will be crowded during convention week. Even now various clubs have booked advance orders for their members. The following are the leading hotels and their rates; all of them are near Convention hall:

Hotel Rochester, Main street west. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $2.50 without bath, $2.50 to $3.50 with bath.

Powers Hotel, Main street west. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $4.

Hotel Seneca, Clinton avenue south. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $3.50, single; $3 to $5, two persons.

Osburn House, 104 South avenue. American plan. Rates, $2.50 to $3.50.

Hotel Eggleston, 159 Main street east. European plan. Rates, $1 to $2.

Whitcomb House, 209 Main street east. European plan. Rates, $1 to $3.

Eastern Hotel, 102 Clinton avenue south. Men only. European plan.

The Bristol, 25 Central avenue. European plan.

Clinton Hotel, South avenue and Court street. American plan. Rates, $2.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The Chicago wholesale cut flower market is noted far and wide for its quick changes of condition, but it seldom has made a more sudden reversal of form than since the last issue of The Review. The earlier part of last week was exceptionally dull; there was scarcely anything stirring until Friday afternoon. Saturday, July 16, marked the change. Supplies, which had been slightly on the decrease for several days, dropped off sharply, and at the same time orders became more numerous, with the result that there was much skirmishing for stock. Prices took a quick advance, and the market that night was practically bare of flowers.

It is the same old story: Everyone throughout the broad territory supplied from Chicago performs the same cultural operations at about the same time and under the same conditions, with the result that when supplies are extremely heavy in Chicago they also are large in other towns, and when supplies fall off in the great central market they also fall off at other points, with a consequent quick increase in the shipping demand. Last week about the last of the old rose plants were either thrown out or dried off, and the replanting of carnations was begun in earnest; this cut down the supply in Chicago and elsewhere, and it brought about a condition where whatever demand there is through a big stretch of country now centers in this market.

The Killarney roses constitute the bulk of the stock in this department. With a number of houses White Killarney is even more abundant than the pink variety, the young stock of the

WHITE Killarney

A Large crop of fine quality now on.

Our Pink Killarneys are known far and wide as the finest roses that come into the Chicago market. The White Killarneys are from the same growers, and have the same quality. We never had nicer, cleaner summer Killarneys than this year. Try them and see for yourself. Send an order today.

Easter Lilies

We can furnish fancy Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. Remember, when you want Lilies you can always get them here. The supply is specially large at present. $8 to $10 per 100.

Beauties

Our Beauties give the best of satisfaction and our supply is such that we can take care of all orders. Would especially like to hear from buyers who do not think the average run of Beauties offered in this market good enough for their trade.

Kaiserin

Buyers who want the best Kaiserin to be had, whatever length, should send their orders to us.

Gladioli

There are just two varieties of Glads the retailers need: America, pink, and Augusta, white. We have these in large supply and of fine quality. Use these in window and work and they will draw trade for you.

Carnations

We can supply as good Carnations as the season affords.

Greens

Headquarters for Farleyense, Adiantum, Smilax, Asparagus bunches.

white sport so largely planted this year now coming into crop. The houses with reputation for having the best grade of goods naturally are getting the advantage of the present excellent demand, but any rose of fair quality now possesses marketability. The Beauty crops are light along with the others. It may be taken that supplies this week are at their lowest ebb and that the increase will be steady, though gradual.

Carnations have largely dropped out; it were better so, for much of the stock was of extremely poor quality. Some of the growers who still are cutting carnations of fair quality continue to ship and are realizing good prices, considering the season, for the supply of asters is not much of anything yet. There appears to have been much suffering among the aster plants as a result of the long spell of hot, dry weather. Most of the houses are receiving a few, but they are not yet of good quality, as a rule. The exceptions are the growers who have watered their plants.

Easter lilies are in a large supply, and there are increasing quantities of auratum. A larger quantity of candidums than ever before, of the Michigan crop, was placed in cold storage. These are still coming out, but are not in good condition and are realizing extremely small prices. There still are a few peonies in cold storage, but it will take only a day or two of such good demand as has prevailed since July 16 to clean up all that are usable. Gladioli are much more abundant, arriving from farther north. America and Augusta sell well, but little else is wanted. Valley is abundant. Cattleyas are not in large supply, but are less in demand. Sweet peas are finished. Water lilies are abundant but slow sale. The Shasta daisy crop is at an end or nearly so; most of the flowers now seen are poor.

The green goods market is quiet.

Friedman's Plans.

Some months ago it was announced in The Review that O. J. Friedman would have a flower store in the Congress hotel, formerly known as the Auditorium Annex, with the opening of the fall season. Fresh attention has been attracted to Mr. Friedman's plans this week by the announcement that he has sublet to a firm of ladies' tailors about two-thirds of the space leased by him in the hotel.

Mr. Friedman's lease, obtained shortly after the closing of the Hauswirth store, covered the three stores at 226, 227 and 228 Michigan avenue, and runs for a term of years. Mr. Friedman will continue his present store in the Stratford hotel under his own name, and will conduct the new Congress hotel store under the name of the Congress Floral Co., to which he personally has sublet the north store. It was the two south stores which last week were leased to another party. The space is now occupied by the hotel as a tea room. The Congress Floral Co. will get possession September 1. The store will be fitted up in first-class style and placed in charge of the best man Mr. Friedman can find. He intends to add one more to the list of Chicago's high-class stores.

Various Notes.

Ernst Rober has leased the establishment conducted by the late H. F. Port, at Maywood, Ill., and will grow young stock for the wholesale trade, making a specialty of poinsettias, Lorraine begonias, cyclamens and similar plants. Mr. Rober was formerly with the Aurora Greenhouse Co., and later with Muir, leaving the latter position July 5 to take hold at Maywood. He is an experienced propagator and plant grower, and feels that there is an excellent opportunity in the line he proposes to follow.

The obituary column contains the notice of the death of Mrs. Annie Russler, an old-time member of the trade.

Miss Marguerite Palinsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Palinsky, and Allen G. Mead were married July 16. This was the first wedding in the family, and Mr. Palinsky saw to it that the event was celebrated with proper elaboration. Several members of the trade were among the large number of guests.

C. A. Samuelson is an exceedingly busy man just now, not so much because of a rush of business as because of the vacation season. Buyer Ed Enders, and Tom Fogerty, the latter buyer for Friedman, are vacationing at a resort in Michigan, and David Geddis, Mr. Samuelson's chief maker-up, also is away.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., has returned from a week's visit to the Twin Cities.

The paving of Monroe street interrupts the traffic at the stores of Harry Rowe, John Mangel and the Bohannon Floral Co., but the interruption, since it must occur, hardly could come at a better season.

C. M. Dickinson says that the supply business at E. H. Hunt's never was so good in the summer as it is this year.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The blissfully cool wave revived the drooping spirits of the market and those dependent on it during part of the week ending Wednesday, July 20. Practically all of last season's flowers have disappeared, and the market is the better for it. The receipts of flowers each day are smallest now. The demand, such as it is, is about equally divided between the quality and quantity for design work. The quality buyer often finds it hard to procure what is desired, especially when white roses are needed. Kaiserin is decidedly the best, and Kaiserin is scarce—very scarce. Pink roses are in excess of the demand, while Beauties lack in feature beyond the arrival of the first new crop locally grown blooms. Good carnations are hard to procure. Only a grower here and there was skilful enough to carry his stock in creditable shape through the recent roast. There is a little good valley and plenty that is not so good. Gladioli are the strong feature of the market; the assortment is good and grades high. Asters are coming in more freely, but not freely enough for the buyers, who are buying in earnest where they can get nice Queen of the Market.

Local sweet peas are over, dependence now being placed on the fine stock from New York state. Candidum lilies have disappeared, their place being taken by Lilium album, with its scarlet sister promised soon. The modest outdoor flowers for design work are in moderate demand only.

Another Branch.

Rumor has been current for some time that a leading Philadelphia wholesale house would shortly open a branch in New York. This rumor—perhaps I should say fact—first saw the light of day in public print when the ever-wakeful New York correspondent of The Review wrote a little paragraph darkly hinting at the plan, and saying that Philadelphia is not slow. This is true. The Philadelphia correspondent of The Review made diligent inquiry in the City of Brotherly Love concerning this matter. Conference with the members of the house in question failed to affirm or—significant fact!—to deny the rumor, so the inquiry was repeated each week until this week, when Captain A. R. Jones, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., smilingly remarked: "I can tell you something today."

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of this city, has leased a store at 109 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city. This store will be run as a branch to the establishment here. It will be equipped in first-class style and will be open for business, it is expected, late in September. The New York branch will be under the supervision of Percy B. Rigby, treasurer of the company.

This move of the Pennock-Meehan Co. in establishing branches in Washington and in New York is a step forward in the marketing of cut flowers and florists' requisites, making it the only wholesale house in the country, probably in the world, that has branches in three cities.

Go to Rochester.

It will broaden your ideas.

It will give the others a chance to meet a really nice fellow.

It will please John Westcott, and John Westcott has done such splendid work for "the boys" that you should go to please him.

It will cost you $7 for your railroad ticket each way, going with the crowd.

The Election of Mr. Pyle.

As noted in The Review exclusively last week, S. Morris Jones has sold his entire block of stock in the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa. His position as treasurer of the company was filled at the annual meeting recently by Robert L. Pyle. Mr. Pyle is president of the West Grove National Bank and head of a successful chain of stores in southern Chester county. Mr. Pyle's interest in floricultural finance has been

The first compartment of the showcase in the store of M. Rice & Co. is occupied this week by one of this season's novelties. You can't miss it—as you walk in the door just turn to the left, and "there you are," as Travers would say. The prettiest of gauzy-winged butterflies fanciable. Their colors, a curious blending of soft shades, suggestive of harmony with flower colors, even before the soft voice of Mr. Buyer was heard saying, "They are intended to use with natural flowers." Fancy the hit the ultra-fashionable florists will make with these dainty little butterflies in hand bouquet, in corsage, or in decoration! We will read of the dailies of the wonderful butterfly tea, with the smart set in attendance. Who will be the first to try them?

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer sailed for home July 15 on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. Writing from Firenze, in sunny Italy, Mr. Bayersdorfer said that a shipload of novelties is coming.

Miss Annie Hillan, of Shenandoah, Pa., was a visitor in this city recently.

W. W. Chisholm and Mrs. Chisholm, of the Anderson Flower Co., Anderson, S. C., made a brief sojourn in this city.

J. Liddon Pennock is at Seaside Park, N. J.

A. B. Cartledge is cruising in the Chesapeake.

Herman Levine, of Stein & Levine, San Francisco, Cal., was here early this week.

Miss Lucy Moore, of Wilmington, N. C., was in Philadelphia with her brother and sister.

J. Stephenson, of Oak Lane, has a Thomas car. It looks as though Mrs. Jardine had done the right thing by Mr. Stephenson.

W. Marche, of Washington, D. C., was among our visitors during the last few days.

John C. Gracey, the well-known uptown florist, has a summer residence at Valley Forge, near Secretary Knox.

J. Speiss and Mrs. Speiss, Buffalo, N. Y., have been in town.

Samuel R. Aiken, the successful uptown retailer, has a cottage at Ocean City.

Daniel Gorman, of Williamsport, Pa., equally well known as a successful florist and moving-picture man, was among our recent visitors.

Robert Craig, who has been ill, is spending a few days at Waretown, on Barnegat bay, as the guest of Commodore Westcott. Robert Kift, who spent the week-end with him, says he is better.

William Stevens, who so ably represents John Burton, closed the season's distribution of flowers last week. Mr. Burton is cutting a few new crop Beauties that are being shipped to the Leo Niessen Co. during the summer.

Fred J. Michell, Jr., reports the arrival of California freesia, with Harrisii bulbs in early prospect.

Charles B. Hann, with T. W. Wood & Son, of Richmond, Va., has been here.

work of learning the fishery laws of two states.

The Floracroft Nurseries, Moorestown, N. J., have done exceptionally well with Boston ferns for July. Combined with giganteum lilies and valley, the returns for the first half of the month are better than for the corresponding month of last season. This reflects credit on Edward Ross and Thomas Potts.

Charles Peterson and family, of East Liverpool, O., spent a few days in Philadelphia recently.

Miss Evans, who is so popular with customers and consignors alike at Edward Reid's, is enjoying a well-earned vacation.

Samuel F. Lilley has a namesake among the florists of far California.

Edward Riley, the mascot at William J. Baker's, is on his vacation. Unlike most mascots, Master Riley believes in putting his shoulder to the wheel.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The long drought, lasting over a month, is broken and the hot wave has passed. Florists, especially the growers of gladioli and asters, will feel the disastrous effects of the prolonged heat. It will take an abundance of rain and a much lower temperature to make amends for the injury.

Shipments fell off rapidly, not only of roses, but of every variety of cut flowers, toward the last of the week and in the clean-up it was almost what the wholesalers call "a good Saturday." Prices did not advance, but there was nothing worth while left when the day was over. Quality has not improved. The growers are throwing out the old stock and everyone is now preparing for the coming season. With 3 cents as top for roses and 1 cent for carnations, quotations on the mediocre grades and the rest of the shipments can better be imagined than described. Thousands of carnations were cleaned up daily at 20 cents per hundred. Orchids are not advancing above the usual summer rates, and the demand is not equal to the supply. Valley continues strong and lilies weak. Gladioli are abundant notwithstanding the dry weather, and doubtless before the end of the month 50 cents per hundred, as usual, will buy all but the new varieties of merit and the old standby, America, which has lost none of its popularity. The outdoor grown sweet peas are lacking in size and quality.

Various Notes.

The interest in the convention grows daily. The Florists' Club not only will have an abundance of good things on its special train, but the transportation committee, enthused by Chairman Traendly, has arranged to dispense the club's hospitality at the Summit house and give the excursionists an elaborate dinner free of all expense. The whole sixth floor of the Seneca hotel has been engaged for the New York Florists' Club. Better write Chairman Frank H. Traendly and book your room now.

All of the new stores on West Twenty-eighth street, except two, are now complete and compare favorably with any in the wholesale section.

It is now rumored that the Philadelphia cut flower house, that plans to start a branch here, will locate at 109 West Twenty-eighth street.

Many of the wholesalers have sent their families to their farms or the mountains, and the week-end visits are growing in number and popularity. The principals owning country houses in the hills or by the sounding sea, increase in number yearly. Those who do not go to the country are touring in autos or traveling in Europe. It is the exception, and not the rule, now to fail to make the most of these hot and recre-

Walter Mott, of the Yuess Gardens Co., Newburgh, N. Y., was in the city July 18, superintending the shipment of lily bulbs for his house. He says the quality of Harrisii this year is much improved over the supply of 1909. The first shipment from Bermuda arrived July 14.

Kennedy & Hunter is the name of a new seed and flower house just established at 156 West Thirty-fourth street. Both of the members of the firm are well and favorably known. Mr. Hunter has been in the service of Burnett Bros. for many years.

Burnett Bros. have found more room a necessity and another floor has been added to their floor space on Cortlandt street.

Hitchings & Co. have just completed a curved-eave house for Samuel Winant, of Great Neck, and a large range, valued at from $30,000 to $40,000, for Hawley, the railroad magnate.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has the contracts for a large range of compartments for T. A. Sperry, of Cranford, N. J.; a curved-eave range of six compartments for W. M. Salisbury, of Pittsfield, Mass., and one of five compartments for Col. Payne, of Esopus, N. Y. The firm is also building a curved-eave house of four compartments for Mrs. Bordon Halliday, of Wallkill, N. Y. There are many smaller contracts on their books, and the season has been an unusually busy one.

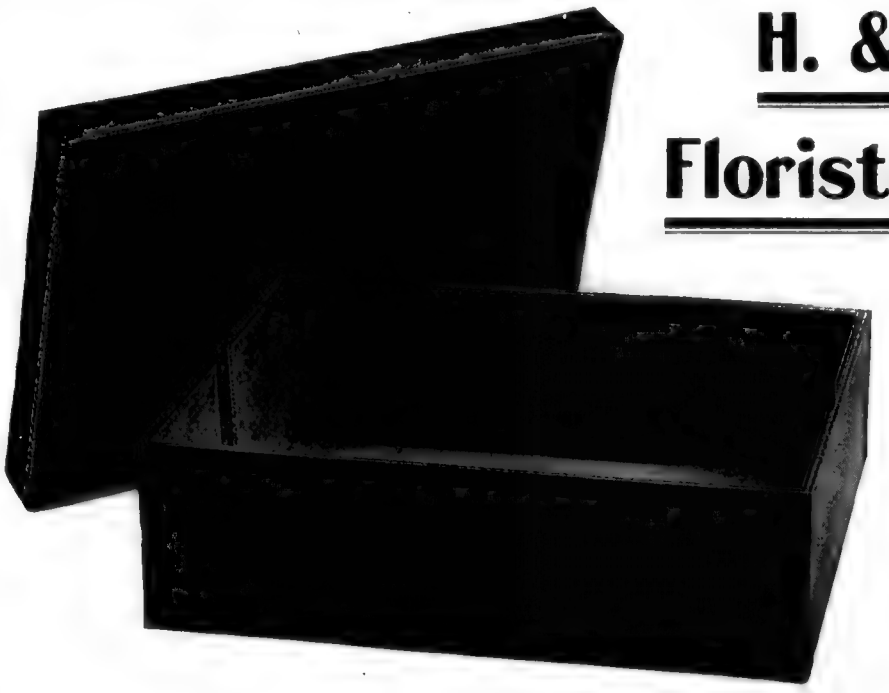
ALBANY, N. Y.

The July meeting of the Albany Florists' Club was held at the home of the president, Frederick Goldring, at Slingerlands.



Chairman F. A. Danker, of the committee having in charge the flower show held last November, made his final report and was discharged from his duties. The report showed the balance on hand to be $17.06, with the sum of $42.75 still due the club for tickets still out and not accounted for. The officers and members of the club expressed themselves as well satisfied with the showing made and hope that the second annual show will be even more successful.

President Goldring urged the chairmen of the various committees appointed in connection with the coming show to hold meetings and to get everything in their charge well under way.

The resignation of Louis Menand, Sr., as treasurer of the club and of the flower show committee, was received and accepted with regret. Mr. Menand explained that owing to failing health he could no longer assume the responsibilities of the offices. Patrick Hyde was elected in his place. John Ralph, a Saratoga carnation grower, was elected a member. The meeting was followed by a social, with refreshments, and an entertainment by a clever amateur vaudeville performer.

During the early evening many of the members and visitors inspected the greenhouses and grounds of President Goldring and found much to admire. The next meeting of the club will be held at the establishment of Fred A. Danker, Central avenue, Thursday evening, August 4.

Fall River, Mass.—Superintendent Lothrop, of the park department, has awarded the contract for the building of a greenhouse addition at Oak Grove cemetery.

cessible to the club. It is intended this year that the occasion shall be memorable, and the following committee was named to make it so: George Shaffer, O. A. C. Oehmler, W. W. Kimmel and Otto Bauer.

Mr. Gude, who was the host of the evening, had arranged the basement of the store at 1214 F street into a grotto for the occasion. The walls had been covered with bunting, and flags were gracefully draped over it, with palms and flowering plants banking the edges of the room. A table in the center of the room was spread with a generous and most attractive feast, which was heartily appreciated. The whole meeting was much enjoyed.

Among those present were: Edward S. Schmid, John J. Bickings, W. W. Kimmel, O. A. C. Oehmler, John D. Robertson, Jr., William Marche, W. A. Bolinger, E. C. Mayberry, J. G. Schattmaier, Theodore Diedrich, John M. Allen, Otto Bauer, Harry Leh, George Shaffer, William H. Ernest, George C. Dolglish, George H. Cooke, Adolph Gude and W. F. Gude.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

THE fall bulb catalogues are making their appearance in every mail.

THE last week has brought many good showers in seed growing districts, but few soaking rains.

THE G. D. Sutton Seed Co., Mason City, Ill., is building a warehouse 40x140, two stories in height.

THE French radish seed crops are pretty sure to turn out light again this year—too much water.

FROM present appearances the call for seeds from canners should be heavier next season than in any previous season.

REPORTS from California do not contradict the earlier news of damage to the sweet peas, but nevertheless hold out promise of a fine yield.

THE latest report from the Lima bean district in California is that weather conditions have started the ripening period rather earlier than usual.

THE sale of seeds of the winter-flowering sweet peas is increasing with great rapidity. Florists have found the winter sweet peas turn in a good profit.

J. C. ROBINSON and family have just reached their Nebraska home after the Atlantic City convention. They have been visiting relatives in New York state.

WHEN you have an item, crop news, business or personal, that will interest the trade, The Review will be glad to give it space in this department. Send it in.

THE condition of the Wisconsin and Michigan pea crops has not improved greatly during the last few days, although the weather has been cooler and there have been some showers.

THE English seed growers certainly are having a hard time of it; the weather has been distinctly against them, except for a few weeks in late spring, pretty continuously for more than a year.

MOST of the onion set growers in the Chicago district, which has had several heavy rains within the week, seem of the opinion that the moisture came too late to be of much benefit to the crop.

THE FIRST HARRISII.

The first Harrisii bulbs of the 1910 crop reached New York from Bermuda on the boat arriving July 14. It was an unusually large shipment for the first one, consisting of 1927 cases, consigned as follows:

Consignee—	Cases.
Crossman, L. D.	177
Henderson, Peter, & Co.	84
Outerbridge, A. E.	58
Pearson Co., F. R.	113
Vandegrift, F. B., & Co.	6
Vaughan's Seed Store	68
To Order	1,421
Total	1,927

Although the steamer's manifest showed "lily bulbs," as above, no doubt quite a few of the cases contained freesia bulbs instead of Harrisii.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending July 9 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Annatto	6	$ 50	Hemp	718	$2,546
Anise	170	1,942	Millet	500	1,412
Caraway	100	612	Mustard	243	1,584
Coriander	383	1,032	Pepper	25	118
Fennel	10	390	Rape	59	363
Grass	764	5,405	Other		4,917

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $2,379.

FORMOSA LILIES.

Last fall I tried for the first time a case of bulbs of the Formosa longiflorum lily, procuring my stock from what I consider one of the most reliable firms in the trade. They were fine bulbs and unusually even as to size. I planted them in 6-inch pots late in September and plunged the pots outside, covering them well. They were brought into the greenhouse in November and kept under a stage for a few weeks. The growth was uneven from the start. The growing temperature at night was about 55 degrees; some plants grew only about three feet high, but the majority were from four to five feet and a few were as tall as six feet. The shorter plants carried two or three flowers each, while the taller ones had from four to eight flowers each, a few having eleven blooms to the plant. Most of them came in for Easter, some earlier and some later. The loss by disease was only about four per cent. The disease, if such it was, proved quite different from that which affects Harrisii. I think there is a chance here for some good lily specialist to get up a splendid strain of stock by careful selection, continued through several years. The same results that I obtained with this first lot might not happen in a general way, but I think florists will do well to give the Formosa bulbs a fair trial all over. E. Fryer.

expected, and the bulbs will not average so large a size as in seasons of longer growth, but the flowering quality will doubtless be excellent; the stock certainly will force better than last season. Shipments will go forward this year considerably earlier than in 1909.

WORK OF SEEDSMEN'S ATTORNEY

From the records of the American Seed Trade Association it appears that sixteen bills affecting seedsmen were introduced in congress and state legislatures during the last legislative year. The counsel for the association, Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, had arranged for early information of these and President J. C. Robinson in his annual address, speaking of the work of counsel, said: "All of these were promptly reported—that is, within a day or two after their filing—to the officers of this association and to members residing in the state affected by the bill. In some cases of states distant from Boston telegrams announcing the filing of bills were sent.

"A year ago last April the Michigan seedsmen received first information from counsel about a Michigan seed bill, which was promptly and satisfactorily amended. First information from counsel was likewise received in July and August of highly objectionable seed bills in Georgia and Alabama. Both bills were killed through the efforts of local seedsmen. This promptness is precisely one of the things desired, for it enables interested seedsmen to busy themselves in objecting to the bill at the outset, when their arguments have some effect. You will recollect that formerly some of these bills, notably the New Hampshire seed law, became laws before the seed trade even heard of the bills. Moreover, counsel gave advice about the various objections to these bills, how to amend, the legal effect of the bills, or parts thereof, etc., thus materially assisting our members. In one state the officer in charge of the bill had a correspondence with counsel in regard to objections to a seed bill, and these letters disclose an assent of the officer to our counsel's arguments. At any rate—whether due to this cause or to others, I am not prepared to say—the bill died in committee.

"In preparing for the important conference at Boston in December, 1909, between the committees of this association and of the Official Seed Analysts in regard to the uniform state seed bill, your committee asked counsel to prepare a bill of this nature. This he did, after studying the laws of the various states and countries. This bill, with alterations, was finally adopted by both committees and by the convention of analysts and is known as the "Boston Bill." Counsel also prepared a federal bill on similar lines, but adaptable to the requirements of federal legislation. Counsel also attended the meeting of your legislative committee at Chicago, in February.

"It is perhaps not improper to insert in this report that counsel, at the expense of a kindred association, visited Nashville, Tenn., and argued a matter of some importance to seedsmen before the attorney-general of Tennessee, and secured a reversal of an objectionable order of the commissioner of agriculture of that state.

"Statutes of all the states affecting the sale of seeds have been collected and seedsmen desiring copies of these can secure them. Cases regarding the non-warranty, disclaimer clauses, etc., can also be obtained. Opinions on the constitutionality of seed laws have been drawn up by counsel, and, in case seedsmen desire to contest certain seed laws, the brief can be supplied.

"As to counsel's confidential work for members, I am not in a position to speak except from hearsay. I understand he is called upon more and more as his work becomes known to members. He has tried and won several cases for seedsmen and has given opinions, saving members the cost of employing attorneys. Outside of circular letters concerning legislative bills, counsel wrote 830 letters on business of members between April 1, 1909, and May 16, 1910."

Probably no other association of business men in this country, and certainly none other with so low an annual membership fee as $15, provides an attorney specially versed in its line who may be consulted without cost by any member and at any time.

MADE IN COLUMBUS.

The annual output of tomato seed by the Livingston Seed Co. is about ten tons, and when Columbus, O., recently held a "Made in Columbus" exposition the seedsmen naturally wished to feature that portion of their business. The accompanying illustration shows their booth, designed and installed by one of the firm's travelers, Mr. Blatz. The boxes in the foreground contained a variety of vegetable and grass seeds, but in the glass case in the center there was nothing but tomato, 864 pounds, with a sign to the effect that here are enough tomato seeds to plant 6,480 acres. Mr. Blatz made the clusters of artificial tomatoes that hung on the wall between framed photographs of the company's seed farm, and the two large artificial fruits that stood at the top of the seed-incrusted posts in the foreground.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet here for the last two weeks. About the only thing doing is some funeral work now and then, but there has been enough of that to use up whatever stock has appeared on the market. There is little stock coming in now; roses are scarce and mostly of poor quality. However, the new stock is looking fine and there will be some cut from it shortly. There are practically no Kaiserins grown here.

Carnations are about done for, as nearly all the growers have thrown out the old plants and are getting ready to plant their new stock, which is in better shape than it has been at this time for a number of years. Some good gladioli are coming in and find a ready sale; they help out a great deal during the scarcity of other stock. Sweet peas are abundant and move slowly at prices that hardly pay for cutting them.

Snapdragons are plentiful, but there is little call for them. There is some demand for ferns and palms for porch decorations, etc., and occasionally we receive an order for geraniums.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held a special meeting Friday evening, July 15, to make final arrangements for the picnic at Buckeye Lake, July 20, and the outlook was fine for a large crowd of florists and their friends. Paul Embler has reinstated in membership after a four years' cruise on battleships, and he gave us a nice talk on his experiences, but said he was glad to get back among the flowers. The club sent a floral tribute and a letter of condolence to the Drobisch family on the death of Mr. Drobisch, which occurred July 9. The funeral was held July 11. There were large quantities of flowers, including some unusually elaborate pieces.

J. H. Williams has his new house ready for the glass; his benches are all up and ready for planting. The planting in his other houses is about completed.

The Franklin Park Floral Co. is busy replanting. This firm had quite a few decorations for weddings, which livened up the dull season.

Sherman Stephens is kept on the move with his replanting.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is busy planting one of their 400-foot houses in carnations, and will be ready in a few days with the second one.

Wm. Metzmaier has returned from a week's outing at Buckeye Lake and reports a fine time.

Chas. Buehler and family are spending a week at Buckeye Lake.

NEWPORT, R. I.

At the last regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held in Mercury hall on the evening of July 12, the special attraction was an exhibition of sweet peas.

Though the tables were well filled with exhibits, there was but one class in competition. This was for the best six vases of not less than three varieties, for which there were three entries. The first prize was awarded to Mrs. William G. Weld, Paul Volguardson gardener, and Mr. Volguardson also received a first-class certificate from the society for this exhibit, besides the regular prize. The second prize was awarded for exhibits that came from the gardens of Colonel Daniel B. Fearing, James Baumgartner gardener, while the third prize was awarded to Miss Ellen Mason, Samuel Langford gardener.

Special awards were granted to other exhibitors, including the following: James Robertson, gardener for Mrs. T. O. Richardson; Colin Robertson, gardener for Mrs. Robert Goelet; C. M. Bugholt, gardener for Miss Fannie Foster; William Matson, gardener for Miss Alice Keteltas; James Hooper, gardener for Mrs. Theodore K. Gibbs.

The judges were Andrew Meikle, Bruce Butterton and William MacKay.

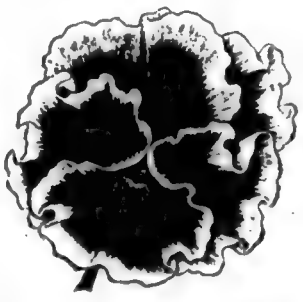
BOSTON.

The Market.

Absolutely nothing doing, is the unanimous verdict on business for the first half of July. This period always is looked upon as a specially dull one, but with the extreme heat it really seemed duller than ever this year. It would be difficult to make quotations, as a wholesale slaughtering of prices was necessary to make sales. The weather at the time of writing is a trifle cooler and business is, if anything, a shade better, but there is little likelihood of any great improvement for some weeks yet.

Some fine Kaiserin roses are coming in, but these have been so far strangely neglected by buyers. Bride and Maid are down and out. A few small Richmonds are still seen, but no one wants them. Killarney also is poor. Of Carnot a few nice blooms are seen. Carnations are still overabundant and of poorer quality; 25 cents per hundred has been as much as fair flowers have been making, and sales even at this price have not been easy. Sweet peas are generally short-stemmed. Some selects may make 25 cents per hundred, while 300 will go in other cases for the same money. There are plenty of gladioli and longiflorum, speciosum and auratum lilies, with light sales. Sweet sultan has sold moderately well. There is a good supply of pink cosmos, which makes a pleasing addition. There is no sale for candytuft, stocks and bachelor's buttons. Few gardenias and cattleyas are wanted and valley is in light demand, as are asparagus and adiantum.

Various Notes.



Splendid sweet peas are being sent to 2A Park street, in spite of the long drought, those from Perry Green, John Barr and N. F. Comley being especially good.

W. Phelps, of Marlboro, is growing his asters under glass and they will be hard to beat this season, blooms equal to mums, on long stems. J. Cohen acts as salesman for Mr. Phelps.

Martin Wax, of the enterprising firm of Wax Bros., is spending his annual vacation at Belgarde lakes, Oakland, Me. The fishing there he describes as excellent, thirty fine bass, besides white perch and other fish, being his average daily catch. The bass average one to two pounds in weight. In his absence his brother Sam keeps the store up to date.

James Tuohy, brother of Martin Tuohy, leaves toward the end of July for a trip to Ireland.

the leaders in carnations at present. They are, for the season, extra fine. He has Wilson's old stand at 2A Park street.

John K. M. L. Farquhar has been suffering from a severe attack of lumbago for the last ten days and is able to attend to business under difficulties.

H. R. Comley, at 6 Park street, is showing among other plants some nice fancy-leaved caladiums and achimenes. Something new is always to be found here. Mr. Comley has just acquired the Grimmer business on West street, where he was employed for many years.

Kaiserin roses, even with splendid stems, are passed over in favor of White Killarney at W. H. Elliott's salesrooms, according to A. L. Hutson, Mr. Elliott's popular salesman. Why people will buy poor Killarney, which will be fully bloomed out in a few minutes when off the ice, in preference to fine, solid Kaiserin, passes comprehension.

Albert Batley, of Maynard, is glazing his new house, 35x150, and will soon have it completed. He has cement walls and everything as up-to-date as possible. Mr. Batley, Jr., hopes to get to the Rochester convention.

H. Hanson, of Malden, was a passenger on the steamship Cincinnati, from New York, July 16. Mr. Hanson will visit Denmark, his native land, and several other countries before returning. He is one of our most respected growers.

S. J. Goddard and E. G. Hill were visitors at the late Holland House show, London. Mr. Goddard describes it as the finest show he ever saw. He incidentally confesses to be getting a little homesick, however.

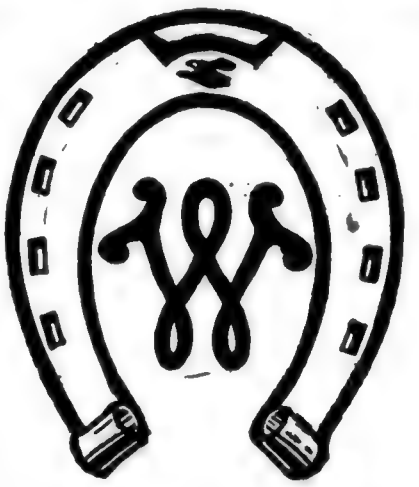
J. H. Leach is spending his summer vacation at his beach cottage. He has had a successful season with carnations, lily of the valley, early asters and other specialties.

William Stuart is shipping some extra quality Kaiserin roses to 2A Park street. D. J. Lamey is salesman for them.

Charles E. Robinson is enjoying a few weeks' vacation with a horse and carriage, traveling through Maine and New Hampshire, combining a little business with pleasure.

David Welch, of Welch Bros., will return July 26 from his European trip. P. Welch and family are enjoying the ocean breezes at Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

Bernard A. McGinty, the popular salesman at 2A Park street, has been busy handing out cigars of late. It is a lusty 9-pound girl this time. Mrs. McGinty and daughter are doing well.



J. Newman & Sons' windows on Tremont Row always have a soft and restful appearance, not being overcrowded with material. Ferns and other green-foliaged plants are at present judiciously used, with baskets and bunches of the better sweet peas, gladioli, sweet sultans, cosmos and other seasonable flowers.

L. J. Flynn, of Welch Bros., is spending his vacation at the beach.

N. Silverman, the Winter street florist, is feeling supremely happy. It is an 8-pound boy, born July 6.

One of the leading salesmen at C Park street has a bold sign which cannot fail to catch would-be purchasers' eyes: "Cash business. No Trust." Bad debts due to several failures necessitated this action. The growers are

LILIUM HARRISII

Now Ready For Delivery

Our first consignments have just reached us, and our advance orders are all filled. In view of the fact that crop is shorter than last year, we advise those who have not already ordered to lose no time doing so. Last year we were not able to meet the demand for our selected Harrisii on late orders. At present we have a good supply, and will be able to take care of early orders; but there should be no delay in ordering, as there is sure to be a scarcity of good stock, especially in the large sizes. We offer selected stock of the original true Harrisii for early forcing, grown from the original true stock—splendid stock for early forcing, for which purpose Harrisii is so valuable. Our stock is not picked up indiscriminately from different sources, but is grown from one stock, and will be found very superior to the ordinary Harrisii usually offered, both in regard to freedom from disease and purity, and not the late type now so often furnished.

all right, for the salesmen must stand these losses.

Henry W. Vose was one of the first to ship asters in quantity to the market. His produce is handled by William F. Aylward.

Maurice Fuld will only stay with the Wonderland Co., at Revere Beach, until September 1, when he will take a responsible position with one of the best known firms in the east.

The coming picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, July 27, at Pine Banks park, Malden, is the principal topic of discussion at present. There is an unusually fine list of prizes for the sporting events, which are twenty-two in number. It is desired to start the baseball games as soon after 10 o'clock as possible. Elevated cars should be taken to Sullivan square, where surface cars for Malden can be taken, getting off at the sporting field gateway of the park. No efforts have been spared by the committee to make this the most successful picnic yet held, and all they ask for is for a continuation of the good weather with which they have been favored for a number of years.

The rainfall with which we were favored July 16 was welcome. Our last appreciable precipitation had been June 18, and with clear skies and 90 degrees in the shade or over day after day, crops were suffering severely.

Every effort is being made to round up a substantial delegation for the Rochester convention, and at this time E. A. Peirce's efforts to secure a special Pullman carload seem likely to be crowned with success. Boston is bound to make a good showing at the coming convention, and let everyone know what a magnificent show we are to have in the spring of 1911. All would-be conventionists should write to E. A. Peirce, Waltham, at once and have their names enrolled. The rates are low and within the reach of almost every grower.

P. J. Van Baarda, Joseph Breck & Sons' popular traveler among the private trade in the east, sailed from New York July 19 for a two months' European trip in the interests of his firm. Mr. Van Baarda will visit many of the leading cities in Great Britain and on the continent before returning. His many friends wish him an enjoyable trip.

H. R. Werdmuller, for some years located in and around Boston, and still an active member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, who has for some eighteen months been with Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany, is now located at Upper Clapton, London, England. He hopes before long to visit the United States again and his friends will be pleased to see him.

The Boston Sunday Herald for July 17 contained a well-illustrated and interesting article on the new Chinese plants at the Arnold Arboretum, Prof. C. S. Sargent, E. H. Wilson and Jackson Dawson each coming in for an extended notice.

Fred Holbrow, of Dorchester, is planning a European trip and will leave during the present month.

At the coming club picnic Duncan Finlayson and Thomas Pegler will captain the teams in the tug of war contest, Private Gardeners vs. Commercials. The latter were victorious last year for the first time, but indications are that they will have a tough proposition to do so July 27.

The next show at Horticultural hall by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be one of fruits and vegetables in October. There will be no chrysanthemum exhibition, but a schedule will soon be ready for a midwinter show to precede the S. A. F. national show in 1911.

WHITE SPINE CUCUMBERS.

I should appreciate any information in regard to White Spine cucumbers. I am growing the English cucumbers with success, but wish to grow some White Spine in connection with the others. Will it be advisable to grow one row of plants on each side, trained up to the wire, as I do with the English variety? Each house will be about sixteen feet wide.

Is it necessary to have bees for the White Spine? Bees would tend to spoil rather than benefit the fruit on the English vines, and they bear as heavily without the bees. I spray the English sort quite often, overhead. I presume this should not be done with the White Spine, as it would prevent the transmitting of the pollen. I plant the English cukes eighteen to twenty inches apart in the row. F. K.

The White Spine cucumbers are not nearly as strong growers as the English variety, and will stand planting closer together in the rows. You will also want four rows of them to a house, as they do not grow so tall. You can train them in several ways. For instance, four rows of White Spine in a 16-foot house might be trained in the form of two separate, sharp-pointed arches; or the two central rows might form an arch in the middle of the house, while the two outside rows would follow the shape of the wall and roof, like your English vines; or each of the four rows might be trained separately straight up to the roof. The White Spine is much more prolific than the English type and sells much better.

The houses in which you have the White Spine varieties must have bees to distribute the pollen. In England it is thought that the cucumbers are spoiled by being pollinated, but in this country it is not considered any detriment to them. In fact, the people here care but little for the English cukes, anyhow, and in most markets they are hard sell. The Davis Perfect variety is a half-breed that might interest you. It is exactly like the English in growth, but the fruit is much like that of the White Spine, only longer.

Frequent spraying of the vines is just as beneficial for White Spine as for those you grow now. They stand any amount of spraying, but it is best to wait until the bees have had an hour or two to go over the blooms early each morning, before the first spraying.

You plant your English sort closer than most growers; four to five feet apart is usually the distance, and sixteen to twenty-four inches for White Spine—single plants in both cases.

The water from the special nozzles comes from overhead in a mist—sprays the plants like a gentle rainfall—that will not injure the most delicate leaves and blossoms.

The ground does not cake and crack, but keeps soft and porous, letting in the air necessary to the rapid growth of plants. The labor saved in one year will pay for the entire cost of the System.

Florists' Supplies

MANUFACTURERS' PRICES

We manufacture many lines of florists' supplies, either in our own building or elsewhere, and all others we handle in such large quantity that we can make our modest profit selling at the prices manufacturers charge smaller buyers. In no case do we permit ourselves to be undersold. The greater part of our business being mail orders for a general line of supplies, we are in a position to defy price competition on the same grade of goods. Outside of price, buyers will appreciate their many advantages in placing their orders all in one place—saving in time, bother and express. We carry so large a stock we can at all times fill all orders promptly.

RIBBONS AND CHIFFONS

Buying our Ribbons in loom orders means that we must carry an immense stock, but it also means that we get special florists' qualities (not department store stock) at a cost that makes it possible for us to sell at the same prices smaller jobbers pay the mills. We have every flower shade in every width and several grades of silk, satin taffeta, mousselines, moire, plain taffeta and satin gros grain. Full 10-yd. bolts. A good many florists "sit up and take notice" when they begin to compare our Ribbons and Chiffons and our Prices, with the goods they have been getting and the prices they have been paying.

Send us a trial order—for a few bolts of the ribbon you use most, or for the kinds you are short of.

Or send us samples of your ribbons and get our prices on same qualities.
Or ask us for samples from our line, with prices.

SPHAGNUM MOSS

Have you ever tried our Moss? If not, take advantage of this opportunity and stock up on a winter's supply. Selected especially for us. No other moss but Florists' Sphagnum in our bales. Every bale the same size, and solidly packed. 5 bale lots, $5.00; 10 bale lots, $9.00; 25 bale lots, $20.00; 50 bale lots, $37.50; 100 bale lots, $70.00.

CUT FLOWER AND DESIGN BOXES

We handle so large a line of Cut Flower, Design, Violet and Corrugated Boxes that it would take this entire two-page advertisement to describe and price them all. We believe it is the largest line handled by any one house in America and we know that for quality and price there is nothing to compare with it. About every florist who has looked at our line has recognized that we were offering him "a better box for the same money, or the same box for less money."

Send us one of the boxes you now use and get our prices on that quality.

We are originators of exclusive styles in Florists' Boxes. For large buyers we can get up a line of Boxes that will be exclusive with them – no one else will have a box like it.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business is dull—not unusually so, but just the natural sequence of conditions that are expected at this season. Except for funeral work, the retailers are idle, while the growers, having finished their outdoor work, are now busy preparing the benches in the houses. There is plenty of everything and many of the growers have stopped cutting except as orders come in, and the stores are ordering only to meet demands. Prices rule at the standard usual at this time.

Various Notes.

William B. Hazard has several houses of tomatoes, from which he is now picking some fine fruit that commands good prices.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Houlihan, of Uxbridge, are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a girl, their first-born. Mr. Houlihan is head gardener at the W. A. I. Bazeley estate.

J. P. & C. T. O'Connell, 87 Vandewater street, are building an addition to their greenhouses.

The Burke Rose Co., of this city, has taken out articles of incorporation to grow and sell flowers of all kinds, with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into 500 shares of $100 each. The incorporators are: John T. Burke, Robert E. Burns and Isabelle G. Burns, all of this city.

The exhibit sent by Superintendent T. W. Head, from the greenhouses of Morton F. Plant at Eastern Point, Westerly, to the second exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Association, won eight first prizes, three second awards and one third.

F. Macrae & Sons are cutting a fine crop of giganteum lilies at their houses on Smith street.

Peter Byrnes, of Wickford, has opened a branch store in Hazard block, Wakefield, for the summer.

Mrs. P. F. Conley, of 48 Updike street, is back from a vacation trip to Atlantic City.

City Forester Alexander H. Johnson, who is a member of the firm of George Johnson & Son, is in camp with the Rhode Island National Guard at Fort Greble, being a major of the First District Coast Artillery.

Walter Macrae, of F. Macrae & Sons, was a visitor in Boston last week.

Harry L. Turner, of Boston, representing the National Folding Box & Paper Co., of New Haven, Conn., called on the trade here July 14.

A pond lily with a stem six feet seven inches long was recently plucked from a pond near Swansea Corner.

The rain which fell here Saturday night was a welcome sight to the growers, as it is several weeks since there has been a rainfall of any account.

William E. Chappell, William B. Hazard and John A. Macrae were among the attendants at the annual outing of the Masonic Veteran Association at the Warwick Club, July 15.

O. H. Williams & Sons Co. discontinued cutting sweet peas last week on account of the weather conditions.

W. H. M.

New Carlisle, O.—A. O. Nysewander says he had a good spring and is putting in a busy summer preparing for a brisk fall and winter.

WEST GROVE, PA.

The important announcement has been made that all the capital stock of the Dingee & Conard Co. has been transferred to two members of the company, P. J. Lynch, the secretary-treasurer, and M. Henry Lynch, the vice-president. This means that these young men become sole owners of the immense establishment, having purchased outright all the interests therein owned by Charles Dingee, only surviving founder of the business, the inception of which dates back nearly sixty years.

P. J. Lynch returned recently from New Castle, Ind., where for some months he has been conducting the company's branch establishment at that place. He returned to attend the company's annual meeting, at which a prosperous year's business was reported and all the old officers were reëlected, as follows: President, Alfred P. Reid; vice-president, M. Henry Lynch; secretary-treasurer, P. J. Lynch.

At New Castle, where P. J. Lynch will continue to act as manager, much attention is being given to the extension of the rose-growing acreage. By working the West Grove, New Castle and North Carolina plants together, the company is splendidly equipped to supply its extensive trade.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business was slightly better the last few days than it has been for some time. Large orders for flowers for funeral work were placed during the early part of the week; in fact, the buyers cleaned up all of a not overabundant supply Monday, July 18, but the prices have not yet stiffened.

The consignments of gladioli are now larger and more regular than they were, and those of good quality find a ready sale. Few asters are now arriving, but judging from advices they will be in in quantity soon. Nymphæas are good stock. There is a good demand for lily of the valley and longiflorum, but little or none of the former can be obtained. The supply of roses is now at its lowest ebb; American Beauties alone are of excellent quality, and are in request, and next week will probably see the last of the carnations.

The supply of decorative greens is sufficient for all demands. New galax is in and the new cut of leucothoe is expected shortly. The home-grown Sprengeri is A1 and sells readily.

We have had some heavy rains within the last few days, and the florists who had expected to move their soil will probably be delayed for several days until the ground dries out.

Various Notes.

According to present indications it seems fairly certain that the local florists will send a bowling team to the meeting of the S. A. F. at Rochester to defend the cup, a leg of which was won last summer.

C. E. Critchell is now offering nymphæa and new galax and expects new leucothoe soon.

The Ohio Cut Flower Co. is cutting many excellent auratum lilies.

PACIFIC COAST.

An account of the meeting of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association appears on another page of this issue.

Portland, Ore.—In the big fire of July 13 one of the florists who suffered was George Otten. His loss is reported as $10,000.

San Francisco, Cal.—F. Ludemann, for forty years a well known figure in the trade on the Pacific coast, has, on account of ill health, laid down the cares of business. His place at Millbrae has been turned over to his son, Adolph F. Ludemann, who has been associated with his father for the last ten years, while the other place, at 3041 Baker street in this city, has been purchased by H. Kempf.

Portland, Ore.—The first sweet pea show under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Woodstock Improvement Association, was held July 2 in Woodstock hall, and the interest which was aroused resulted in the preliminary organization of the Oregon Sweet Pea Association. Captain George Pope was manager and he was assisted by Mrs. Andrews, secretary of the auxiliary. There were eighty-five separate exhibits from amateur growers and one from a professional grower.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has been at the regular summer level for the last fortnight, but funeral work, which has been surprising, has kept things moving, although the warm weather has nearly denuded the city of the flower-buying public.

Stock in all varieties is plentiful, and a large portion is dumped daily. Carnations are the old reliables and serve well for all occasions, but a scarcity is looked for soon, as the benches are being rapidly cleaned out. Winsor, Victory, Enchantress and White Perfection lead in popularity. Gypsophila is plentiful, and is effective with all floral arrangements.

Various Notes.

In the recent fire that destroyed several blocks in this city, John Davis had the misfortune to lose his entire household effects, and he and his family barely escaped with their lives. John G. Holden was also a victim, as his store and greenhouse were totally destroyed. This is Mr. Holden's second disaster within a short time, as he recently fell from a shade tree which he was trimming and dislocated his hip, besides receiving other injuries.

H. Clemmens, of Newberg, shipped the first asters to this market; they were of long stem and fine quality. He has a seedling of great merit that is as yet unnamed.

Victor Ferrari, of San Francisco, and Wm. L. Wern, of Los Angeles, were recent callers.

Other visitors were: Arthur Zirkman, representing M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; C. H. Perkins, of Jackson & Perkins, Newark, N. J., and C. B. Knickman, for McHutchison & Co.

The Market.

The summer quietness is still with us and, from appearances, we are to be blessed with it for some time to come. The weather has not been too warm for comfort, nor has it made it difficult to keep flowers, and the growers are not complaining of the quick opening qualities of their crops. All of these items are things to be thankful for, but still the store men would like to see more business. There is not a great abundance of stock of any kind, however, as many of the growers are at present changing houses and others will be doing so in a short time. Good roses cannot be had at any price, owing partly to the reason just given, and also to the recent hot spell, which opened everything in the line of a bud without being an assistance to either form or color. Dahlias and gladioli are the flowers of the hour, and there is good sale for all the first-class stock to be had in these lines. Sweet peas show the effects of the recent warm spell and the price is low. Other kinds of garden flowers are as usual.

Various Notes.

F. H. Hunter has left town on a trip to Los Angeles and vicinity.

At the regular meeting of the California State Floral Society, held July 7, Miss C. Williams, the well-known florist and decorator, read an article on the general beautification of San Francisco, with special reference to planting along sidewalks and in vacant spaces in the town. It was decided to hold the usual fall exhibition this season in some suitable place.

Adolph Ludemann is now proprietor of that branch of the Pacific Nurseries located at Milbrae, Cal., and will conduct it under his own name in the future.

The H. M. Sanborn Co. is cutting heavily of American Beauty and Kate Moulton at their Dwight-Way Nurseries, in Berkeley.

R. D. Maplesden will again represent Sandkuhle & Carlson, the Piedmont nurserymen, for the coming season.

The showing of tuberous begonias in the conservatories at Golden Gate park is now at its best and attracts much attention from the general public.

Frederick Schmitz is on a camping trip in the Mount Shasta region. He will return to town about August 1.

The California Evergreen Co. put up the big decoration on Market street for the Native Sons' celebration.

J. B. Coryell, of San Mateo, has gone on an extended European trip and will be absent from California for several months. G.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

THE White Elm Nursery Co. has removed its headquarters from Watertown, Wis., to Oconomowoc.

JACKSON & PERKINS Co., Newark, N. Y., have been looking for 5,000 eyes of Mme. Caroline Testout for outdoor budding, but say they are not easily picked up.

THE Washington Nursery Co., Toppenish, Wash., has lost a suit against H. R. Albee, it having been established that Albee & Bonham was a corporation, not a partnership.

THE Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora, Ill., reports that the April freeze did not do so great damage to stock in nursery rows as was at first thought; the recovery has been remarkable.

J. G. HARRISON & SONS, Berlin, Md., say they cleaned out all apple and peach trees this season, but that cherry and plum did not sell at all, and there were only fair sales of strawberry plants.

THE State Nursery Co., of Helena, Mont., has offered cash prizes to the amount of $45 for the flower show which is to be held in that city in August, under the auspices of the Helena Flower Show Association.

NURSERYMEN in the vicinity of West Chester, Pa., report that the spring trade this year was the largest in their experience. They also believe they have reason to expect a heavy fall business, judging from the amount of orders already placed for fall shipment.

AT Boskoop, Holland, a large exhibition of forced shrubs is to be given in the first half of April, 1911, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the Pomological Society of Boskoop, the members of which no longer grow fruit trees, but devote most of their attention to nursery stock for export.

PACIFIC COAST MEETING.

The Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association held its annual convention at Walla Walla, Wash., July 12 and 13, with a good attendance. The work followed closely the lines of the national convention, held last month at Denver, action being practically identical on all subjects handled. Resolutions were adopted in which the policy of replacing nursery stock which does not live at anything less than full price was condemned; also condemning the cut price sales and the tendency to let planters have trade prices. The transportation committee was instructed to make persistent effort to secure carload rates on part cars in excess of full carloads.

The following officers were elected:

President—George C. Roeding, Fresno, Cal.

Secretary and treasurer—C. A. Tonneson, Tacoma, Wash.

Vice-presidents—For Oregon, J. B. Pilkington, Portland; Washington, G. W. R. Peaslee, Clarkston; Utah, E. M. Tyson, Brigham City; British Columbia, Richard Ritz, Victoria; California, W. B. Elserly, Niles; Montana, D. J. Tighe, Billings; Idaho, C. P. Hartley, Emmett.

The visitors were hospitably entertained, and the convention was considered one of the most successful the association has yet held. It was the unanimous report that business has been excellent and that the good crop of apples in prospect this season will make it even better than heretofore.

NURSERIES TO COMBINE?

A report from Nora Springs, Ia., a small town in Floyd county, of which Charles City is the county seat, says:

"Assumption of the management of the Sherman Nursery Co., east of here, by Harry G. Patten, son of C. G. Patten, the veteran nurseryman of Iowa, virtually means a merging of the two firms, Patten & Son and the Sherman Nursery Co. The total acreage in the merged nursery is 1,400, which is probably one of the largest in the country. At different times during the year from 700 to 800 men will be employed. The planting, digging the stock, shipping and other work of the nursery will be under the direction of Mr. Patten. July 8 he made his first official trip over the combined acreage and found the cyclometer on his automobile had recorded a trip of thirty-two miles."

INFECTED NURSERY STOCK.

Consul-General George N. West, of Vancouver, furnishes the following particulars about a large quantity of imported nursery plants destroyed by fire in British Columbia, under the direction of the provincial inspector of fruits and orchards:

The trees destroyed came from Japan, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, the United Kingdom, and from the United States, and consisted of some 30,000 trees and plants infected with San Jose scale, borers, root gall, apple-tree anthracnose, pear blight, and all the other various fruit-tree diseases known. The trees included apple, pear, quince, peach, apricot, crab, nectarine, small fruit and ornamental shrubs. The inspector stated that there was enough infection destroyed in this lot to have infected the whole of British Columbia. Not only is the imported nursery stock inspected, but all the nurseries throughout the province. No company or individual is permitted to distribute trees until they have passed inspection by competent inspectors. The same rule is followed regarding the sale of fruit, and there is not, it is said, a package of infected fruit sold in British Columbia today. All is carefully inspected, and if found to be diseased is condemned and cremated or sent back to the country from which it was shipped. This rule is applied as strictly to eastern Canadian grown fruit as it is to fruit grown in the United States. The policy of the department is to maintain absolutely clean orchards and clean, wholesome fruit, with a maximum of profit to the grower. Importations this year have been unusually large.

Nurserymen sending stock into British Columbia that is at all infected stand to lose, says Mr. West, because they have to bear the loss when it is destroyed. Praise was given to the nursery stock and fruit imported from Utah. It is to the interest of growers of nursery stock in the United States, Mr. West continues, to take particular care to see that any stock sold to be used in the province of British Columbia is perfectly clean in every respect, and shippers of fruit should also be sure that the fruit and packages are entirely free from parasites; otherwise it will be condemned and not allowed to be used in the province.

JAPANESE MAPLES.

I would like to know how I can get some root cuttings from a blood-leaved Japanese maple. I have one of these, and would like to grow some small trees if it is possible. I have tried all the ways I know of, but cannot make them root. There are no seeds or blossoms which I could use. E. O. P.

The only successful plan of propagation for the various forms of Acer Negundo is to graft them on Acer palmatum, the stock of which is usually imported, or on the common box elder. They cannot be propagated successfully by cuttings. C.

A NATIVE JUNIPER.

I am sending a small branch from a native juniper. A friend found it in the woods and now has it in his yard. It is shapely and almost pyramidal. Can you tell me what variety it is, as I should like to add it to my collection of evergreens? W. J. B.

This is a form of Juniperus Virginica. C.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business seems to be just about holding its own. Possibly it is a little better than at the last report, but the usual midsummer dullness is here. The market seems to be supplied with flowers. The only noticeable shortage is in carnations, and this may be only temporary, as considerable quantities have been shipped to other cities.

Several needed showers have visited Rochester and vicinity and growers are more optimistic regarding field operations. The dry weather had injured the sweet peas to a considerable extent.

Carnations are retailing at 35 cents a dozen; roses, $1; sweet peas, 15 cents to 20 cents a bunch. Candytuft is plentiful and a large bunch sells for 50 cents. E. F. R.

MANCHESTER, MASS.

The annual rose show of the North Shore Horticultural Society, held at Beverly Farms, was greatly admired for the fine arrangement and excellence of the exhibits. As was to be expected, the larger number of the exhibitors were from this city.

Lager & Hurrell, of Summit, N. J., were given honorable mention for a table of rare varieties.

Other exhibits from the trade were as follows: Julius Heurlin, South Braintree, silver medal for hardy herbaceous flowers; A. Leuthy & Co., Roslindale, certificate of merit, foliage plants; Thos. Roland, Nahant, certificate of merit for Nikko, blue hydrangea; James B. Dow, hydrangeas; Southworth Bros., certificate, group of evergreens; Pierce nursery, certificate for evergreens, and R. & J. Farquhar & Co., certificate, plants and evergreens.

In addition to the foregoing, the following were conspicuous as prize winners: Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.; F. F. Brasch, gardener for Mrs. James McMillan; Eric Wetterbro, gardener for Mrs. Lester Leland; Wm. Swan, gardener for Miss Helen Hooper; James McGregor, gardener for Miss A. G. Thayer; James Scott, gardener for Mrs. H. L. Higginson; Dan Hallissy, gardener for Mrs. Philip Sears; John L. Chapman, gardener for Mrs. E. C. Swift; Thomas Jack, gardener for Mrs. Allen Curtis; James Salter, gardener for Mrs. Philip Dexter; John P. Sullivan, gardener for Miss A. P. Loring.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Stock has been so scarce on this market lately that the retailers had to be careful about taking orders for funeral work.

Roses are little larger than the end of a lead pencil, and with a few exceptions are weak at the neck, making them nearly useless. Carnations are about the size of a quarter, but are of good color, and the stems are fairly strong. Lilies, where available, are the best all-round flower, and some of the florists, who are fortunate in possessing a good supply, have a big advantage.

Sweet peas are somewhat improved over last week, as we had some rain and the weather has not been quite so warm.

Club Meeting.

A well-attended meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club was held at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Monday evening, July 18, and the question of moving into more desirable quarters than the present ones in the Cowie building, was taken up. A committee was appointed to try to obtain a meeting room that will be a little smaller and more congenial.

State Vice-President Michael Bloy, of the S. A. F., requested each and every member to make an effort to attend the coming convention, referring to the arrangements being made by the Rochester florists and nurserymen to entertain the visitors.

Lunch was served as usual.

Various Notes.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., and wife, of Fort Wayne, Ind., spent several days in Detroit as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Maynard, and attended the Elks' reunion. They left Saturday, July 16, for an extended fishing trip.

Chas. Warncke had his large touring car nicely decorated for the Elks' automobile parade and was given honorable mention. In all there were at least 2,500 autos in line, some being elaborately decorated. H. S.

Benton Harbor, Mich.—A. E. Crooks is at Detroit this week, attending the big meeting of Elks.

WE TAKE THE LEAD!

IN WHAT?
WHAT A FOOLISH QUESTION!

Don't you know, haven't you heard of GODFREY ASCHMANN, the great importer and Philadelphia grower and shipper of this well-known everlasting green decorative plant, the Araucaria Excelsa Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca? We began 25 years ago with only 100 plants. Our 1910 importation is—

LOOK! LOOK!! 10,000 and more will be coming this fall, after I make my selection of the choicest on my trip to Belgium, the growing district of the world for ARAUCARIAS, AZALEAS, PALMS, ETC.

WELL INFORMED. It is well known by the trade that for many years past I have gone personally to Belgium to select for our customers the best of Araucarias, Azaleas, Palms, etc. What bargains can be picked up there for cash!

EMPTY HOUSES WON'T PAY.

Now is your time to fill your empty houses with something that will grow into money for you while you sleep. Araucarias will do it. Please look at our special low prices for superior stock.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 12. 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 2½ to 3-in., 10c; 4-in., 25c.

Bay Trees, standards, 1-foot tub, 7 ft. high from bottom up, 2x2 ft. crown, $8.00 per pair.
Sago Palms, ready now, 6, 7 to 8-in. pots, 5 to 20 leaves, 10c per leaf.
Cocos Weddelliana, 3-in. pots, 18c to 20c.
Ferns, 6000 now ready. Nephrolepis Whitmani, Boston, Scottiland Scholzeli, 4-in., 25c; 5, 5½ to 6-in., 30c, 35c, 40c to 50c.
Ferns for dishes, big assortment, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100.
Begonia Gloire de Lorraine (deep pink) and Lonsdale (pale pink), 4-in., 25c. Lonsdale, 3-in. pots, 20c.
Solanum or Jerusalem Cherries, our well-known prize strain, the multiflorum, 2½-in. pots, $5.00 per 100.
Primula obconica, our best strain, 4-in., 10c; 5-in., 15c, in bloom.

All plants 25 at 100 rate. Cash with order, please. All plants must travel at risk of purchaser only.

Greenhouse Heating.

Fuel dealers complain that the very florists who made the biggest "holler" when caught short of coal by last winter's car famine are the ones who are deaf to all pleas to buy now and take in at least a part of the season's supply. The fore-handed growers are filling their bunkers to the greatest capacity.

BURNS TOO MUCH COAL.

We have a greenhouse 17x120 feet and ten feet to the ridge, with cement walls four feet high. It is heated by a Buffalo boiler, which feeds a 4-inch flow. The flow branches into two 3-inch pipes, and returns in ten 1-inch pipes on one side and in eight 1¼-inch pipes on the other side, under the benches. The flow pipe is at the ridge of the house and has about two inches of a rise to the branches. The house itself has twenty inches of a fall toward the boiler, which is in the south end of the building. The return pipes have about thirty-six inches of a fall. We wish to keep a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. We can raise the desired heat, but the expense for fuel is altogether too high—about double that of other florists. The boiler pit is two feet deep and cannot be put any lower on account of the drainage. Any information you can give concerning this trouble will be appreciated. I am located in southern Ontario. W. B.

There is evidently something radically wrong with the heating plant, as the amount of radiation is twice as great as is necessary. There should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 60 degrees with three 2½-inch flow pipes and nine 2-inch returns.

It is not advisable to use anything smaller than 2-inch pipe for the returns when a house is more than seventy-five feet in length, unless the returns are well above the top of the boiler. One important step, therefore, in the solution of the difficulty, would be to change the returns. The circulation could also be improved by giving the flow pipe a slight fall instead of a rise. The return pipes should be kept as high as possible and should not drop more than one inch in ten feet. A material benefit can be secured by merely changing the level of the pipes, as indicated, and this alone may suffice to bring down the coal bill. Another change, in case there is an objection to putting in larger pipe, would be to use a closed system under pressure.

FOUR SEPARATE HOUSES.

I have a range of four greenhouses, here in eastern Massachusetts. Three of the houses are parallel, but are separated from each other by wide, open spaces. They are connected and protected at one end, however, by the stables, shipping room, office, etc. The largest of these three houses, the one farthest from the boiler, is new. It is 50x240 and contains a total of 18,000 square feet of glass, in ends, sides and roof. The next house, the middle one of the three, is 30x236 and contains a total of 11,000 square feet of glass. The third house is 25x225, with a total of 9,500 square feet of glass. The boiler room and office adjoin one end of this house, and connected with the office is the fourth house, which is 25x90 and contains 3,500 square feet of glass.

Will you kindly inform me as to the best way of piping these houses for steam? I have been heating the old houses with hot water, and therefore have a lot of 2-inch pipe which I wish to use. What size of leader will be required from the boiler to the new house 50x240? The boilers are seventy-two and ninety horse-power, respectively. The houses contain solid beds, sixteen inches high. L. C.

It will be advisable to use a 4-inch leader to the house 50x240 feet. To heat this house, use six 2-inch flow pipes and fifteen 1¼-inch returns. In the house 30x236 feet use four 2-inch flows and eight 1¼-inch returns. The house that is 25x225 feet can be heated by means of three 2-inch flows and seven 1¼-inch returns, and the house 25x90 feet can be heated by means of two flows and eight returns. As the houses have solid beds, most of the returns should be on the walls in the case of the narrower houses, but it will not be advisable to attempt to have more than three returns connected with a 2-inch flow pipe in the longer houses.

N SOUTHERN PENNSYLVANIA.

I am building a greenhouse, 14x85 feet, ten feet high at the ridge and five feet high at the sides, with two feet of glass in the sides. I should like to know how much piping will be required to give a temperature of from 50 to 60 degrees in zero weather. I have a Furman hot water boiler, No. 128. Please give complete instructions

Grown by Morehead Steam Traps

FLORISTS everywhere are using Morehead Steam Traps. A Morehead Return Trap installation is a proven economic investment. It purges your steam heating lines of all condensation, returning it direct to your boilers as pure, hot feed water.

The resulting uniform temperature in all parts of the houses insures a better growth of stock, and a saving in fuel, water and labor sufficient to pay for the installation in a few months.

A complete proposition and descriptive catalogue will be mailed on request.

as to the sizes of pipe to be used and the arrangement of them. R. E. E.

The data furnished are not quite complete so far as the arrangement of the house is concerned, but, supposing that it is furnished with raised benches along the walls and one in the center, the following piping is suggested: Use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one on each wall and the other one and one-half to two feet under the ridge, with three 2-inch returns on each wall, and the same number under the center bench. Give the flow pipes a slight fall through the house, and connect the expansion tank to the highest part of the system, which will be over the boiler. No air valves will be required.

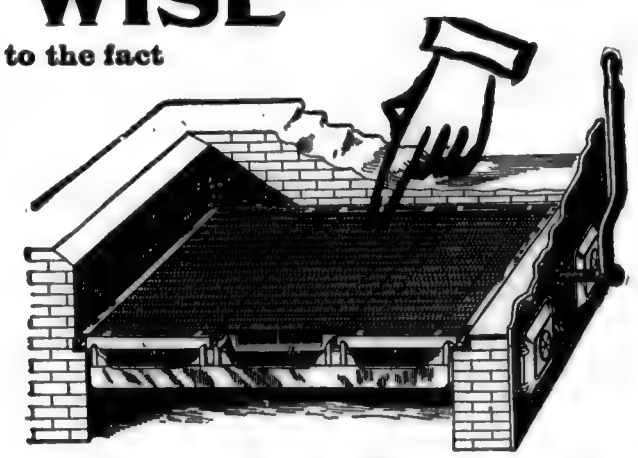
ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There is little change in the market from what was previously reported, either in quality or supply of stock. We have had plenty of rain and this has had a good effect on all outdoor stock, which is coming in much better. Roses, as usual at this time of the year, are not of the best quality, and are not selling well. Carnations have good call when of good quality. These are, however, becoming small. Sweet peas are also way off in quality at present. Gladiolus is the only flower now of which there is an abundance in the market, and the price goes down as low as $15 per thousand and $2 per hundred in small lots. The light colors sell best. Asters are coming in more freely, but tnere are none too many. There is plenty of good asparagus, smilax and other greens, for which there is a good call.

Club Meeting.

St. Louis wants the S. A. F. convention in 1911, and at the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, held Thursday afternoon, July 14, it was decided to join in with various other local associations in the endeavor to get a favorable vote at the Rochester meeting.



There were about thirty members present, including President George Windler, who started the ball rolling and called for the reports of the various committees. C. E. De Wever said that the members of his committee were in favor of giving the bulletin a trial and it was voted to go ahead. The committee was retained to manage it.

The trustees reported that everything was in readiness for the club's picnic Thursday, July 21, and they expect a record-breaking crowd. The transportation committee reported that the round trip fare to Rochester for the S. A. F. convention will be $20.40, good for thirty days. The route will be decided upon at the August meeting.

H. A. Eirick, of Webster Groves, was elected to membership, and Edward Kelley, head of the Kelley Floral Co., made application. The following members were placed in nomination for the various offices: President, G. B. Windler; vice-president, Frank A. Weber; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, W. C. Smith; three-year term trustee, E. W. Guy and A. H. Ahner. The nominations are still open, and the election will be held at the August meeting.

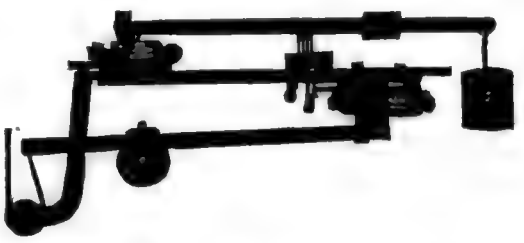
Would You Save One-Quarter of Your Coal Bill?

INSTALL



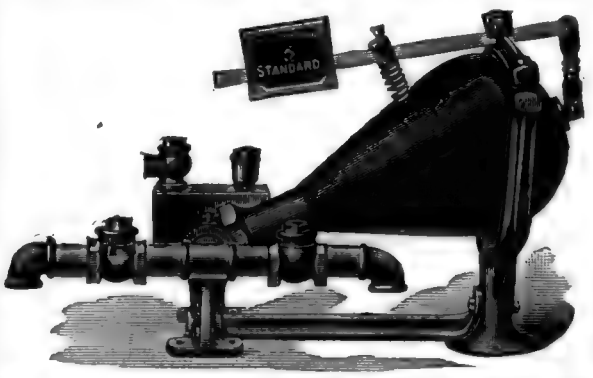
A Kitts Improved Hydraulic Damper Regulator.

Florist Peter Crowe, Rose Place, Utica, N. Y., voluntarily writes:—

"I am very much pleased to let you know that the Damper Regulator I bought from you last fall is by far the best apparatus for greenhouse purposes. I had my book-keeper compare my coal bill of last with that of this year and I find a saving of one quarter the amount of this year's coal over last year's; also the past winter was a great deal colder and longer than the winter before.

"There is another very good feature about the Damper Regulator, as it keeps a uniform heat in all the houses at all times by putting on and shutting off pipes. And I find that my Roses and Ferns did far better this winter than any winter so far, as the temperature was so uniform at all times.

"My reason for writing you is to let you know, and also to thank you for bringing my attention to the Regulator, and I assure you I cannot speak too highly of this machine."



Are not facts like these worth an investigation?

Campbell's Patent Sulphur Vaporizer

Best remedy extant for destroying Rose, Vine, Carnation and all other mildews and diseases of plants in greenhouses; also kills Red Spider.

Extract from paper read by John H. Dunlop before a convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association: "Campbell's Sulphur Vaporizer is an English patent and a trifle expensive, but very effective, and eliminates almost all of the danger of ignition. We are using eight of them at present with excellent results."

Imitation of Electric Rubber Hose

is constantly attempted. But infringement of our basic patents would be necessary to successful imitation. The courts prevent infringement. All efforts of imitators, therefore, have been failures.

No one can make a hose as efficient, as durable, as economical as Electric Rubber Hose. It is a manufacturing impossibility.

Imitation has to stop at the very point where efficiency begins.

Our seamless jackets of seine twine, our pure rubber tubes, our process of amalgamating jackets and tubes into a unified fabric, represents the highest and greatest achievement in hose construction.

It is a matter of sound business judgment for you to use such hose in your greenhouse.

The Market.

There was sufficient business last week to take up all the good flowers that came in. Roses are becoming scarce; there are hardly enough to go around, and the few carnations which arrive get smaller and smaller each day. Lilies and gladioli are plentiful and good and help out nicely, as most of the business done is funeral work.

Various Notes.

As this is vacation time, many faces are missing, among them being Mrs. E. A. Williams, who is taking the lake trip to Duluth, and will stop at Mackinac island en route.

Will Potter, wife and son have been spending a couple of weeks in Green county visiting Mr. Potter's mother.

Geo. Marshall has gone with a party that will camp at Conneaut lake for a few weeks.

Karl Klinke and wife will leave this week for the lakes of Canada, where they will while away the time in a canoe.

Samuel McClements, of Randolph & McClements, puts in his spare time taking automobile excursions in his Buick. He made the run to Buffalo during the first week of this month.

P. S. Randolph, of the same firm, is also sporting a fine new car. He says he is satisfied to run slowly and does not care to test what his car can do—however, that is not the way he drives horses.

Walter Breitenstein is following his usual custom by spending his evenings and Sundays in his canoe on the upper Allegheny river.

W. A. Clarke, of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., celebrated his fiftieth birthday Friday, July 15. After the morning rush, he was given a "tin can and bucket" serenade by the boys in the store, and when they had him cornered they presented him with a handsome toilet set for his traveling bag. For once Mr. Clarke had little to say, except to thank them—such a token from those with whom he works day after day meant more to him than he could find words to express.

Geo. Schomer, Connellsville, is putting up two new houses for cut flowers.

E. C. Ludwig says that Saturday and Sunday, July 16 and 17, were the busiest days he has had since Christmas, and it was all funeral work.

"A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE"

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

For this time of the year, trade has been pretty lively during the last few weeks. Good flowers for cutting are none too plentiful just now. Carnations are almost played out; what few are coming in are small and of poor quality. They retail at 35 cents per dozen. Roses are fair, but they will not keep and most of the storemen just now buy only what they can use quickly. They retail at $1 per dozen; a few at $1.25 per dozen.

Sweet peas are plentiful; they sell at almost any price, but sell best when put up in small bunches. A good rain last week has made them open out better. Asters are just beginning to open up. These will take the place of carnations. There are plenty of other outdoor flowers.

The stores close at 12:30 on Wednesdays now, and at 6 o'clock every night except Saturday.

Various Notes.

E. H. Chamberlain is receiving some nice yellow double centaureas from Mann Bros., of Randolph, Mass. He reports a good sale for these flowers.

Wm. E. Mosher gave a lot of plants, etc., last Saturday to the children, who came from far and near for them. These were given for the benefit of the home garden contestants.

E. H. Woodhouse has nearly finished planting his mum stock. He will have 5,000 or 6,000 at least, and they are in fine shape. His newly planted roses are coming along finely. He is still cutting some fairly good roses.

The street faker was here last Saturday with roses at 1 cent each, and pretty good stock at that.

M. B. Sylvia's nursery grounds are looking fine, with their brilliant blooms of all colors. W. L.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Trade in cut flowers continues about up to the average for the season, which marks the quietest portion of the year. There is not much but funeral work and hospital demands, both augmented by the various changes in temperature. We have had an exceedingly dry summer so far, which is telling on outside stock, especially dahlias and asters. The outdoor roses are poor and not overabundant, and carnations are not much better. Early asters are coming in, but there is not the excess of gladioli and hardy stock which was a feature in preceding years.

Good progress has been made generally in rose planting, and some of the growers have finished this work. Repairs, alterations and additions are now in order.

Various Notes.

A large party of Baltimore florists will attend the S. A. F. convention at Rochester. They expect to join the Washington boys with a special car. They will travel over the Pennsylvania railroad.

The summer outing of the Maryland State Horticultural Society will be held at Harrison's Nurseries, at Berlin, Md., and also at Ocean City, Md., August 28 and 29. This will be one of the largest meetings ever held by the society. A large delegation will go from Washington and also from College Park, Md. R. A. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, is president of the society, and he has promised one of the best exhibitions in December that the society has had.

Halliday Bros. have planted three large houses of carnations, which are looking exceedingly fine.

J. Bolgiano & Son report one of the best seasons in seeds and plants the firm has ever had, and they have sold over 8,000 self-watering window boxes, which proves that the Baltimore people know a good thing when they see it. The firm has contracted for 25,000 pot-grown tomato plants for next season.

Gardeners—We Have Printed a Circular Especially For You.

It tells about our kind of Curved Eave Houses. Tells how they differ from others—why they are so much better.

It is beautifully illustrated—one of the houses is shown printed in three colors, true to life, and is a most convincing thing with which to stir up the interest of your employer.

To those of our gardener friends of whose address we felt certain, we have mailed one of these circulars. But we want every gardener to surely have one; so if you are one of those who did not get a copy, all you need to do, is fill in the coupon and send it to us. By return mail along will come the circular. If you wish one sent to your employer, say so.

How to Save Money

No. 3

WHEN building a greenhouse use only first-class material. Money is more often saved by paying a high price than when you pay a low price. There are different grades in greenhouse material the same as in shoes, clothes, meats and automobiles. One dozen eggs at 15 cents may be ten years old and rotten; another dozen at 30 cents may be good and fresh. On the 15 cent dozen you lose all you pay; on the 30 cent dozen you get your money's worth, and what is more you don't feel like the fellow who bought a gold brick and his wife found it out—but we'll tell you that story another time.

"Better write us before you build."

THE FLOWERS OF SUMMER

HERBACEOUS BORDERS.

Seasonable Plants for the Purpose.

This is not the best season of the year for display in the hardy flower garden. We miss the masses of aquilegias, lupines, peonies, oriental poppies, German irises, pyrethrums, dictamnus and other June flowers, but there is always a good variety of subjects in flower where anything like a collection is grown.

The delphiniums or larkspurs have been unusually fine, but are now on the wane. It is good policy to save seeds from extra good varieties and sow in a coldframe as soon as ripe. As fine forms will be had as from the choicest imported seed. As soon as the flowers have passed, the delphiniums should be cut down and they will then give a nice second crop of flowers in late August or early September. The Chinese larkspurs, D. Chinense, with open spikes of deep blue flowers, and others pure white in color, are now at their best. They are valuable florists' flowers, blooming quickly from seed and lasting well for several years. There is still ample time to sow a batch of these.

Gypsophilas and Day Lilies.

Gypsophila paniculata is one of the most useful of July flowering perennials. Its cloud-like heads of minute white flowers are valuable in floral work of all kinds. The double form, G. paniculata fl. pl., is not so well known. It should be much more widely grown. Even in a dried state the panicles look well for many weeks. Propagation of this variety is by root division. Euphorbia corollata is a charming native plant, with umbels of small, pure white flowers, desirable for cutting, and forms a useful companion to the gypsophilas.

The hemerocallis or day lilies are satisfactory hardy perennials, all being well adapted for cutting. H. Thunbergii has been in flower for some time. It is lasting and will remain in good condition for several weeks longer. Its lemon-yellow flowers possess an agreeable odor. H. aurantiaca major is less hardy than some other varieties and should be protected in winter, or lifted and stored in a coldframe. However, it winters all right in sandy soil on a gentle slope. Its scented, deep orange flowers are four to six inches across and splendid for cutting. The old H. flava has run wild in many sections. If less easy of culture, it would be more appreciated. It spreads rapidly and is specially useful in the wild garden or in shrubberies, where bold masses of it are now quite effective.

Hollyhocks and Phloxes.

No hardy plants can surpass the hollyhocks when well grown. This season the plants are unusually free from rust, which for many years has done much to discourage the extended culture of these showy and stately border plants. Scattered in clumps in the shrubberies or at the backs of herbaceous beds, these are effective. The Chater strain is still the best, but the fringed Alleghenies are pretty. The present is an excellent time to sow seed for flowering another season. The plants like a little winter protection in our colder states.

The perennial phlox is the most prominent feature in the hardy garden now and will be until late October. It is really the most valuable of all hardy perennials, when its long flowering season, hardiness, floriferousness, ease of culture and wide range of colors are considered. The cuttings rooted in spring give the finest spikes of all and come in season in late August and September, when the older clumps are on the wane. By cutting back the flower heads as they pass, a nice second crop will be had. Like the bulk of perennials, they require deep, rich soil for the best results. Commencing with the suffruticosa section, that finest of all phloxes, Miss Lingard, blooms by the middle of June and continues all summer. Among a large number of varieties of the paniculata section, these are extra good: R. P. Struthers, rosy carmine, crimson eye; Pantheon, carmine rose; F. G. Von Lassburg, superb pure white; Coquelicot, pure scarlet; Le Cygne, pure white; Eclaireur, bright magenta; Le Mahdi, reddish violet; Beranger, white, suffused rosy pink; Henry Murger, white, carmine center; Esperance, mauve, white center; Pyramide, splendid dwarf, pure white; G. A. Strohlein, fine scarlet, holds its color well.

Platycodons, Tritomas and Lobelias.

The platycodons, or Japanese bell flowers, closely allied to the campanulas, are excellent late July subjects. P. Mariesi, with its deep blue, bell-shaped blooms, is perhaps the best, but P. grandiflorum, with violet blue flowers carried on strong spikes three feet in height, is well worth growing. There are pure white varieties of each of these platycodons.

The tritomas, or kniphofias, better known as torch lilies, are now in flower and will last for many weeks. Their stiff flowers are not pleasing to everyone, but they do so well under adverse climatic conditions that they deserve more attention. Large vases of them are quite effective for store window decoration during the summer months. T. Pfitzerii, with its rich orange scarlet flowers, was in bloom this season the first week in July. It is probably the

The hemerocallis or day lilies are satisfactory hardy perennials, all being well adapted for cutting. H. Thunbergii has been in flower for some time. It is lasting and will remain in good condition for several weeks longer. Its lemon-yellow flowers possess an agreeable odor. H. aurantiaca major is less hardy than some other varieties and should be protected in winter, or lifted and stored in a coldframe. However, it winters all right in sandy soil on a little slope. Its scented, deep orange flowers are four to six inches across and splendid for cutting. The old H. flava has run wild in many sections. If less easy of culture, it would be more appreciated. It spreads rapidly and is especially useful in the wild garden or in shrubberies, where bold masses of it are now quite effective.

Hollyhocks and Phloxes.

No hardy plants can surpass the hollyhocks when well grown. This season the plants are unusually free from rust, which for many years has done much to discourage the extended culture of these showy and stately border plants. Scattered in clumps in the shrubberies or at the backs of herbaceous beds, these are effective. The Chater strain is still the best, but the fringed Alleghenies are pretty. The present is an excellent time to sow seed for flowering another season. The plants like a little winter protection in our colder states.

The perennial phlox is the most prominent feature in the hardy garden now and will be until late October. It is really the most valuable of all hardy perennials, when its long flowering season, hardiness, floriferousness, ease of culture and wide range of colors are considered. The cuttings rooted in spring give the finest spikes of all and come in season in late August and September, when the older clumps are on the wane. By cutting back the flower heads as they pass, a nice second crop will be had. Like the bulk of perennials, they require deep, rich soil for the best results. Commencing with the suffruticosa section, that finest of all phloxes, Miss Lingard, blooms by the middle of June and continues all summer. Among a large number of varieties of the paniculata section, these are extra good: R. P. Struthers, rosy carmine, crimson eye; Pantheon, carmine rose; F. G. Von Lassburg, superb pure white; Coquelicot, pure scarlet; Le Cygne, pure white; Eclaireur, bright magenta; Le Mahdi, reddish violet; Beranger, white, suffused rosy pink; Henry Murger, white, carmine center; Esperance, mauve, white center; Pyramide, splendid dwarf, pure white; G. A. Strohlein, fine scarlet, holds its color well.

Platycodons, Tritomas and Lobelias.

The platycodons, or Japanese bell flowers, closely allied to the campanulas, are excellent late July subjects. P. Mariesi, with its deep blue, bell-shaped blooms, is perhaps the best, but P. grandiflorum, with violet blue flowers carried on strong spikes three feet in height, is well worth growing. There are pure white varieties of each of these platycodons.

The tritomas, or kniphofias, better known as torch lilies, are now in flower and will last for many weeks. Their stiff flowers are not pleasing to everyone, but they do so well under adverse climatic conditions that they deserve more attention. Large vases of them are quite effective for store window decoration during the summer months. T. Pfitzerii, with its rich orange scarlet flowers, was in bloom this season the first week in July. It is probably the best of the genus. T. Express is the earliest variety of flower. T. uvaria grandiflora is a well known, strong growing, reliable sort. A few other extra good sorts are: T. uvaria nobilis, R. Wilson Kerr and Saundersii. With many the tritomas are not hardy. To winter outside, they must be on well drained land and covered with a thick bed of leaves. It will pay, however, to store a number thickly in a cold-frame.

Lobelia cardinalis is generally looked upon as a plant only for the water garden or extra moist places. It does well, however, in any well enriched herbaceous border and its brilliant scarlet flowers are now opening. To propagate this lobelia, it pays to save one's own seed. Sow these in February and strong plants, many of which will flower the same season, will be had. L. syphilitica, with its blue flowers, is a useful border plant, succeeding well under quite dry conditions.

Campanulas and Coreopsis.

Of the campanulas, the charming little Carpatica or Carpathian bell flower is one of the finest of edging plants, blooming practically all summer. The Canterbury bells, C. Medium, are all gone. Seedlings are now transplanted ful perennial. The variety racemosa is a handsome one, growing five to six feet high and carrying spikes of pure white flowers at present. This is good for the edge of woodlands, as well as for the back of the flower border.

Coreopsis grandiflora has been blooming for some weeks. It needs to have the seed pods removed every week to prolong its season. C. verticillata, with its finely divided foliage and masses of small golden yellow flowers, is a neat plant for the front portion of the border. Anchusa Italica Dropmore, with its beautiful, intensely blue flowers, is the finest perennial of its color now in season. It is easily raised from seed. No florist can afford to be without a row or a few clumps of Achillea Ptarmica The Pearl. It flowers over a long season and few hardy flowers are so valuable for cutting.

Incarvillea Delavayi is not reliably hardy. It is, however, a noble perennial, producing strong spikes of rose-colored, gloxinia-like flowers. An occasional pure white plant is found. An excellent one is to be seen in the gardens of N. T. Kidder, Milton, Mass.

Asters, Liliums and Others.

The real aster season does not come until August or September, but some abundant than they will be a month later. Helenium Hoopesii, orange yellow, is one; and Helenium grandicephalum striatum, orange blotched crimson, is also now in season. Heuchera sanguinea, with its loose, graceful spikes of red flowers, is opening. It is one of the most charming of perennials. Heuchera alba is a good grower, but is of a dirty white color and not worth growing. Œnothera Youngii and O. Missouriensis are two golden yellow varieties of the evening primrose, which have been flowering for the last fortnight. There are always some of the lychnis in bloom in summer. L. Chalcedonica is still brilliant; vespertina fl. pl. is a persistent bloomer. Pentstemon barbatus Torreyi has been in bloom for a few days and the charming Stokesia cyanea is just opening.

No hardy flower garden is complete without liliums. The varieties candidum, Hansoni and the several forms of elegans are gone, but auratum is now quite good. Brownii and excelsum will soon open their flowers. The robust Henryi, with stems six to eight feet high, and masses of tigrinum will soon make a goodly showing. The speciosums are also showing their buds, as are Wallacei, pardalinum superbum and Batemanniæ. All the lilies are much better well mulched in summer, and if they can be watered, so much the better.

in nursery rows for next year's display. C. persicifolia Moerheimi is still flowering. It is a beautiful double white variety. C. pyramidalis will soon be in full flower. The severe drought affected it more than some other sorts. To see this at its best, it should be grown in large pots outdoors.

Cimicifuga, or snake root, is a useful early members of the family, including A. subcœruleus, violet blue; Amellus Beaute Parfait, royal purple, and one or two others, are already passing. The noble Astilbe Davidii succeeds best in damp ground, where it grows five to six feet high. Its handsome plumes of deep rose-purple flowers are now open.

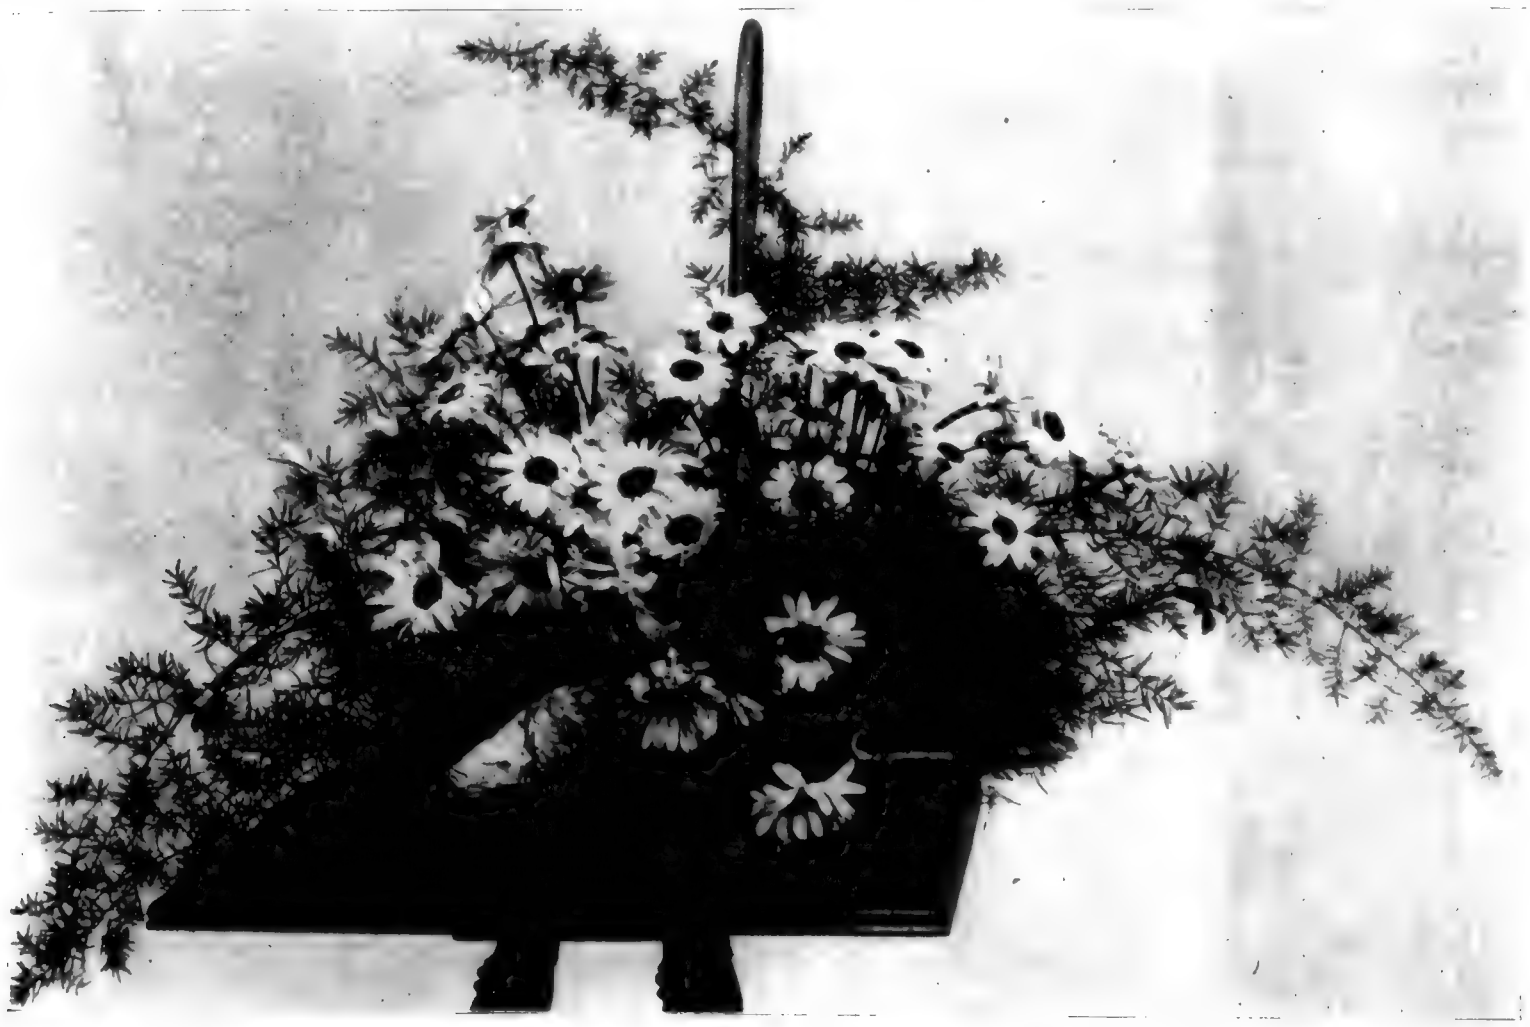
ROCHESTER A FLOWER CENTER.

George B. Hart, who was Rochester's first wholesale commission florist, and still its only one, has written an article for the Souvenir, by means of which the local club is meeting a part of the convention expenses, in which he sets forth some interesting facts, as follows:



"The growing of flowers as a commercial venture dates back almost to the incorporation of the village of Rochester, but not until about 1840 did the business assume any degree of importance. The first noted florists and horticulturists were William Ellwanger and Patrick Barry, who began business in 1840.

"In 1870 James Vick opened the first flower store in connection with his seed business, at that time located on State street, in the building now occupied by H. B. Graves. This department was continued until the seed business was removed to a new warehouse on East avenue, in 1880; then it was assumed by R. G. Salter. Several years later the firm of Salter Bros. was formed.

"Among the pioneers of the business none stood higher than J. B. Keller and Fred Schlegel, both of whom were associated with Ellwanger & Barry. The early training of these men and their continued study made their statements regarding perennials, as well as greenhouse plants, accepted as authority among florists and nurserymen generally.

"About twenty years ago James Bishop, at his houses on St. Paul street, showed the first benched chrysanthemums. So far as can be learned, this was the first exhibit of chrysanthemums grown in this manner.

"While Rochester is a large consumer of flowers and plants, the business is not by any means in the hands of two or three large dealers—it is rather a city in which many small florists find business profitable. From 1880 to 1885 about 3,500 square feet of glass was devoted to growing flowers. Today a conservative estimate places the amount at 600,000 square feet; of this probably 400,000 square feet is controlled by numerous small growers whose spans contain from 8,000 to 30,000 feet. The product of these houses is of high quality, as must be the case with so much competition.

"Rochester supports nine retail flower stores located in the center of the city, and many of the greenhouses have salesrooms attached.

"Rochester is becoming an important shipping point for cut flowers, stock being sent to Cincinnati on the west and Boston on the east, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, New York and other important points. More asters are shipped from the Flower City than from any other center—50,000 cut blooms daily in the height of the season is not uncommon. Besides asters, a general line of cut flowers is supplied to the local trade and foreign markets."

CARPET BEDDING.

Could you give me a little advice on making an American flag design for my lawn, telling me the kind of red flowers to use, as well as white and blue? The flag is to be 4x8 feet. I live in Massachusetts. T. H. J.

Suitable plants to use would be Alternanthera brilliantissima or A. paronychioides major for red. In the way of white-foliaged or flowering plants, you could try Centaurea candidissima for foliage, or one of the dwarf allyssums, such as Little Gem or Carpet of Snow, which will flower all summer. If golden foliage would answer in lieu of white, Alternanthera aurea nana would be thoroughly reliable. The echeverias are also sometimes used to good advantage. Blue flowering plants are not plentiful. Ageratum Stella Gurney is persistent flowering, but a dwarf lobelia, like Emperor William or Kathleen Mallard, should do well where you are located, near the sea. I am afraid it is now getting pretty late to do any of this carpeting during the present season. C. W.

GODETIAS.

I am sending some flowers which I should like to have you name for me. Can you also tell me how to grow these and whether they are hardy or hothouse subjects? W. G. B.

The flowers enclosed are from one of the godetias, most nearly resembling Lady Albemarle. This is a beautiful outdoor annual. The seed should be sown in late April or early May for best results, and a partially shaded location is desirable. W. C.

VIOLETS SLOW TO BLOOM.

I am growing single violets on solid benches, and have been benching my plants about October 1, opening the house and giving them a freezing later. I get few violets up to the first part of February, and then they flower finely. Should they not be flowering well by Christmas, and would they come earlier on raised benches? Do you think October 1 too early to bench them and would it be better to give them a good frost while they are in the field? Could the plants be covered in the house so they would not be frozen or injured until the first part of February, without any heat? If so, how would you cover them and how long would it be before they would start to flower? I live in Illinois. E. W. G.

You have made a mistake, which many other florists are still making, in lifting your single violets too early. They should be left outdoors until they have had a good freeze, say 6 to 10 degrees below freezing point; a lower temperature is inadvisable. This will check the leaf-growth and when housed the plants will start to bloom at once. From the middle to the end of October is quite early enough for you to house your plants. After housing, keep the house freely ventilated and a winter minimum as near 40 degrees as possible is what they want.

You could, if you so desired, plant the violets at the time named, and if protected by a coating of several inches of dry leaves or meadow hay, they would come through the winter all right. It would probably pay you better, however, to let them flower from the start, as in winter the flowers are worth much more than toward spring. The plants, if mulched with some light, dry material, will not suffer any injury, even if the ground is frozen quite firm, if allowed to thaw out before uncovering them. These single violets are practically hardy and will, with a little covering, withstand any ordinary winter, if not standing in water.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE RENNISON STORE.

J. C. Rennison was one of the pioneers in the flower business in Iowa and at his death he left a foundation upon which younger men have builded rapidly. The business was incorporated as the J. C. Rennison Co., with $50,000 authorized capital stock, and the range of glass just outside of Sioux City, at Twenty-fifth and Jones streets, has been largely increased, until it includes 100,000 feet of glass, but it does not yet produce anything like the quantity of stock that is required at the store, at Sixth and Pierce streets, shown in the accompanying illustration, and where John H. Chisholm is in charge. Sioux City is not only an excellent flower town, but it is the center for a considerable wholesale business, and the Rennison Co. looks after both retail and wholesale ends. The location of the retail store is exceptionally favorable, at the intersection of two of the principal streets of the city. Occupying the southwest corner, the Court House is directly opposite on the southeast corner. Step out the rear door and you are just across the street from the post-office, and on the opposite corner from the post-office is the City hall. It is no exaggeration to say Sioux City's business life centers around the Rennison store. A car line straight north twenty blocks reaches the greenhouses.

TABLE DECORATIONS.

This is a dull season for the retail florist, but it is the time of year when he makes his plans for autumn. Therefore it is a time when he should be specially interested in such an idea as is shown in the illustration on page 9.

Everyone who has watched the crowds at any of the big fall shows has noted that to the public nothing equals the interest that attaches to the table decorations, and especially where a portion of them are of a character that the average hostess could afford to use. Taking advantage of the idea suggested, several progressive retailers have fitted up "demonstration rooms." They are nothing more or less than salesrooms for plant and cut flower receptacles, but they attract the buyers because, usually, there stands in the center of the room a fully set table with flowers in place, as if ready for the arrival of the guests. If such a display is within sight of people passing on the street it will draw a constant stream of visitors; otherwise one has to bring them in by advertising.

Some of these demonstration rooms are expensively fitted up, and are costly to maintain. But it isn't necessary, especially where a retailer has a fairly large store. In that case all he has to do is to set his table in the store, or in the window, maintain it for a while and after it grows stale take it off again; later it can be brought back and be as interesting as ever with flowers of another season.

The accompanying illustration shows a display table that drew many visitors to the store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburg.

THE EXPANSION AT DREER'S.

The brief statement that appears in this week's Philadelphia column of the purchase of a new farm at Riverton, N. J., by the Henry A. Dreer Co., covers fruits of much planning. It has been Mr. Eisele's aim to have a thoroughly modern growing plant, where the company's specialties could be grown under the most advantageous conditions. Mr. Eisele further wished that the new farm should be so laid out that the original idea would be preserved until the plant was complete; that if not finished during his life-time it might be finished by those who took up his work after him.

With these ends in view, two farms, comprising in all 125 acres, have just been purchased. This tract of ground is situated on the southeast side of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, but a short distance beyond the present plant at Riverton. The new farm has 2,500 feet frontage on the railroad, which Mr. Eisele plans using as a display ground for cannas and for hardy phloxes. On the farm there are forty acres of practically level ground. Here the greenhouses, boiler-shed and packing-shed will be placed. While Mr. Eisele's ideas may be modified, their general outline will consist in a large central boiler-shed, from which glass houses on any part of this forty acres can be heated by hot water under forced circulation. Next to this heating plant will be a range of ten greenhouses, each 21x200 feet, open between, with gutters four and one-half or five feet high. A second range, also covering about one acre in the same dimensions, will be separated from the first range by a 10-foot corridor house. This will give no shade and enable the ranges to be readily emptied or filled with stock by trucks run through the corridor house to the packing-shed beyond. Between this range and the railroad tracks, in front, 300 feet by the entire length of 2,500 feet, will be reserved for display ground, in full view of the people in the trains, the trains between New York and Atlantic City carrying thousands on this road.

A siding from the railroad is planned direct to the boiler-shed, running along the ends of the two ranges described and passing the packing-shed, which will be placed between these ranges and the tracks. This will give splendid facilities for handling the stock and the coal.

Across the siding, opposite the two ranges described, other ranges are planned, exact counterparts in all respects. How much glass will be erected now, Mr. Eisele could not say. "It may be one, two or three acres," he said. "I am in the market for at least 2,000 boxes of glass for 1910."

Speaking of the immediate use to which the new plant would be devoted, Mr. Eisele said: "It will be for our specialties; possibly a range will be given to Mr. Clark's nephrolepis, the next range to something else. Our present place will be assembling ground for the finished products of the new place and of Locust farm."

Some idea of the magnitude of the undertaking can be obtained when it is considered that there are seven acres of glass at Riverton, besides twenty-seven acres in perennials and other plants and in ponds, forty-five acres across the railroad and seventy acres more at Locust farm. This, with the new farm, makes 274 acres in all, a magnificent achievement, crowning with success the efforts of all the members of the Henry A. Dreer Co. Phil.

STEVIAS.

Will you kindly tell me how to grow stevias? I have a nice batch of seedlings in the field, but as I am a beginner at this business I do not know what to do with them now. L. M. S.

Keep the stevias closely pinched for some weeks. Lift and pot them before there is danger of frost. Keep outdoors as long as possible, then place in a cold greenhouse. Anything clear of frost will answer. If you are growing in pots, they should be flowered in 8-inch or 9-inch pots. Give them a shift before they can become matted with roots.
C. W.

LYCORIS SQUAMIGERA.

Will you kindly inform me if Lycoris squamigera is perfectly hardy? If so, does it require a year or two to become acclimated and what soil is best for it? Is it of any value as a cut flower?
H. H. G.

Lycoris squamigera, also known as Amaryllis Hallii, has proved quite hardy in New England, withstanding temperatures of 10 to 20 degrees below zero without injury. It blooms sparsely for a year or two after planting and until well established. A thoroughly well drained soil containing plenty of sand, in a warm location, suits it best. I have in mind some clumps which bloom grandly each year on the south side of buildings, while at one place in an open, sunny spot, well surrounded by evergreens on the north and east, one or two masses are superb each August.

In planting it, see that the soil is well drained and add some half decayed leaf-mold, sand and rotted cow manure to the natural soil. It prefers a light soil to a heavy one, and a mulch of partly decayed leaves or old manure is of benefit. The leaves appear and vanish before the flowers are produced. As a pot plant it requires treatment similar to that given to Amaryllis Belladonna and nerines. This is a splendid, hardy bulb when once established, its fragrant rosy lilac flowers being equal in quality to those of the Belladonna lily itself. W. N. C.

Geraniums

SEASONABLE NOTES.

It will be quite a number of weeks before it will be safe to start the propagation of geraniums. The plants, however, can be looked over in the field and any rogues marked. Many florists plant beds of geraniums about the approaches to their greenhouses. This serves two excellent purposes, in beautifying the establishments and giving later necessary stock for propagating. Geraniums, when planted out, make a rank, soft growth, especially later in the summer. These soft cuttings are liable to damp off. I have found it to be a good plan, where the stock plants are growing in nursery rows, to chop down each side of the plants with a sharp spade a fortnight before taking cuttings. This checks the rank growth and firms up the wood on the plants, reducing also the number of damped-off cuttings.

Geranium cuttings from outdoors never root so satisfactorily as those pot grown, for the simple reason that those under glass have always firmer wood, containing less sap. Speaking of indoor geraniums reminds me that in late summer the double ivy-leaved varieties make excellent pot plants, being also splendid in baskets. Plants for this purpose have recently been given a shift into 6-inch and 7-inch pots. Two or three stakes have been given to each and flowers will be allowed to come early in August and will continue almost indefinitely. These ivy-leaved geraniums are not much seen commercially, but where any one wants nice flowering plants in August and September, they are welcome additions.

The regular winter-blooming geraniums, being grown in pots, should have the strong leading shoots pinched as they show any tendency to run away; also keep all flower spikes picked off. I do not aim at a vigorous growth on these plants. They do not make as much headway now as they will a few weeks later. Avoid the use of liquid manures. These only promote a soft growth at the expense of flowers. Give the plants a good light, plenty of fresh air and on hot days they are refreshed by an occasional spraying overhead. When potting ram the soil firmly. Do not use any leaf-mold and let any manure be quite old and thoroughly decayed. Spent mushroom manure may form one-third and add a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each wheelbarrow load of soil. C. W.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE RENNISON STORE.

J. C. Rennison was one of the pioneers in the flower business in Iowa and at his death he left a foundation upon which younger men have builded rapidly. The business was incorporated as the J. C. Rennison Co., with $50,000 authorized capital stock, and the range of glass just outside of Sioux City, at Twenty-fifth and Jones streets, has been largely increased, until it includes 100,000 feet of glass, but it does not yet produce anything like the quantity of stock that is required at the store, at Sixth and Pierce streets, shown in the accompanying illustration, and where John H. Chisholm is in charge. Sioux City is not only an excellent flower town, but it is the center for a considerable wholesale business, and the Rennison Co. looks after both retail and wholesale ends. The location of the retail store is exceptionally favorable, at the intersection of two of the principal streets of the city. Occupying the southwest corner, the Court House is directly opposite on the southeast corner. Step out the rear door and you are just across the street from the post-office, and on the opposite corner from the post-office is the City hall. It is no exaggeration to say Sioux City's business life centers around the Rennison store. A car line straight north twenty blocks reaches the greenhouses.

TABLE DECORATIONS.

This is a dull season for the retail florist, but it is the time of year when he makes his plans for autumn. Therefore it is a time when he should be especially interested in such an idea as is shown in the illustration on page 9.

Everyone who has watched the crowds at any of the big fall shows has noted that to the public nothing equals the interest that attaches to the table decorations, and especially where a portion of them are of a character that the average hostess could afford to use. Taking advantage of the idea suggested, several progressive retailers have fitted up "demonstration rooms." They are nothing more or less than salesrooms for plant and cut flower receptacles, but they attract the buyers because, usually, there stands in the center of the room a fully set table with flowers in place, as if ready for the arrival of the guests. If such a display is within sight of people passing on the street it will draw a constant stream of visitors; otherwise one has to bring them in by advertising.

Some of these demonstration rooms are expensively fitted up, and are costly to maintain. But it isn't necessary, especially where a retailer has a fairly large store. In that case all he has to do is to set his table in the store, or in the window, maintain it for a while and after it grows stale take it off again; later it can be brought back and be as interesting as ever with flowers of another season.

The accompanying illustration shows a display table that drew many visitors to the store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburg.

THE EXPANSION AT DREER'S.

The brief statement that appears in this week's Philadelphia column of the purchase of a new farm at Riverton, N. J., by the Henry A. Dreer Co., covers fruits of much planning. It has been Mr. Eisele's aim to have a thoroughly modern growing plant, where the company's specialties could be grown under the most advantageous conditions. Mr. Eisele further wished that the new farm should be so laid out that the original idea would be preserved until the plant was complete; that if not finished during his life-time it might be finished by those who took up his work after him.

With these ends in view, two farms, comprising in all 125 acres, have just been purchased. This tract of ground is situated on the southeast side of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, but a short distance beyond the present plant at Riverton. The new farm has 2,500 feet frontage on the railroad, which Mr. Eisele plans using as a display ground for cannas and for hardy phloxes. On the farm there are forty acres of practically level ground. Here the greenhouses, boiler-shed and packing-shed will be placed. While Mr. Eisele's ideas may be modified, their general outline will consist in a large central boiler-shed, from which glass houses on any part of this forty acres can be heated by hot water under forced circulation. Next to this heating plant will be a range of ten greenhouses, each 21x200 feet, open between, with gutters four and one-half or five feet high. A second range, also covering about one acre in the same dimensions, will be separated from the first range by a 10-foot corridor house. This will give no shade and enable the ranges to be readily emptied or filled with stock by trucks run through the corridor house to the packing-shed beyond. Between this range and the railroad tracks, in front, 300 feet by the entire length of 2,500 feet, will be reserved for display ground, in full view of the people in the trains, the trains between New York and Atlantic City carrying thousands on this road.

A siding from the railroad is planned direct to the boiler-shed, running along the ends of the two ranges described and passing the packing-shed, which will be placed between these ranges and the tracks. This will give splendid facilities for handling the stock and the coal.

Across the siding, opposite the two ranges described, other ranges are planned, exact counterparts in all respects. How much glass will be erected now, Mr. Eisele could not say. "It may be one, two or three acres," he said. "I am in the market for at least 2,000 boxes of glass for 1910."

Speaking of the immediate use to which the new plant would be devoted, Mr. Eisele said: "It will be for our specialties; possibly a range will be given to Mr. Clark's nephrolepis, the next range to something else. Our present place will be assembling ground for the finished products of the new place and of Locust farm."

Some idea of the magnitude of the undertaking can be obtained when it is considered that there are seven acres of glass at Riverton, besides twenty-seven acres in perennials and other plants and in ponds, forty-five acres across the railroad and seventy acres more at Locust farm. This, with the

LYCORIS SQUAMIGERA.

Will you kindly inform me if Lycoris squamigera is perfectly hardy? If so, does it require a year or two to become acclimated and what soil is best for it? Is it of any value as a cut flower?
H. H. G.

Lycoris squamigera, also known as Amaryllis Hallii, has proved quite hardy in New England, withstanding temperatures of 10 to 20 degrees below zero without injury. It blooms sparsely for a year or two after planting and until well established. A thoroughly well drained soil containing plenty of sand, in a warm location, suits it best. I have in mind some clumps which bloom grandly each year on the south side of buildings, while at one place in an open, sunny spot, well surrounded by evergreens on the north and east, one or two masses are superb each August.

In planting it, see that the soil is well drained and add some half decayed leaf-mold, sand and rotted cow manure to the natural soil. It prefers a light soil to a heavy one, and a mulch of partly decayed leaves or old manure is of benefit. The leaves appear and vanish before the flowers are produced. As a pot plant it requires treatment similar to that given to Amaryllis Belladonna and nerines. This is a splendid, hardy bulb when once established, its fragrant rosy lilac flowers being equal in quality to those of the Belladonna lily itself. W. N. C.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

It will be quite a number of weeks ...fore it will be safe to start the propa...tion of geraniums. The plants, how...er, can be looked over in the field ...d any rogues marked. Many florists ...lant beds of geraniums about the ap...roaches to their greenhouses. This ...rves two excellent purposes, in beau...fying the establishments and giving ...ter necessary stock for propagating. ...eraniums, when planted out, make a ...ank, soft growth, especially later in ...he summer. These soft cuttings are ...liable to damp off. I have found it to ...e a good plan, where the stock plants ...re growing in nursery rows, to chop down each side of the plants with a sharp spade a fortnight before taking cuttings. This checks the rank growth and firms up the wood on the plants, reducing also the number of damped-off cuttings.

Geranium cuttings from outdoors never root so satisfactorily as those pot grown, for the simple reason that those under glass have always firmer wood, containing less sap. Speaking of indoor geraniums reminds me that in late summer the double ivy-leaved varieties make excellent pot plants, being also splendid in baskets. Plants for this purpose have recently been given a shift into 6-inch and 7-inch pots. Two or three stakes have been given to each and flowers will be allowed to come early in August and will continue almost indefinitely. These ivy-leaved geraniums are not much seen commercially, but where any one wants nice flowering plants in August and September, they are welcome additions.

SWEET PEAS IN ENGLAND.

Sweet pea enthusiasts, and they are legion, are now at the zenith of their 1910 enthusiasm. A spell of cold, sunless weather preceded the date of the tenth annual exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society, but a decided change took place about July 10, and the warm, sunny weather continued during the week of the society's functions. The show was held July 12 and 13, the society's trials were visited July 14, and the sweet pea fields of Hunt & Son and Dobbie & Co. were visited July 15.

The novelties which won the favor of the floral committee at the trials were the following: Stirling Stent, first-class certificate and silver medal, a remarkably bright and attractive orange salmon shade, from J. Agate, Havant. This is the novelty of the season. Four awards of merit were granted—Masterpiece, lavender, Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh; Arthur Green, maroon, Dobbie & Co.; Mrs. Hugh Dickson, cream pink, Dobbie & Co., and Cherry Ripe, Gilbert & Son, Bourne. The above awards were given after the committee had inspected the varieties growing in the trials.

At the show considerable interest was manifested in the competition for the Burpee challenge cup. In 1908 and 1909 it was won by Robert Bolton, of Carnforth, and on this occasion he again proved the winner and the cup now becomes his property. By the way, there was great disappointment at the absence of W. Atlee Burpee, as it had been announced that he intended being present. The best varieties in Mr. Bolton's exhibit were Earl Spencer, Mrs. Ireland, Tom Bolton, George Stark and two new varieties of his raising, R. F. Felton and Charles Foster.

The best trade exhibits were from Sutton & Sons, Reading; Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh; Robert Bolton, Carnforth; E. W. King & Co., Coggeshall, and C. W. Breadmore, Winchester, to whom gold medals were awarded. Five silver gilt medals and a dozen silver medals were awarded to other trade exhibitors. The quality all around was ahead of all previous shows. At the dinner held the same evening N. N. Sherwood, of Hurst & Son, president of the society, occupied the chair.

The inspection of the society's 312 trials of sweet peas, carried out by Charles Foster at Times Experimental Station, Guildford, took place July 14, nearly 100 members taking part. It was generally conceded that the trials had been most satisfactorily conducted, and the stocks generally were considerably better than in previous years.

July 15 Hurst & Sons' acres of sweet peas were visited at Kelvedon, Essex. Then Dobbie & Co.'s seed farm at Marks Tey, Essex, came in for inspection. The prospects at the present moment for good crops of seed are decidedly favorable. Bee.

ERICAS.

We would like some information about ericas as winter-blooming pot plants. Are they profitable plants to grow? What are the best varieties for commercial use, and where can stock be purchased? We would also like a few hints on their culture. We live in Toronto, Ont. J. S. & S.

Several varieties of ericas should do quite well with you. The reason these are less grown in America than in Europe is that our hot summers are hard on many sorts. There are, however, one or two sorts which do extremely well and are quite profitable as market plants in the larger cities. E. melanthera is more grown than all others combined. This variety seems to flower here even better than in Europe and can safely be taken in hand by any intelligent florist. Several growers in and around New York and Boston specialize in these plants, and offers of plants are made in The Review from time to time.

Cuttings root comparatively easily any time during the winter if young shoots two inches long are used. An ordinary cutting bench as prepared for carnations will suit them. Bottom heat is not needed and would, in fact, be more harmful than helpful. Pot off into small pots when rooted and grow outdoors, plunged in a bed of coal ashes the first season. Some growers grow altogether in pots, but I find that if after flowering they are well pruned back and allowed to break and are planted outdoors in any good soil, where they can be hosed over once or twice a day in hot weather, they will succeed far better than if kept in pots. They should be lifted and potted some time before frost arrives. The old idea that peat was necessary for heaths does not hold good with melanthera, Caffra densa, Mediterranea, hyemalis, gracilis, persoluta alba and Vilmoreana, all of which succeed well planted out.

The waxy ericas, with their beautiful terminal inflorescences, are grown by such experts as A. Schultheis, Thomas Roland and Louis Dupuy, but are much more difficult to cultivate than the varieties previously named. They like peat better than loam, but are not plants to recommend to anyone who is not a first-class plantsman.

Erica melanthera can be had in flower for Christmas or can be retarded as late as Easter. It keeps in bloom a long time, and if you want to try ericas you can safely try a good batch of it. Its culture is simple. Like all ericas, it wants a cold, airy house and will not stand any forcing. C. W.

Carnations

CARNATIONS ON SOUR SOIL.

I wish you would let me know what to do for the following conditions: I grow carnations mainly. The ground in this part of the country is all more or less sour. I kept it sweet last year with difficulty by means of air-slaked lime, limestone being scarce. The lime has to be shipped in in barrels, which I paid for at the rate of $1.50 per 2-bushel barrel; this makes it quite expensive. A friend told me to buy fine ground limestone and mix this with the soil, which I did this year. I used 400 pounds to 1,800 square feet, but I find the green scum appearing already. Do you think the ground stone has the same effect as the slaked lime, and did I use enough? I read some time ago about watering with lime water, but the instructions did not state what kind of lime to use. Do you use quicklime or air-slaked lime, and how many pounds to 100 gallons? How often would you use it on this kind of ground? E. B.

I do not believe that you would find it more economical to use ground limestone than to use the burnt article. At any rate, the amount of lime you could safely use in your carnation soil should not be a large item in your expense account. While lime is a useful and valuable article, you must still bear in mind that it is possible to use too much of it. Much damage is done in this way. We have known instances where so much lime was mixed in the soil that no plant could grow in it.

If soil is so sour that the adding of a peck of air-slaked lime to a wagon-load of soil will not sweeten it sufficiently to use, any additional lime added will not likely make it any better. It would be better not to use the soil at all.

Bear in mind, also, that soil lying in a pile will sour more quickly than when it is spread out on a bench. A little lime sprinkled over the bench and watered in, in the winter, will sweeten it wonderfully. We prefer using it that way to watering with lime water. After doing as I have suggested, it might still be found necessary to apply a light sprinkling over the soil once or twice during the winter.

You will also find it an effective remedy to stir the surface of the soil frequently in the fall and early winter. This allows the air to penetrate more freely, which will help keep the soil from souring. A. F. J. B.

STOLBA'S CARNATION HOUSE.

Most growers will admit that large greenhouses have their advantages and all growers will agree that the best and brightest houses are none too good. It is proper, also, that much should be said and written about the wonders that are performed in the growing of carnations in the mammoth modern structures. But the oft-told tale of huge houses and prize products may become monotonous or depressing to some readers, and it may be interesting or encouraging to get an occasional view of successful carnation growing under less favorable conditions, since many florists are not blessed with modern houses, large or small.

If any growers are unduly impressed by the idea that they are handicapped unless their houses are of the latest iron-frame construction, as wide and as high as a coliseum and with length in proportion, let them look at the picture here shown, of a carnation house of the William Stolba Floral Co., at Cedar Rapids, Ia. Mr. Stolba can grow a heavy crop of blooms that are satisfactory to his patrons, and he certainly makes no pretensions of having a strictly up-to-date house. The photograph was taken May 30, and on that day Mr. Stolba cut 1,000 blooms from the two 40-foot benches.

FEEBLE, SLEEPY PLANTS.

Will you please let us know what is the matter with our carnation plants, a sample of which we send you? What shall we do so they will get long, strong stems? They were planted late last fall, and during the winter they acted as if they were asleep. We did not plant them outdoors this summer, but left them in the benches. Please tell us if they are likely to bloom well this winter. How should we treat them? A. T.

If the specimens you forwarded are a fair sample of your plants, I would not think of leaving them in the benches for blooming next year. They show plainly that they were planted too late last fall to be of any use last winter, unless they received most excellent culture. They should have made more growth toward spring, however, which leads one to believe that the soil must have been poor.

I would advise you to throw out these plants, get your houses refilled

If you have no new soil put up, then get some good soil which has been under cultivation, but not impoverished too much for lack of manure Mix with this one-fifth its bulk of well rotted cattle or stable manure. Get this soil mixed first, so that it can lie a short time before you plant in it.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Mignonette.

The first week in August is sufficiently early to make a sowing of mignonette under glass. Mignonette wants a low temperature, if strong spikes are wanted. Solid beds are better than raised benches, as in them the roots are cooler and more uniformly moist. If raised benches are used, there should be no heating pipes below them. Some of the finest batches of mignonette ever seen were bench-grown in seven inches of soil. Mignonette wants more soil than carnations. It should not be less than six inches and eight inches would be better. The compost should be quite rich; such as has been prepared for the mum benches will answer well. Make the surface fairly smooth. Sow the seed in little patches, eighteen inches between the rows and twelve inches apart in the rows, thinning the seedlings out to three of the strongest. One is in reality sufficient, if strong spikes are desired.

The seedlings will soon appear and in this hot weather it is not long before they run up to flower. The first flower would be of little value, so it is best to pinch the plants back and get a strong break from the bottom. By the time these flower, we will be getting colder weather and they will come of steadily improving quality. First-class mignonette is only to be had, however, in the cold months, February and March being perhaps the best period. Mignonette wants a light, cool and airy house. A night temperature as near 40 degrees as possible in winter is what it needs. Keep the soil around the little plants constantly stirred and do not allow weeds to get any foothold.

Berried Solanums.

The little plants of berried solanums in the field are now growing along nicely. Pinch the tops out of any which seem to be running up too much. The plants will require no special attention during the next six weeks, but keep the soil well stirred. Even in the driest weather they will need no water if a loose surface is maintained. Solanums grown outdoors and lifted make much bigger, heavier and better fruited plants than can be had in pots. In addition, the latter method of culture entails a lot of labor in watering in the hot months, with plants not worth half the money the lifted ones are. Try both plans and you can easily satisfy yourself as to which mode of culture is the best. Solanums need not be lifted and potted before the early part of September. Kept shaded for a few days and freely syringed, they speedily become established.

Ardisia Crenulata.

It is a pity that that beautiful and popular berried plant, Ardisia crenulata, cannot be grown as quickly as the solanums. Probably if it were its value would quickly decline. The plants make satisfactory headway in coldframes during the summer months, partly plunging the pots in fine coal ashes and spraying them freely. A spray nozzle used once a week will help to keep scale in check. Keep seedlings, which have the pots well filled with roots, shifted as they require it. They like a compost containing two parts of loam to one part fibrous peat, adding a little cow manure, leaf-mold and sand. No matter whether in coldframes or greenhouses, the ardisias should not have a heavy shade. They should also be grown fairly warm, especially plants of fruiting size wanted for Christmas. It is necessary to have the berries well ripened for the holidays. No matter how excellent plants you may have, they will sell poorly if the berries are not well colored. Seed can be sown at any time and if it is desired to raise a fresh batch, gather some berries and sow them at once.

Asters.

The latest batch of asters should now be planted in the field, selecting if possible a cool, moist day for the work. In spite of the continued hot and dry weather, the early batches are looking remarkably well, and now that carnations are practically valueless, nice aster flowers come in useful. It is not possible to cultivate the plants too freely. Once the soil is allowed to bake, the plants in hot weather will

ROSES

PIERSON ON WHITE KILLARNEY.

"We know of no better white rose," is the way A. N. Pierson expresses his opinion of White Killarney.

This reply was called out by the statement published in The Review of July 14, to the effect that the A. N. Pierson corporation "is not entirely satisfied with White Killarney, and will grow it less extensively the coming season." The fact is, Mr. Pierson is cutting down the number of the white sport and giving additional space for the original variety, simply to make a better balance of cut flower production and not because of any dissatisfaction with White Killarney. What W. R. Pierson says on the subject is of interest:

"We have sold during the past year 185,000 plants of White Killarney, and we expect to sell White Killarney heavily another year. We know of no better white rose than White Killarney, and we are growing no other white with the exception of one bench of Bride and a few Kaiserin. It is true that we are cutting down slightly on White Killarney, but it is not because we are dissatisfied with the rose.

"Expecting a heavy stock business in White Killarney this last year, we planted more White Killarney than we would have planted under other conditions, in order to give us plenty of wood to propagate. Our planting last year consisted of 32,000 White Killarney and less than 30,000 Pink Killarney. Our planting this year varies from this in that we are planting 5,000 less White Killarney and about 8,000 more Pink Killarney, the change being made to give us a better balance of color in filling our orders for cut roses."

Mr. Pierson's special reason for wishing to have the matter correctly understood is this:

"Two years ago, when White Killarney came out, we withdrew our own White Killarney, giving preference to the Waban strain, and we are growing the Waban strain exclusively, which originated at Natick. A great many people might get an idea from the item referred to, if not explained, that the reason we were not entirely satisfied with White Killarney was due to the fact that we had perhaps some of our own White Killarney that we considered inferior to the Waban stock."

rate of one and three-fifths, on the certificate plan, has been granted by the Trunk Line Association, New England Passenger Association, Central Passenger Association and the Eastern Canada Association. Tickets may be secured not earlier than August 12 and not later than August 17, and will be good, returning, up to and including August 23. In securing your ticket purchase a full one-way first-class fare and be sure to request a certificate. Inquire at your home station and ascertain whether certificates and through tickets can be obtained to the place of meeting. If not, purchase your ticket to the nearest point where they may be secured, and there purchase a through ticket and certificate. No reduction of fare will be made unless a certificate be secured at the time of the purchase of the ticket. Be sure to ask for a certificate and not for a receipt.

Immediately upon your arrival at the convention hall, present your ticket and 25 cents to the secretary. A fee of 25 cents is charged for each ticket validated. An agent of the associations will be present at the office of the secretary August 17 and 18, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., to validate certificates. No certificates will be signed before or after that date.

When returning, present your certificate at the railway ticket office and a ticket at three-fifths of the regular fare will be furnished you.

For those living west of the western boundary of the Central Passenger Association—that is, west of Chicago and St. Louis—summer tourist tickets may be purchased to Chicago or St. Louis, from which point the reduced rates may be secured to the place of meeting. It will be well to confer with your local agent for full particulars regarding rates and routes.

Special trains and special cars start from many of the larger centers. By joining one of these a pleasant trip may be had.

Headquarters.

Headquarters for the convention will be at the Seneca Hotel. Both the president's reception and the reception given by the Ladies' Society will be held there. It will also be headquarters for the ladies. Requests or inquiries for rooms should be addressed to the Seneca Hotel, Rochester, N. Y. Other hotels in Rochester are Powers Hotel, Hotel Rochester, Whitcomb House, Osburn House and Hotel Eggleston. The latter is for men only. The Osburn is on the American plan.

It will be well to make applications for rooms in advance and so prevent being disappointed on arrival by finding all the best rooms taken.

Dues.

All members should send in their dues in advance and have their certificates and badges mailed to them. In this way much delay may be avoided in the secretary's office. Dues cannot be paid while meetings are in progress. Remember that the secretary has other duties to perform.

A badge and certificate of membership are absolutely necessary before any individual can sign the roll and receive invitation cards for any of the entertainments. Badges will also be necessary to get into the exhibition hall. All not having badges will be required to pay the admission fee.

Amendments to Constitution.

Notice is hereby given to all members of the S. A. F. that the following amendments have been received by the secretary and will be presented at the annual meeting, to be held in Rochester, August 16 to 19, 1910:

Article V, Section 1, to be amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. Meetings. The first annual meeting of the Society shall be held at Buffalo, N. Y., on the first Tuesday of August, 1901. Subsequent meetings shall be held annually at such time and place as may be fixed by ballot at the morning session of the second day of each annual meeting, and shall continue for at least three days."

This provides for the selection, each year, of the time as well as the place of meeting.

Article IV, Section 2, to be amended by striking out the figures "25.00" and inserting in place thereof the figures "50.00," meaning to increase the life membership from $25 to $50.

Article II to be amended as follows:

Section 2 (a)—Strike out and substitute the following: "The president, first vice-president and two directors shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting of the society; and their term of office shall begin with the first day of January next succeeding the election; and the terms of the president and vice-president shall continue for one year, or until their successors are duly elected and qualified; and the directors shall serve for three years from the first day of January following their election."

Section 2 (b)—Strike out the words "two directors, to serve for a term of three years. He shall also appoint at the same time."

Section 2 (c)—Insert the words "and directors" after the word "officers" and before the word "shall."

Section 2 (d)—Add the words "and directorships" after the word "offices," in the fourth line.

Section 2 (g)—Add the words "or directorships" after the word "offices," in the first line.

Section 3 (a)—Strike out the words "two directors, to serve for a term of three years," after the word "appoint" and before the words "one Botanist."

Section 3 (e)—Add the following: "And they shall also, at their annual meeting in January, appoint a secretary and treasurer of the society for the ensuing year, whose term of office shall commence at such time as shall be then designated, and continue until their successors are appointed."

The above amendments to Article II were presented at the twenty-fifth annual meeting. In case these pass, the following amendments will also be presented:

Article II, Section 3 (d)—Add to the end of the same: "He shall attend all meetings of the executive board, and shall be paid mileage as is allowed members of the board."

Article III—Strike out the word "secretary" (page 13, second line) and the word "treasurer" (page 13, third line).

Strike out the words "a regular" (page 13, fifth line) and insert in place thereof "an annual."

Strike out the word "mid-Lent" (sixth and seventh lines) and insert in place thereof the words "January 15."

Insert after the word "audited" and before the word "appropriations," the words "appointments of a secretary and a treasurer shall be made."

quickly with new soil, and plant with young plants from the field. If you have none of your own, then buy from some reliable source. Get them planted not later than September 1, and as much earlier as you can.

If you have no new soil put up, then get some good soil which has been under cultivation, but not impoverished too much for lack of manure Mix with this one-fifth its bulk of well rotted cattle or stable manure. Get this soil mixed first, so that it can lie a short time before you plant in it.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Mignonette.

The first week in August is sufficiently early to make a sowing of mignonette under glass. Mignonette wants a low temperature, if strong spikes are wanted. Solid beds are better than raised benches, as in them the roots are cooler and more uniformly moist. If raised benches are used, there should be no heating pipes below them. Some of the finest batches of mignonette ever seen were bench-grown in seven inches of soil. Mignonette wants more soil than carnations. It should not be less than six inches and eight inches would be better. The compost should be quite rich; such as has been prepared for the mum benches will answer well. Make the surface fairly smooth. Sow the seed in little patches, eighteen inches between the rows and twelve inches apart in the rows, thinning the seedlings out to three of the strongest. One is in reality sufficient, if strong spikes are desired.

The seedlings will soon appear and in this hot weather it is not long before they run up to flower. The first flower would be of little value, so it is best to pinch the plants back and get a strong break from the bottom. By the time these flower, we will be getting colder weather and they will come of steadily improving quality. First-class mignonette is only to be had, however, in the cold months, February and March being perhaps the best period. Mignonette wants a light, cool and airy house. A night temperature as near 40 degrees as possible in winter is what it needs. Keep the soil around the little plants constantly stirred and do not allow weeds to get any foothold.

Berried Solanums.

The little plants of berried solanums in the field are now growing along nicely. Pinch the tops out of any which seem to be running up too much. The plants will require no special attention during the next six weeks, but keep the soil well stirred. Even in the driest weather they will need no water if a loose surface is maintained. Convention Preparations.

The superintendent of the trade exhibit is specially anxious that all exhibits be ready on the first day of the convention, and therefore requests "all exhibitors who intend entering novelties and new devices to be submitted for awards at the S. A. F. convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, to send their entries at once. The list must be ready for the judges on the morning of the first day, Tuesday, August 16."

These entries should be mailed to Chas. H. Vick, superintendent, 191 Main street, Rochester, N. Y.

Bowling teams holding permanent trophies should advise the chairman of the S. A. F. bowling committee (A. F. Vick, P. O. Box 613, Rochester, N. Y.) whether the cup will be forwarded by express in advance of the convention, or brought by some member of the team. The local committee would prefer to have the trophies in Rochester several days before the convention.

The trade exhibit promises to be the banner show in the history of the S. A. F. According to Superintendent Vick's diagram of Convention hall, most of the space on the ground floor of the main building is engaged; only a small amount remains in the annex, and a number of representative firms have secured space in the basement. And, by the way, the basement is not an undesirable place; it is light, well ventilated, cool, and affords ample space for any line of goods. E. F. R.

Hotels at Rochester.

The hotels at Rochester are preparing to accommodate all who may attend the S. A. F. convention, but the wise visitor will engage his room at an early date. Although Rochester is well supplied with first-class hotels, it is not at all improbable that they will be crowded during convention week. Even now various clubs have booked advance orders for their members. The following are the leading hotels and their rates; all of them are near Convention hall:

Hotel Rochester, Main street west. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $2.50 without bath, $2.50 to $3.50 with bath.

Powers Hotel, Main street west. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $4.

Hotel Seneca, Clinton avenue south. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $3.50, single; $3 to $5, two persons.

Osburn House, 104 South avenue. American plan. Rates, $2.50 to $3.50.

Hotel Eggleston, 159 Main street east. European plan. Rates, $1 to $2.

Whitcomb House, 209 Main street east. European plan. Rates, $1 to $3.

Eastern Hotel, 102 Clinton avenue south. Men only. European plan.

The Bristol, 25 Central avenue. European plan.

Clinton Hotel, South avenue and Court street. American plan. Rates, $2.

Parties to Rochester.

There will be a number of special trains, or private cars, carrying convention parties to Rochester. Not all arrangements can be completed until it is known how many will go. Write.

The New York Florists' Club will have a special train on the Lehigh Valley, leaving at 9:50 a. m., August 15. Address F. H. Traendly, 131 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

The Chicago Florists' Club has not yet set the hour of departure, via the Lake Shore, August 15. Address L. H. Winterson, 45 Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Boston will have a special car. Address E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.

St. Louis expects a car. Address J. J. Beneke, secretary Florists' Club, 1216 Olive street.

Philadelphia will have at least one car. Address John Westcott, Ridge and Lehigh avenues.

L. Merton Gage.

CANADIANS TO MEET.

The Canadian Horticultural Association, which is the florists' organization in the Dominion, will hold its annual convention August 10 to 12 at St. Catherines, just a week before the S. A. F. meets at Rochester. H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, is president, and W. H. Hall, of Montreal, is secretary. They have worked hard and expect the best meeting yet held. Here is the program:

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1910.

Carnegie Library—Opening session, 2:30 p. m.
Address of welcome—J. M. McBride, mayor of St. Catherines, Ont.
Response—E. I. Mepsted, Ottawa, Ont.

Paper—By A. M. Terrille, Calgary, Alta.
Election of officers.

THE GLADIOLUS SECRETARY.

One of the busiest men in the business the last few weeks has been L. Merton Gage, secretary of the newly formed Gladiolus Society. Working with President Hendrickson and the other prime movers, Secretary Gage has given this society an impetus that promises to carry it through its first season with a rush; no yearling organization ever had a better start. A large list of special prizes has been secured for the exhibition to be held at Rochester August 16 to 18, which promises to be one of the specially attractive features of the S. A. F. convention.

OBITUARY.

Daniel Spillane.

Daniel Spillane, head gardener on the estate of Gen. S. C. Lawrence, at Medford, Mass., died July 12, at his home on Postoffice avenue, in his sixty-eighth year. He had been in rather poor health for the last few years, but had not been confined to bed for more than a month. He was born in Cork, Ireland, November 12, and came to America when 14 years old. He became gardener on the Lawrence estate more than forty years ago, and had held the position of superintendent for many years.

Dighton, Mass.—A. Elery Briggs is making some substantial improvements, including the building of a concrete foundation for one of his greenhouses.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—M. Heethuis & Son have sold out and retired from the business.

Northampton, Mass.—H. W. Field's flower store will be enlarged by building an addition at the back of it.

Hughsonville, N. Y.—Alex A. Laub has taken over the entire business formerly conducted by A. Laub & Son.

Los Angeles, Cal.—H. S. Morton, of H. R. Meserve's Signal Hill Floral Co., is visiting at his old home in Chicago.

Columbus, O.—The Columbus Florists' Club had its annual outing at Buckeye lake July 20, with a large attendance.

Eugene, Ore.—The Misses Ida and Harriette Patterson are erecting another fine, modern greenhouse, 40x103 feet.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Julius Rieck's greenhouse, at Forty-seventh and Bryant avenues, north, was recently damaged by fire.

Centerville, Ind.—The half-century-old business of E. Y. Teas is now conducted as Teas & Son, F. E. Teas being the junior member of the firm.

Evansville, Ind.—The Blackman Floral Co. has increased its capital stock from $5,000 to $10,000. William Blackman is president of the company.

Pittsburg, Pa.—It is announced that the business heretofore carried on by E. C. Ludwig will in future be conducted as the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co.

Loveland, Colo.—A hail storm June 29 played havoc at the greenhouses of N. E. De Golier, breaking nearly 7,000 square feet of glass in a total of a little over 10,000 feet. The storm continued for only two or three minutes.

East Seattle, Wash.—Stuber & Buxton, who for two years leased and operated the greenhouses formerly conducted by Dodge & Palmer, have now dissolved partnership, and Joseph Stuber is managing the business in his own name.

Madison, N. J.—Arthur Herrington, whose landscape offices are in New York, is in Montana, where he has a large commission. He also has large undertakings in sight in Colorado and in Pittsburg, and finds himself exceedingly busy.

Ansonia, Conn.—At the monthly meeting of the Intertown Dahlia Association, held July 15 at the Arlington assembly rooms, the annual dahlia exhibition and other important matters were considered. It was thought that the dahlia show would probably be held the second Saturday in September.

Elmira, N. Y.—The United States Cut Flower Co. is considering plans for an enlargement of its greenhouses. The new addition will probably comprise from 25,000 to 50,000 square feet of glass. In spite of the fact that 59,000 square feet of glass has been added since the original range was built, the company has lately been compelled to decline many new orders.

Morrison, Ill.—The R. R. Davis Co. has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $60,000, by R. R. Davis, J. W. Steiner and Frank L. Davis. It is said that the new company is a consolidation of the two firms of florists, R. R. Davis & Co. and Davis & Steiner. The objects of the company, as stated in the articles of incorporation, are "horticultural and live stock business, and dealers in gravel, cement and fertilizers," but the present intention is to limit operations to the florists' business, the other lines of trade being merely future possibilities.

Dows, Ia.—A modern greenhouse is soon to be built here by Shaffer & Larson.

Fairmont, Minn.—Miss A. R. Krumholz has sold out and retired from the business.

Norway, Me.—F. H. Cummings has a considerable estate here and is an enthusiastic horticulturist. He should be on retail but not on wholesale mailing lists.

Manhattan, Kan.—The concrete foundations have been completed for the new conservatory at the Kansas State Agricultural College. The building will be 112x150 feet and will be ready for use this fall.

Kingston, N. Y.—Valentine Burgevin's Sons are much pleased with the new house, 66x235 feet, with concrete walls, just completed by the Lord & Burnham Co. and intended for Beauty and Killarney; also a propagating house, 12x176 feet. They report a fine season and carry excellent stock.

Denver, Colo.—The city's first annual "hospital flower day" was observed July 4. Many automobile loads of flowers were given for distribution among the sick in the wards of all the hospitals. The Park Floral Co., the Thomas Chapman Floral Co., D. S. Grimes & Son and the Mauff Floral Co. all made liberal donations for this purpose.

Slingerlands, N. Y.—President Goldring of the Albany Florists' Club showed the crowd that attended the outing, July 7, what can be accomplished with opportunity and abundance of grit to take advantage of it. The fall show will be a big success. All who partook of his generous hospitality promised their assistance. Fred A. Danker is a first-class aid.

Houghton, Mich.—The construction of the new Pearce greenhouses at Lake Linden is rapidly nearing completion. Concrete is being used for the benches and walks, and water will be supplied from a concrete reservoir of 115,000 gallons capacity. Bert Nicholas, who has been employed at different times by a number of Chicago florists, is in charge of the work.

Newfane, N. Y.—W. F. Tumber is the only greenhouse man at this place. In former years he made a business of running his house on vegetables, but last season he put in a few flowers, and his success with them was "all I could ask." He is now remodeling his house, making it up-to-date in every respect, with concrete walks, benches and potting-room. He also is building another new house, 22x56. He does a local retail business.

Strike out the word "seven" (page 14, ninth line) and insert in place thereof the word "six."

These amendments to Article III are merely changes made necessary by the above amendments to Articles II and III. H. B. Dorner, Sec'y.

Urbana, Ill., July 25, 1910.

Convention Preparations.

The superintendent of the trade exhibit is specially anxious that all exhibits be ready on the first day of the convention, and therefore requests "all exhibitors who intend entering novelties and new devices to be submitted for awards at the S. A. F. convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, to send their entries at once. The list must be ready for the judges on the morning of the first day, Tuesday, August 16."

These entries should be mailed to Chas. H. Vick, superintendent, 191 Main street, Rochester, N. Y.

Bowling teams holding permanent trophies should advise the chairman of the S. A. F. bowling committee (A. F. Vick, P. O. Box 613, Rochester, N. Y.) whether the cup will be forwarded by express in advance of the convention, or brought by some member of the team. The local committee would prefer to have the trophies in Rochester several days before the convention.

The trade exhibit promises to be the banner show in the history of the S. A. F. According to Superintendent Vick's diagram of Convention hall, most of the space on the ground floor of the main building is engaged; only a small amount remains in the annex, and a number of representative firms have secured space in the basement. And, by the way, the basement is not an undesirable place; it is light, well ventilated, cool, and affords ample space for any line of goods. E. F. R.

Hotels at Rochester.

The hotels at Rochester are preparing to accommodate all who may attend the S. A. F. convention, but the wise visitor will engage his room at an early date. Although Rochester is well supplied with first-class hotels, it is not at all improbable that they will be crowded during convention week. Even now various clubs have booked advance orders for their members. The following are the leading hotels and their rates; all of them are near Convention hall:

Hotel Rochester, Main street west. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $2.50 without bath, $2.50 to $3.50 with bath.

Powers Hotel, Main street west. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $4.

Hotel Seneca, Clinton avenue south. European plan. Rates, $1.50 to $3.50, single; $3 to $5, two persons.

Osburn House, 104 South avenue. American plan. Rates, $2.50 to $3.50.

Hotel Eggleston, 159 Main street east. European plan. Rates, $1 to $2.

Whitcomb House, 209 Main street east. European plan. Rates, $1 to $3.

Eastern Hotel, 102 Clinton avenue south. Men only. European plan.

The Bristol, 25 Central avenue. European plan.

Clinton Hotel, South avenue and Court street. American plan. Rates, $2.

Parties to Rochester.

There will be a number of special trains, or private cars, carrying convention parties to Rochester. Not all arrangements can be completed until it is known how many will go. Write.

The New York Florists' Club will have a special train on the Lehigh Valley, leaving at 9:50 a. m., August 15. Address F. H. Traendly, 131 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

The Chicago Florists' Club has not yet set the hour of departure, via the Lake Shore, August 15. Address L. H. Winterson, 45 Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Boston will have a special car. Address E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.

St. Louis expects a car. Address J. J. Beneke, secretary Florists' Club, 1216 Olive street.

Philadelphia will have at least one car. Address John Westcott, Ridge and Lehigh avenues.

L. Merton Gage.

CANADIANS TO MEET.

The Canadian Horticultural Association, which is the florists' organization in the Dominion, will hold its annual convention August 10 to 12 at St. Catherines, just a week before the S. A. F. meets at Rochester. H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, is president, and W. H. Hall, of Montreal, is secretary. They have worked hard and expect the best meeting yet held. Here is the program:

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1910.

Carnegie Library—Opening session, 2:30 p. m.
Address of welcome—J. M. McBride, mayor of St. Catherines, Ont.
Response—E. I. Mepsted, Ottawa, Ont.

Choice of place for next meeting.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Unfinished business.
Paper—Retail trade of today up to date—Miss Flora Scrim, Ottawa, Ont.
Paper—By A. M. Terrille, Calgary, Alta.
Election of officers.

THE GLADIOLUS SECRETARY.

One of the busiest men in the business the last few weeks has been L. Merton Gage, secretary of the newly formed Gladiolus Society. Working with President Hendrickson and the other prime movers, Secretary Gage has given this society an impetus that promises to carry it through its first season with a rush; no yearling organization ever had a better start. A large list of special prizes has been secured for the exhibition to be held at Rochester August 16 to 18, which promises to be one of the specially attractive features of the S. A. F. convention.

OBITUARY.

Daniel Spillane.

Daniel Spillane, head gardener on the estate of Gen. S. C. Lawrence, at Medford, Mass., died July 12, at his home on Postoffice avenue, in his sixty-eighth year. He had been in rather poor health for the last few years, but had not been confined to bed for more than a month. He was born in Cork, Ireland, November 12, and came to America when 14 years old. He became gardener on the Lawrence estate more than forty years ago, and had held the position of superintendent for many years.

Dighton, Mass.—A. Elery Briggs is making some substantial improvements, including the building of a concrete foundation for one of his greenhouses.

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—M. Heethuis & Son have sold out and retired from the business.

Northampton, Mass.—H. W. Field's flower store will be enlarged by building an addition at the back of it.

Hughsonville, N. Y.—Alex A. Laub has taken over the entire business formerly conducted by A. Laub & Son.

Los Angeles, Cal.—H. S. Morton, of H. R. Meserve's Signal Hill Floral Co., is visiting at his old home in Chicago.

Columbus, O.—The Columbus Florists' Club had its annual outing at Buckeye lake July 20, with a large attendance.

Eugene, Ore.—The Misses Ida and Harriette Patterson are erecting another fine, modern greenhouse, 40x103 feet.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Julius Rieck's greenhouse, at Forty-seventh and Bryant avenues, north, was recently damaged by fire.

Centerville, Ind.—The half-century-old business of E. Y. Teas is now conducted as Teas & Son, F. E. Teas being the junior member of the firm.

Evansville, Ind.—The Blackman Floral Co. has increased its capital stock from $5,000 to $10,000. William Blackman is president of the company.

Pittsburg, Pa.—It is announced that the business heretofore carried on by E. C. Ludwig will in future be conducted as the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co.

Woburn, Mass.—Edward Reil, an employee of J. W. Howard, is suffering from blood poisoning in the hand, the result of a scratch received recently.

Fall River, Mass.—William Shaw, formerly gardener for Mrs. G. B. Wilson, at West Philadelphia, Pa., is now orchid grower for Seth A. Borden, of this city.

Pekin, Ill.—The greenhouses of Geo. Kuhl are undergoing extensive repairs and alterations, including the raising of some of the roofs and the building of concrete walls.

Ansonia, Conn.—The store of J. W. Willis, in the Y. M. C. A. building, was closed for a short time on account of break in the water tank, but has now been repaired and redecorated and is again open for business.

Wellington, O.—The Yale greenhouses, on South street, recently owned for a short time by Albert Richter, have now been purchased by Fred E. Sutliff & Sons. It is understood that Mr. Sutliff will either rent or sell his Prospect street property. Mr. Richter has returned to Sturgis, Mich.

Springfield, O.—Opha Jackson recently made a business trip through the east.

Huntingdon, Pa.—H. C. Bratton, formerly in business here as a florist, is now manager and part owner of a farm of 1,260 acres at Grants Pass, Ore.

Worcester, Mass.—A. W. Hixon and George W. Knowlton had fine exhibits of cut flowers at the weekly show of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, July 21.

Loveland, Colo.—A hail storm June 29 played havoc at the greenhouses of N. E. De Golier, breaking nearly 7,000 square feet of glass in a total of a little over 10,000 feet. The storm continued for only two or three minutes.

East Seattle, Wash.—Stuber & Buxton, who for two years leased and operated the greenhouses formerly conducted by Dodge & Palmer, have now dissolved partnership, and Joseph Stuber is managing the business in his own name.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THIS is the time to plan the lines on which you will push with the opening of another season—for of course you will push!

"COLLECTIONS are not so good as they might be," remarks a contemporary. Verily, brother, they are not; but they always are just as good as the credit man's judgment, and never are any better.

USUALLY at this season there is an abundance of experienced greenhouse help, but this year the places open outnumber those seeking employment. Note that in the Want department there are more Help Wanted advertisements than Situations Wanted.

CONSIDER that when you lump your business your account becomes valuable to the house that has it—worth watching and working to retain—but when you buy a little here, a little there and a little everywhere it does not amount to enough to anyone to command special attention.

THE number of retail flower stores in the smaller cities is increasing with notable rapidity. In most cases they are conducted in connection with greenhouses in the outskirts, but in many not large places a retail store drawing supplies from a city market has proved its ability to stand on its own feet.

CONVENTION INVITATIONS.

The S. A. F. is so greatly in demand that it is becoming the practice to speak years in advance for its conventions. At its last meeting the New Orleans Horticultural Society made a bid for 1915. It makes the list of invitations stand as follows:

St. Louis	1911
Montreal	1912
New Orleans	1915

WON'T MISS ANY.

Many subscribers send, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of The Review, $2, $3 or occasionally $5—it saves the bother of yearly renewal.

Enclosed you will find $5 for five years. I would not miss The Review for anything; it's the best paper out.—P. L. Larson, Fort Dodge, Ia., July 20, 1910.

ST. LOUIS FLOWER SHOW.

The St. Louis Horticultural Society gives notice that, in addition to the regular lists of premiums offered for the fall show, which will be held in the Coliseum, November 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, the following special prizes are offered: For best display of roses, $500; best display of chrysanthemums, $500; best display of carnations, $500.

The addition of the $1,500 in prizes is made possible through the citizens' committee, who, under the leadership of Capt. Robt. McCulloch, are coöperating with the Horticultural Society and will give St. Louis one of the greatest flower shows ever held. All growers throughout the central states and the east are urged to stimulate the offering of prizes in such liberal quantity by prompt and liberal entry in the above classes. Prospective exhibitors will please apply for spaces required and further particulars to Otto G. Koerig, secretary.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

In addition to the premiums already announced, to be awarded at the Rochester show, August 16 to 19, a prize of $10 has been offered by H. H. Groff for the best exhibit in white and light, dark, yellow and blue hybrids; not more than three spikes of any one variety (i. e., one to three spikes); one or more vases of each color section; quality and value only to govern.

L. Merton Gage, Cor. Sec'y.

MOTHS IN GREENHOUSE.

In The Review of July 21, page 12, T. B. tells of a certain kind of moths which invaded his greenhouses by the hundreds, and which he was unable to exterminate by means of nicotine fumigation or spraying. I think the pests which troubled him were probably the same as those which I once had in my houses, and which are called leaf-tiers. It may seem odd, but the only effective remedy we found for them was to hit them with a piece of lath. This process took some time, but we finally cleaned them all out. Adolph Frost.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Some of the wholesale houses say that the market has now become a three-days-a-week affair, but they all agree that Friday, Saturday and Monday business is good; some of them find something doing other days, and on the whole it may be said that business is excellent for the season. Several houses that found early July business about on a par with last year are now reporting fine increases as compared with a year ago.

There is so little good stock in the market that the off-hand version is that a great deal more business might be done if supplies were larger, but the fact is that the call for flowers is not sufficiently insistent to carry prices much above the ordinary summer level; buyers simply walk out if prices are not to their liking.

The principal demand is for roses, but the principal shortage is of asters. Retailers appear to be using roses because they are better and more abundant than other flowers. Beauty crops now are light and Killarney is the most plentiful of roses. White roses are selling well, because a large part of the work this season is for funerals. White Killarney is more abundant than Kaiserin. It would be the ideal summer rose if the color were purer. In pink roses, My Maryland is coming in quite heavily, but it is not selling so well as Killarney. The buyers like My Maryland as a rose, but those out of town say it does not reach them in as good shape as Killarney. Shipping quality is one of the most important factors that go to make a flower good for this market. Richmond is slow sale; people do not want red in red hot weather.

The carnations are about at the low-

WHITE Killarney

A Large crop of fine quality now on.

Our Pink Killarneys are known far and wide as the finest roses that come into the Chicago market. The White Killarneys are from the same growers, and have the same quality. We never had nicer, cleaner summer Killarneys than this year. Try them and see for yourself. Send an order today.

ASTERS! ASTERS!!

Asters have been a bit slow in coming in, because of the dry weather, and the first were not as good as they might have been—but we are now receiving a good grade of stock and shall have large supplies of fancy Asters in all colors by the latter part of the present week. Order of us at all times.

Beauties

Our Beauties give the best of satisfaction and our supply is such that we can take care of all orders. Would especially like to hear from buyers who do not think the average run of Beauties offered in this market good enough for their trade.

Lilies

We can furnish fancy Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. The supply is large at present. $10 per 100.

Kaiserin

Buyers who want the best Kaiserin to be had, whatever length, should send their orders to us. We've got the goods.

Gladioli

There are three varieties and colors of Glads the retailers need: Mrs. Francis King, red; America, pink, and Augusta, white. We have these in large supply and of fine quality. Use them in window and work and they will draw trade for you.

Summer Stock

We can supply any flower in season. Order of us.

Greens

Headquarters for Farleyense, Adiantum, Smilax, Asparagus bunches.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

Elegant stock—the Chicago Market Brand—a single bunch or thousand lots, it's here.

ASTERS

We now have large daily supplies of Asters—we believe it is not overstating the facts to say we have larger quantity than any other house in the west and that the supply includes the best Asters to be had. But the demand for the best grade, at $2.00 to $3.00 per 100, is so strong that early orders are advised; plenty of the common kind, at $1.00 to $1.50 per 100, to fill orders at any time.

KILLARNEY, the best roses of the summer.
LILIES, always awaiting your orders.
GLADIOLI, the best.
ORCHIDS, largest supply.

est level. A few good ones still are coming in and are realizing excellent prices. The aster crop is late and it is the hiatus caused by the departure of the carnations and the non-arrival of the asters that is creating all the stir in the market. It appears that all through the central west the dry weather has held back the asters. True, considerable quantities of small white asters are now available, but the supply of really first-class stock is negligible.

Sweet peas are like Jeff; they have tried to come back, after practically disappearing from the market, but they are not able to make good; the stems are so short only the lowest of prices can be obtained. There are large supplies of gladioli, of which America continues to be the best seller, with Augusta second and Mrs. Francis King, the bright red, following; miscellaneous colors are little wanted. Those having Easter lilies report fair sales. There is a large variety of garden flowers, but they do not amount to much. A few peonies remain, but they are little wanted.

The green goods market is quiet.

The heat has been extreme and naturally hurts retail trade. Sunday, July 24, was the hottest day in nine years.

To Wipe the Slate.

After having been out of the flower business some months, Frances Jahn individually and doing business as Mrs. R. Jahn, Frances E. Butler and the F. E. Butler Floral Co., has asked the U. S. District Court to wipe the slate. In the petition in bankruptcy, filed July 20, the following summary is shown:

LIABILITIES.

Taxes due	$ 14.91
Wages of employees	55.50
Secured claims	262.00
Unsecured claims	11,571.40
Accommodation paper	2,324.51
Total	$14,228.32

ASSETS.

Cash on hand	$ 8.50
Insurance policy	260.00
Exempted property	50.00
Debts due on open accounts	1,952.33
Other personal property	106.00
Total	$ 2,376.83

The long list of creditors contains the names of a number of wholesale florists, plantsmen and supply dealers, but most of the accounts owing in the trade are under $100. There are, however, large sums owing to two local commission houses. One is set down as $2,050.16, the other $3,408.18. Of this latter sum $1,908.18 is listed as open account and notes and $1,500 among accommodation paper as liability for the endorsement of notes. Beyond these there are only three wholesale cut flower people involved over $100—one $119, another $133, and the third $288. W. L. Palinsky, who brought matters to a head by an attachment last December, is interested $421.70, and other plantsmen appear on the list for $284.88, $311.25, $151.17, $78 and lesser amounts.

How much the book accounts will realize is problematical, but if it were 100 cents on the dollar it would not go far after paying the expenses of the proceedings.

The effect of the bankruptcy, and probably the purpose of the proceedings, will be to permit Mrs. Jahn to continue her typewriter business, which is incorporated, or to go into new ventures unhampered by the collection efforts of the creditors of her former interests.

McKellar in Massachusetts.

Robert Groves, the fern dealer at Adams, Mass., wrote The Review as follows under date of July 20:

"Charles W. McKellar and wife arrived here in their automobile the evening of July 18 (they left Chicago July 9) and stayed over night with me. They have had good luck, no trouble except a little tire trouble. I piloted them over Hoosac mountain in my Maxwell touring car and I am sure I gave them the largest mountain climb they will have on their trip. They were going through Greenfield and then up the Connecticut river through Vermont and New Hampshire. I am sending you this so their friends in Chicago will know they are still going east and having a good time."

Mr. McKellar himself wrote The Review from Mt. Washington, Breton Woods, N. H., July 21, saying they have run over 1,400 miles and that they are feeling fine.

B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, who has been in town this week, says his order book is convincing evidence of the untruthfulness of any reports that the trade south and west is not prosperous.

Since it was announced in The Review several months ago that Bassett & Washburn were considering the removal of their plant at Hinsdale to another location, there have been several reports that a deal had been consummated, the last such report concerning a tract of forty acres at East Grove. But all such reports are premature. Several pieces have been looked at and options taken on some of them, but no decision has been made. It is not even settled that a move will be made, though it seems likely.

busy Friday, July 22, with wreaths, etc., for the big Rawn funeral at Winnetka. This firm also made the casket cover of White Killarney and valley. It was stated that their work for this one funeral would amount to over $600 in value. Other leading retailers also had considerable work for this funeral.

Eventually the Geo. Wittbold Co. expects to replace all its horse-drawn wagons with motor trucks. An order already has been given for a 1,500-pound truck to be built by the Chicago Motor Wagon Co., and figuring is being done on a number of larger trucks to be used in place of the present wagons. The company now has thirty horses of its own and is hiring about fourteen others. This firm is hauling a large quantity of soil for the new Lincoln park addition. It was stated that funeral work kept the retail department on the jump last week.

Ernst Rober, at Maywood, says he has 50,000 poinsettia cuttings that soon will be ready for shipment from pots.

W. J. Smyth is summering, as usual, at his cottage at Lake Marie, visiting the store usually once a week.

Phil Schupp has been spending a few days at Geneva Lake, where the Budlong families summer. A. H. Budlong goes up for the week-ends when Mr. Schupp stays in town.

E. C. Amling and his family and H. N. Bruns and son motored to Lake Marie for a few days' fishing last week.

Will Hoerber spent July 25 at the greenhouses of Hoerber Bros., Des Plaines. The new range is almost completed and stock looking well.

Gus Alles, at the store of Wietor Bros., says he does not remember a time when business has been so good at this season.

George Pieser, of Zech & Mann's, is among the week's absentees.

George Reinberg has bought a touring car.

Henry Kruchten is putting in his time at the greenhouses as usual in summer, helping his father, Nick Kruchten, get things going for the new season. In the winter he assists his brother, John Kruchten, in the wholesale store.

Fred Sperry is on the sick list. A. L. Vaughan, who is just back from his vacation, says Saturday's business, July 23, was like a winter day.

O. Johnson, who sells in the Flower Growers' Market as the Batavia Greenhouse Co., said July 25 that he still had 500 dozen peonies in storage. Klehm's Nurseries, Kennicott & Son and Schiller each had small quantities remaining.

W. E. Lynch has been out among the aster growers, sizing up the situation. He says it is the general statement that, although the plants given good attention look well, the rate of development after showing bud is extremely slow.

Along with the first asters, Kennicott Bros. Co. has received lancifolium lilies, tuberoses and tritomas.

C. M. Dickinson took his family to Pelican lake last week, intending to remain only a few days. Word that he had caught a 25-pound muskie indicates a postponement of his return. Mrs. E. H. Hunt is at Broadhead, N. Y.

John Poehlmann says sales are now running quite a little heavier than a year ago. Poehlmann Bros. Co. has begun to cut Golden Glow mums. A few asters are being grown this year. George Poehlmann is on his vacation.

John Mangel makes an extremely pretty window decoration of water lilies, in many varieties and colors, from George Schwing.

An adjourned meeting of the Horticultural Society will be held at the Art Institute August 2, at which it is expected to elect a president and get busy on fall show matters.

Henry Van Gelder, manager of the Percy Jones business, speaking of collections, said July 25 that almost ninety per cent of the June accounts had been paid.

Tim Matchen, at Peter Reinberg's, says there already is inquiry for field grown carnation plants.

At Kyle & Foerster's they will tell you the signs point to brisk demand for all the good flowers there are from this time on, with big business in the autumn.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., is away on a few days' vacation, leaving Web Randall and Otto Goerisch, with numerous assistants, to hold the fort.

L. Baumann returned from Europe last week. He reports a delightful trip and many new and attractive novelties as a result of his efforts.

The Illinois Heater & Manufacturing Co. has recently added a line of plant and palm tubs to its large list of self-watering window boxes, hanging baskets, etc. This company is planning to have a display at the S. A. F. convention at Rochester.

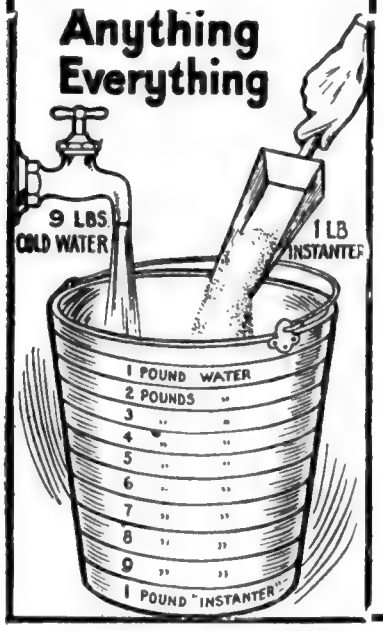
PROVIDENCE.



The Market.

The carnation crop is nearly at an end and such as are coming to the market are small and sleepy looking, as a rule. However, the vanguard of the asters has appeared and these will adequately fill the void caused by the passing of the carnation. The first of these are being cut by Joseph Kopelman at his farm in Oaklawn and by the Warwick Greenhouses. Business is practically at a standstill, only occasional funeral orders keeping things moving. Several of the downtown retailers are taking advantage of the respite to make needed alterations and improvements in their stores.

Club Outing.

In lieu of the regular monthly meeting, the members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, July 18, made a pilgrimage to the Rhode Island College, at Kingston, where a most profitable afternoon was passed. Fifteen members of the club responded to the call issued by President Robert Johnston and, in addition, Jackson Dawson, M. H. Norton and William J. Stewart, of Boston, joined the party. Among others who participated were F. C. Green, superintendent of parks, and John F. McCarthy, superintendent of Swan Point cemetery. Under the direction of Secretary William E. Chappell, the party went to Kingston, where they were met by Dr. H. J. Wheeler, director of the experiment station, and Dr. Howard Edwards, president of the college. A substantial dinner was served, after which the grounds and buildings were investigated and the work that is being done at the college was explained.

The Citizens' Savings Bank has discharged a mortgage of $5,000 against Thomas Curley and wife, on greenhouses and other property at the corner of Harkness and Slocum streets.

The Melrose Rose Gardens have two large tracts of land in the Elmwood section of this city, wherein are being grown thousands of tea roses, many of the bushes now being in full bloom.

M. J. Sweeney reports having had one of the busiest first six months of any year since he began in business.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Last week saw the market well cleaned up practically every day. Nearly all kinds of flowers are rather scarce and the bulk of poor quality. Roses have shortened up materially and move a little better at improved prices. Outside of Kaiserin and Carnot, few flowers are seen of even ordinary quality. Carnations are fewer in numbers and poorer than at any time this season. The bulk of growers have stopped sending in and are busy replanting their stock. Asters are rather more plentiful and sell as well as anything. The kind most in evidence is Queen of the Market. Sweet peas improved last week with the cooler weather, but the hot wave, which started July 23, is again spoiling them, the pink and scarlet shades coming badly faded out.

Quite a few speciosum lilies are arriving. These sell at $2 to $3 per hundred. Gladioli from outdoors are now quite abundant. America still remains the most popular sort. There are good supplies of gypsophila, cornflowers, sweet sultans, annual chrysanthemums, cosmos and other outdoor flowers. Orchids are scarce, but in little demand. Lily of the valley is seen now only in small lots. Gardenias still arrive, but few are called for.

Club Picnic.

There was an unusually attractive prize list for the picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at Pine Banks park, Malden, July 27, the donors being the following: Braman, Dow & Co., Schlegel & Fottler Co., R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Fottler-Fiske-Rawson Co., Duncan Finlayson, M. A. Patten, H. M. Robinson & Co., Boston Plate & Window Glass Co., P. J. Turley, Daniel Iliffe, Henry Penn, William Patterson, W. E. Fiske Seed Co., Stumpp & Walter Co., A. H. Hews & Co., W. B. Whittier & Co., W. McLaughlin.

The following contributed to the general entertainment fund: W. J. Thurston, A. Christensen, Neil Boyle, Gibbs Bros., A. E. Battey, Lombard the Florist, J. F. Flood, A. E. Walsh, E. A. Peirce, F. Solari, D. Cartwright, P. Donaghue.

W. J. Kennedy was ringmaster; Edward Rose, starter; William McGillivray, handicapper; W. N. Craig, clerk; William Downs, W. J. Stewart, K. Finlayson, T. H. Westwood, James Wheeler, A. F. Barney, George Shield, judges; James L. Miller, umpire; William E. Cahill, scorer.

Various Notes.

James Wheeler has the interior of his big new carnation house plowed up and ready for planting, which will be done at once. All the plants will be set in the ground, at least for the first season. The house will present a fine appearance when in crop.

George M. Anderson, of Milton, has the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in the loss of his estimable wife, whose death occurred July 16, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Anderson was known and esteemed by many in the trade. The interment took place July 19, when there were many beautiful floral tributes.

William Sim is a busy man these days. He has a large part of his big block of sweet corn marketed, which was started in pots. He also has a heavy daily pick of tomatoes, which are still bringing 12½ cents to 18 cents per pound at wholesale.

the wholesale flower market on Park street, twenty-three in number, went down the harbor July 21, their object being a boat load of the finny tribe. While the catches of the members did not quite reach expectations, all had an unlimited amount of fun. Lester Mann, of Randolph, proved the most expert fisherman, landing more fish than anyone else, also getting the heaviest specimens.

The Rev. W. T. Hutchins, the sweet pea specialist, has been spending a few days in town.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are handling an extra fine lot of Gladiolus America, outdoor grown, at their stand at C Park street.

A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, left this week on his annual European trip, which will take in several countries. Azaleas, palms and other plants, in which Mr. Leuthy specializes, will be bought in large numbers.

After a cool and invigorating week, the hot wave returned July 23. The two following days, with maximum temperatures of 94 degrees, were about the most disagreeable of the present summer. We continue to have a serious deficiency in rainfall.

W. E. Turner is back from a vacation spent at Jefferson, Me., and reports fishing as being extra good.

The hot weather does not prevent active canvassing for the S. A. F. convention at Rochester, and everything points to a fine delegation from Boston.

A. S. Parker, of Stoneham, has a field of asters which promises to surpass in quality previous years' crops. Few growers can get such stems on their flowers as Mr. Parker.

The Waban Conservatories are shipping extra fine Kaiserin roses at present. They are planting a house of W. H. Elliott's specialty, Mrs. Aaron Ward, this season. W. N. Craig.

SHADING FOR HOUSES.

Will you kindly tell me how to make a preparation for shading my house? I want something that will wash off easily. I do not want to use whitewash, as it is so hard to remove.

L. M. S.

Kerosene or naphtha and white lead make as neat and satisfactory a preparation as any you could use. It can be either sprayed on with a force pump, or on smaller houses put on with a long-handled, flat whitewash brush. Frost and snow will remove this. It can also be rubbed off when desired. Be sure not to use any linseed oil, or the shading will be very hard to remove. If you want a shading to come off more easily still, use whiting and kerosene. This will be more liable to wash off, however, during heavy rains. C.

PHILADELPHIA.

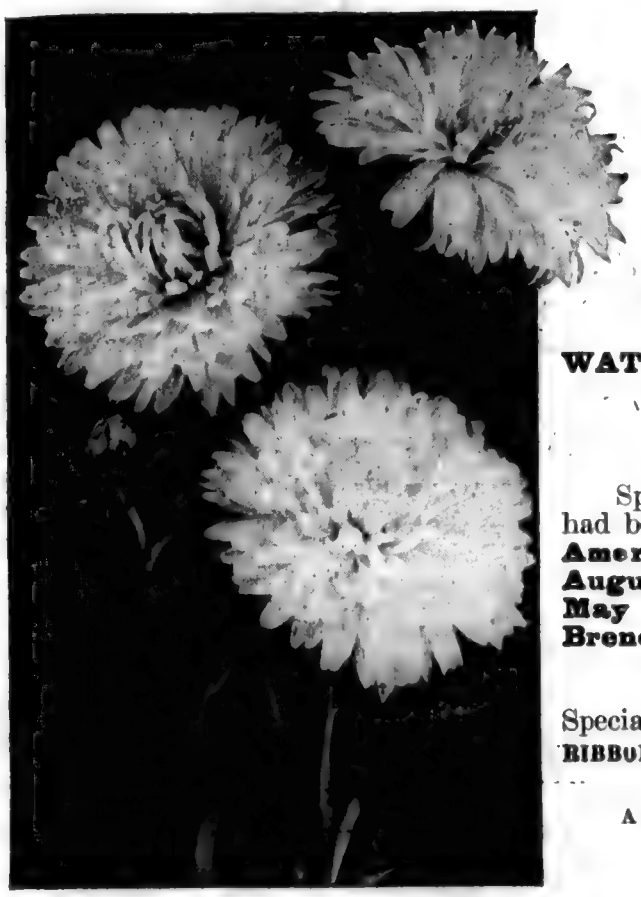
The Rising Eastern Market.

The feature of a quiet market is the increase in the supply of asters; there are three times as many asters coming into town today as there were a week ago. They are welcome, for with the absence of carnations and the extreme shortage of white roses the asters often do duty for both. Queen of the Market is the only variety arriving. A few of the best have brought more than listed quotations, but most of the asters are only fair in quality, not the kind of flowers that command advanced prices. It seems that the dark shades are in better form early than the pink and white; at any rate, there are a good many more lavender-purple than any other shade and they average better in quality.

The other features of the market are the continued scarcity of white roses (it is promised Kaiserin will be more plentiful soon); the continued supply of gladioli, and the fine quality of the Easter lilies, a quality so good during this hot, dry weather as to command a market wherever it is possible to use large lilies. Sweet peas from down east are exceptionally fine, the stems slightly drought shortened. Water lilies have been strengthened by the arrival of lotuses. There is a good supply of nice valley, while Beauties, Maryland and Killarney of fair quality are usually obtainable.

The shipping demand is fair, limited sometimes by the supply that is good enough to ship. Greens are dull.

The Annual Meeting at Dreer's.



The annual meeting of the Henry A. Dreer Co., Inc., was held at Riverton, N. J., on the afternoon of July 16. The present officers were reëlected: President, William F. Dreer; vice-president, Jacob D. Eisele; treasurer, Herbert G. Tull; secretary, J. Otto Thilow. Perhaps the most significant way of describing the company's condition is to tell of the auto trip that followed the meeting, a trip taken to inspect the new 124-acre farm, lying along the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad to the east of the present large plant, where it is proposed to build a modern range of greenhouses, with packing shed so conveniently arranged that the railroad may discharge and receive supplies directly, saving time and expense in hauling. Is not this progress?

A Letter From Mr. Stokes.

Walter P. Stokes writes entertainingly from Brussels. He describes briefly a day or so spent in the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, then tells of his arrival in St. Malo, France, and his impressions of the town of St. Michael, built on a pile of rock rising from the flat sand by the sea, the convent picturesquely situated on top. From St. Michael Mr. Williard and Mr. Stokes went to Angers, a seed-growing district in the west of France, where for twenty miles around everybody grows seed, an industry surprising in its magnitude and perfection. Paris came next, where the size and system of the house of Vilmorin was of especial interest: 150 employees in this seed house, each doing his work quietly and well without interfering with anyone else. Mme. Henri Vilmorin, wife of the late head of the house, entertained the visitors at her home, while the pleasure of their stay was further increased by other courtesies shown them by members of the firm. The present head of the house was absent, being at the exposition in Brussels. An incident in Paris was the "visitors' book," with royalties among the signatures.

The D. & C. Co.

Public interest in the affairs of the Dingee & Conard Co. centers in the retirement of the veteran Charles Dingee from the business that he founded many years ago. While Mr. Dingee has taken little active part in the company's affairs of late years, he has retained his stock until now and has been supposed to have a voice in the management. The retirement of Mr. Dingee is more a change in the personnel of the stockholders than in the management, as his brothers-in-law have carried this load for a long time.

I recall clearly the surprise after a visit to the company's large plant, when P. Joseph Lynch remarked casually that he owned the Dingee & Conard Co. This was understood to mean a controlling interest. The company is prosperous, a fact strongly brought out by the recent branches in the south and in the west. The officers are: President, Alfred P. Reed, the company's counsel; vice-president, M. Henry Lynch; secretary and treasurer, P. Joseph Lynch.

A Breeze From Holland.

The bulb growing community in Holland has been stirred by the withdrawal of one of the little army of salesman travelers who come to this country, a man of long experience, who decided to start in a business partnership, resigning the position with the house he has represented here. This act would occasion no comment beyond wishing him well in his new venture were it not that enterprise has run away with discretion, causing a breeze abroad with a sympathetic ripple here. This was due to the salesman-that-was informing one or more of his customers here that he had a copy of their order given him for his former employers and that he felt sure he could fill it better than they, an error in business morality that merited condemnation.

A party of four, Gilbert Baker, George S. Faulkner, John McIntyre and Edward Reid, went to Almonesson, near Woodbury, N. J., Saturday, July 23, in Mr. Reid's car. Fish were scarce, but there were two exciting experiences. A boat near them upset; two fellows who were in it were so excited that the girl with them might have been drowned had not Mr. Reid jumped overboard to her aid until his boat came alongside. On the way home an injured farmer, whose wagon had been wrecked by a motor, was charitably taken to the Cooper hospital, in Camden.

A Shipload of Novelties

Mr. Bayersdorfer returned to Philadelphia July 23rd, after spending three months in Europe looking over all the florists' supplies of the old world. He secured the best of everything, the best of the novelties and all that is desirable in standard supplies. The novelties are unusually fine this year, Mr. Bayersdorfer says, so fine that he will be followed by a whole shipload of them, besides very many other consignments.

These supplies will be at your disposal. Do not fail to get in touch with us early.

Better come to Philadelphia and see them, if that be possible, or to Rochester August 16, 17 and 18, where we shall spare no pains to have everything you want to see ready to show you.

Don't forget we have everything in florists' supplies and that is saying a good deal.

Smith, Lineaweaver & Co. report the demand in certain of the domestic sizes of anthracite coal is extremely dull and for that reason most operations are running on restricted time—on an average of about three days per week. This condition has a tendency to keep prices up on the steam sizes, for which there is rather a good demand, and at full prices. The bituminous coal trade is decidedly slow and there is considerable curtailment of output. The better grades are bringing fair prices, while the poor grades are offered at exceptionally low figures. There is considerable labor trouble in the Greensburg and Westmoreland fields of Westmoreland county, which has made gas coal, in the good grades, scarce, and prices high.

Samuel F. Lilley expects to move his wholesale commission house from 1514 Sansom street to a convenient place nearby next week, as the building he now occupies is to be torn down.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The hot wave has returned. The losses to the market gardeners and growers of outdoor flowers will be enormous if rain is longer delayed. Its effects are already evident in the aster shipments. Of gladioli there is such an enormous quantity grown for the New York market that the summer rate of 50 cents per hundred is already here for everything but the new and choice varieties. Saturday saw a good clean-up, everything of value being disposed of and, owing to the scarcity, at somewhat better prices. Everything is scarce but gladioli, yet the demand is light and any special raise in values is impossible. Lilies fluctuated last week between 3 cents and 6 cents and closed at 4 cents to 5 cents. Enormous quantities arrived and the quality was perfect.

American Beauties sold under $10 per hundred. In fact, one wholesaler said you could buy Beauties at the price of Killarney and Maid all through the week, so light was the demand for anything. A visit to the retail stores found absolute quiet, with no stock in the ice-boxes and dependence on the telephone for stock for such orders as came in. A few of each variety of rose, Richmond, Kaiserin, Maryland, Bride, Killarney and Maid, arrive daily and clean up readily if at all presentable.

Few carnations worthy of the name are coming in and the price is nominal; 1 cent to 2 cents is the quotation. Valley holds fairly well. Sweet peas are seldom salable. The few orchids that arrive hold the old rate. It is "marking time" season and the general preparation for the coming season, with principals and employees taking advantage of holiday opportunities and waiting patiently for September.

Various Notes.

Only two weeks from Monday to convention time. Over 200 have already declared their intention to attend. The special train for the New Yorkers leaves Monday, August 15, at 9:50 a.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business revived somewhat last week and the trade was quite busy with funeral work. The wholesalers had plenty of stock on hand to fill all orders. White and light colored stock cleaned up fairly well, but the darker shades went begging. The market opened up Monday morning with a shortage in almost everything, except gladioli, and the price went up on these to 3 cents in small lots and 2½ cents in hundred lots. These have been good sellers all season and greatly used by the trade for window decorations.

Carnations are not of good quality and are becoming scarce, as the growers are cleaning out the old plants. The same can be said about roses, which will be scarce for some time yet. Asters are slow in coming in, also tuberoses. Hydrangeas, sweet peas, cornflowers, larkspurs and other outdoor flowers have a fair demand. There is plenty of green goods.

Florists' Club Picnic.

The event of the year among the St. Louis florists took place Thursday afternoon, July 21, at Ramona park. The day could not have been more perfect for an occasion of this kind, and the crowd was one of the largest that ever attended an outing given by the Florists' Club. Trustee Schoenle had to work single-handed, as A. J. Bentzen and Henry Ostertag, owing to business, failed to come out and take a hand, but good assistants were quickly found in Frank Windler and Al Ganns, who worked faithfully and hard all day. The reception committee, consisting of Frank Fillmore, W. J. Pilcher and J. J. Beneke, also had their hands full, seeing that all were made comfortable.

The morning crowd was, as usual, small, but a big crowd streamed in all during the afternoon. A fine band of music and free lemonade were much enjoyed by all, but the exciting feature of the day was the game between the Bentzen and Sanders ball teams. Owing to a late start, only five innings were played and the Bentzen team met their Waterloo. The score was: Sanders 8 and Bentzen 2. John Bentzen was unable to play, owing to a broken finger, but he umpired a fair and square game and says the best team won.

There were numerous events for young and old and interest at no time lagged. These games were in charge of Charles E. Schoenle, Frank Windler, Al Ganns and J. J. Beneke. The list and winners were as follows:

The 25-yard dash for girls under 16, Miss Alice Jablonsky.

The egg-and-spoon race for married ladies, Mrs. A. Jablonsky.

The 50-yard dash for boys under 16, Harold Briggs, who is employed by Fred C. Weber.

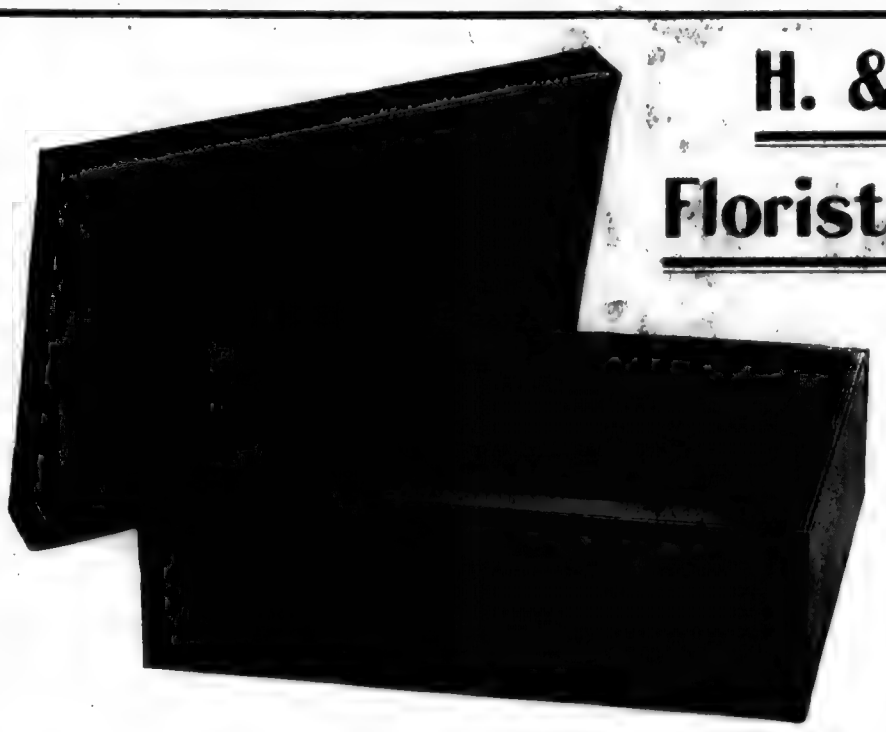
The potato race for girls from 10 to 16, Miss Alice McHenry.

The 50-yard dash for young ladies over 16, Miss Jennie Bolard.

The hop, step and jump race for boys under 16, P. Jablonsky.

The 50-yard dash for anyone over 35 years old, J. J. Beneke, first; C. De Wever, second.

The tug of war, seven on each side, won by the W. C. Smith team.



The bean-guessing contest, won by Herman Weber.

The prize waltz, Edward Gerlach and his partner, Miss Minnie Beyers, first; Carl Weber and Miss Klockenkemper, second.

At the conclusion of the contests a group photograph was taken by Oscar C. Kuehn. The rest of the evening was devoted to dancing, boating and other amusements, which were in plenty all over the grounds. This kept up until almost midnight, when all went home saying that the seventeenth annual picnic was the best ever given by the St. Louis Florists' Club.

From Belleville, the families of E. W. Guy, Henry Emunds, Gus Grossart and A. G. Fehr said they never enjoyed a pleasanter afternoon. They came a long way and were glad of it.

Edwin Denker and his sister came all the way from St. Charles, Mo., to be with us.

The Jablonsky family are some sprinters, winning three of the prizes, Mrs. Jablonsky, Miss Alice and Phoenix being the lucky ones.

John Seketes, well known in the local trade as a wire worker for both C. A. Kuehn and W. C. Smith, died last week. The funeral took place Thursday, July 21.

Henry Aue and Ernest Hentschel sent greetings from the other side of the big pond. Mr. Aue attended the golden wedding of his parents a week ago.

Fred Foster, who is about to build a greenhouse at his place in Kinloch, invited W. C. Smith, George Angermueller and Oscar Kuehn out Saturday afternoon, July 23. When they got there he put them to work digging post holes. The day was hot and when Mr. Foster went after a jug of cold water all three escaped and said "Never again."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

soon wilt and burn up. A certain number of plants will probably show "the yellows." Pull up and destroy these. If the black aster beetles appear and hand picking proves ineffective, it is better to spray the plants with weak Paris green water. Any slight discoloration of white flowers is easily removed by merely dipping the heads in water after picking.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis makes one of the most beautiful of pot plants, and its keeping qualities when cut are equal to those of carnations. A nice batch at Christmas should sell well, as the plants have such a bushy, neat and at the same time graceful appearance. Sow the seeds in flats. Pot off singly when large enough to handle and keep the plants potted along, using 6-inch or 7-inch pots at the final shift. A coldframe will be even better than a greenhouse for the plants for the next eight or ten weeks. Keep the little plants pinched freely until the early part of October. This insures more compact plants. The other varieties of schizanthus, such as grandiflorus, oculatus and retusus albus, are pretty, but too tall growing for pot plants. There are improved types of S. Wisetonensis offered, with flowers of double the size of the original type. Schizanthus wants cool house culture at all times.

Chrysanthemum Maximum Edward VII.

Of the many named forms of the so-called Shasta daisy, Chrysanthemum maximum King Edward VII is the best. The flowers now open are of immense size, pure white in color and carried on stems three to four feet long. As a florists' flower, this should prove useful. It is easily raised from seed, of simple culture, perfectly winter hardy and blooms at a time when good flowers are none too abundant. I have seen magnificent clumps of this variety six feet in height near the seashore, but further inland it, in common with many more hot weather flowering perennials and annuals, does not succeed so well.

Seed sown now will produce quite good-sized plants before fall. These can either be planted out in October and covered with a light mulch when the ground freezes, or carried over in a coldframe and planted out in April. The plants will be much finer the second and third years and are easily increased by division of the roots.

Coreopsis Grandiflora.

If seed of Coreopsis grandiflora has not yet been sown, it is not too late to start some. Classed as a perennial, this in the north is better treated as a biennial and in the coldest states it is safe to carry it over winter in coldframes. If any plants have been allowed to flower and seed, these will give an abundance of seeds of the best germinating quality. The value of this coreopsis planted out in a cool house for spring flowering, or grown in pots, which can be allowed to root through into a bench, is not yet fully understood. The flowers are four inches across, golden yellow, petals overlapping, and the stems are long. As a Memorial day crop it is invaluable.

The plants should be potted in late fall and kept in a coldframe until the end of January, when they should be brought into gentle heat. The seedlings come up quickly and should be allowed nine to twelve inches apart in the rows when transplanted, as they attain considerable size before fall. The Californian form, Eldorado, has extra large flowers. The old lanceolata is not nearly so good as grandiflora, the flowers being much smaller.

A NORTH COLDFRAME.

What can I grow in a coldframe on the north side of my greenhouse? The wall is five feet high. Would it be good for pansies and daisies? It does not get any sun in the winter months.

H. C. G.

Such plants as pansies, violas, myosotis and daisies will winter all right in such a frame as you describe. After the soil about them has frozen hard, give them a covering of pine needles or perfectly dry leaves and place sashes over them. Leave this covering on until the soil thaws out. During mild spells in winter, tilt up the sashes to let some air in to the plants. So long as the leaves or pine needles keep quite dry, the plants will winter all right, but if broken glass allows snow or rain to get in, a number are likely to damp off. It would be a good plan to place board shutters over the glass during the cold months.

C. W.

Palo Alto, Cal.—President Lathrop, of the board of regents of Stanford University, will at once commence the erection of four iron-frame greenhouses on his estate near this place.

The Market.

The dullest time of the year seems to be over. Not a great deal of stock is coming in, but it sells readily at fair prices. The quality of everything is much better than for some time. The listless spirit that has pervaded the market has disappeared. Buyers no longer just drop around and see what is going on, but place their orders and are on hand to see that they are filled.

Beauties are the best of the roses and bring a good average price. A few of the first cuts from the young stock have arrived. Carnations are now practically done until the new cut begins. Easter lilies of good quality are offered. Gladioli, especially the finer varieties, find a ready sale. White asters are now more plentiful, while the dark shades are scarce. Little valley can be had. Other stock offered includes hardy hydrangeas, small callas, cornflowers, asters and Shasta daisies.

The supply of decorative greens is sufficient for all demands.

Club Outing.

The members, both individually and collectively, of the outing committee of the Florists' Society, deserve congratulations for the careful and efficient way in which they planned and executed their plans for the annual outing and picnic of the club at the Country Club, Thursday, July 21. Everything showed the same system and evenness of running as the well-oiled machine of the Chicago Cubs displays in its dash for the pennant. Everybody went away well satisfied and no knocks have been heard.

The majority of the various events were hotly contested. In the boys' ball game the store boys triumphed by only one run. Master Kahn, B. Davis and Charles Windram were victors in the various classes of boys' foot races, while Miss Pfeiffer won laurels in the girls' foot race. In the race for men 40 years of age or over, J. T. Conger walked away from the field. The three tugs of war, for ladies, men and boys, were close; the sides captained respectively by Mrs. K. Zitscher, Wm. Murphy and Sidney George, were returned winners. Al. Heckman, though closely pressed, took first in the foot race open to all. The sack race for boys furnished plenty of amusement for the crowd; W. Dellar finally won this event. Miss Jennie Adrian and Mrs. Ernst Manthey were winners in the two egg races. The growers climbed all over the store men in the men's ball game, to the tune of 19 to 1. The selection of Arthur Manthey and Miss Stella Heckermeyer, Al. Heckman and Miss Jennie Adrian, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Murphy for the prizes for the most graceful couples in the waltzing contest meant keen work on the part of the judges. The whole affair was in every way a howling success.

At a special meeting of the society, held during the picnic, it was definitely decided to send a bowling team to Rochester to represent the society. Certain necessary funds were voted.

Various Notes.

On Saturday evening, July 23, about forty local wholesale and retail florists assembled at Labold & Newburgh's, 8 East Third street, and partook of a banquet. The affair was planned with the intention of bringing together, on friendlier terms than have heretofore existed, the various men connected with the trade in this city. In this the evening was a success, and such meetings will undoubtedly have a tendency to get the various firms to work together to one common end, namely, to boost the florists' business. The party sang "Auld Lang Syne" and broke up as the "wee sma' hours" of the morning were growing large.

Weiland & Olinger's summer Beauties are finding a ready market.

C. E. Critchell is receiving regular consignments of hardy hydrangea blooms, asters and miniature callas.

Hereafter Alex Ostendarp, of J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., may stay away from the office when on his vacation. On Monday he dropped in and was promptly put to packing auratum lilies for shipping orders.

J. A. Peterson has ordered material for two new houses, one 16x125 and the other 26x125, which he will devote entirely to Begonia Glory of Cincinnati. He has installed a new boiler, in which he will use coal for fuel if the natural gas should suddenly give out in the others.

On Saturday, July 23, C. C. Murphy and daughter, Mrs. Kuhn, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Murphy, motored to Indianapolis.

P. J. Olinger has as his guest his brother George, from Aurora, Ill. Both are "baching it" at present.

Harrie B. McCullough has returned from a trip to New York city.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

RADISH is one of the items that will not go begging next season.

Now it's the corn crop that is the basis for the scare. Weather too dry in the corn belt.

THE trade seems to be free from one worry: No one appears to be concerned about the crop of onion.

WHOLESALE seedsmen who have booked a lot of business for delivery out of 1910 crops are beginning to wonder—prices are steadily going up.

J. J. UTTER, Bravo, Mich., wrote July 26 that beans were doing well, vine seeds fair, turnips good, but sweet corn will be a short crop, as it appears to him.

SEEDSMEN will be interested in the Stokes and Willard note and in the Dreer note in the Philadelphia newsletter, beginning on page 24 of this issue.

THE prospect for a good crop of beans grows daily less. Some of the fields will turn out practical failures and not many, it is said, will yield what the growers had hoped. And a good bean crop would have been useful.

W. H. GRENELL says the situation of beans in Michigan is becoming serious. To him it appears that the chances of a good crop have gone by and no better than a short crop is possible. Many fields, he says, look like a failure of crop.

MRS. C. C. MORSE, widow of the pioneer seed grower of California, died at her home in Santa Clara, July 14. Mrs. Morse crossed the plains in the early 50's and had lived in the neighborhood of San Jose for many years. She is survived by a grown-up family, of whom Lester Morse is at the head of the house of C. C. Morse & Co.

AN attorney whose specialty is commercial law states that no part of what may be printed on a letter-head is a part of a contract unless it be between the date line and the signature, except a reference appears between those parts to practically bring the outside words within the body of the letter itself. This would apply to the non-warranty clause as printed on most seedsmen's stationery.

THE pea proposition is going to be a serious one. There are reports that many fields will do well to return the stock.

DRY, hot weather is general all over the country. To say the least, it is doing no good to crops, and seed crops are to the seed trade as important as any others this year. We need the seeds.

THE Society of Seed and Vegetable Growers was formed July 2 at Winschoten, Holland, including a number of seed growers in the Groningen district. Hommo Ten Have is chairman of the first committee of managers.

ADAM CURRIE, of Currie Bros. Co., seedsmen, Milwaukee, expresses the opinion that scraping the bark off trees, in an attempt to exterminate the tussock moth, is more harmful than the moth and really does irreparable damage.

AT ROCKY FORD.

No section of the country has developed faster in the last five years, speaking of seed growing interests, than has the Rocky Ford district of Colorado. Not only vine seeds, especially cantaloupe and cucumber, but many other articles now are produced there in quantity. Referring to the seasonableness of things at Rocky Ford, D. V. Burrell said July 19:

"Growing conditions here continue very favorable and, with a few exceptions, our crops promise full delivery on contracts. Seed growing in our valley has extended very rapidly and this year acreage is much more than heretofore."

BROMFIELD & COLVIN SELL OUT.

Announcement is made that Bromfield & Colvin, of Bay City, Mich., have sold their entire seed stock and surplus of peas and beans, as well as their good will in the business, to W. H. Grenell, of Saginaw. At one time, operating as the Bromfield-Colvin-Reis Co., the firm was quite an important factor in the trade, the seed-growing end being under the management of Mr. Reis. Subsequent to his retirement the older members gave the bulk of their attention to the other lines, which MANGELSDORFS REORGANIZE.

A reorganization of the Mangelsdorf Bros. Co., of Atchison, Kan., has just been completed, whereby Wm. Mangelsdorf and Henry D. Back assume the business at Ellinwood, Kan., and all real estate interests in Barton county, Kansas. August Mangelsdorf and his sons take over the entire Atchison business and the charter of the company. The officers of the reorganized company are: President, August Mangelsdorf; vice-president, August F. Mangelsdorf; secretary, Fred W. Mangelsdorf; treasurer, Frank H. Mangelsdorf. The capital stock of the company remains as before, $100,000, fully paid, with a surplus of $26,000.

FIRST DUTCH BULBS.

It has previously been stated in this department of The Review that the early ripening down of the bulb crops in Holland, and the good weather at the time of digging and cleaning would lead to earlier shipments this year than last, and it now appears that the first lot of the 1910 crops left Holland for America July 21, an earlier date than ever before. The shipment consisted of eighty cases of early yellow trumpet narcissus from C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom.

Reports from Holland growers confirm the earlier statements that the size of the crops of both hyacinths and tulips was considerably reduced by the sudden early arrival of summer conditions in the bulb district, but that the quality of the bulbs, particularly their forcing qualities, will be exceptionally good this season.

Writing in Holland early in July, the correspondent of one of the English trade journals said:

"The lifting was started fully two weeks ahead of last year. No doubt that the warm weather will not miss its favorable effect on the flowering capacities of this year's bulbs, but it also means considerable less quantity in the crop. At the present moment it is estimated that the general crop of bulbs will be twenty-five per cent less than last year's, and although the early tulips, that had almost finished growth when the hot weather came on, have not suffered so much, it is quite certain that the late or May-flowering tulips will prove to be a poor crop. Crocus have also died off far too early, and will not be as good as last year; but narcissus and iris are likely to bring quite as good a crop, although the acreage planted out is not as large. Spiræa are just now in full bloom and making a beautiful show, but not one-half the usual quantity is planted out, as last year's sales have kept the stocks too close."

BACTERIA CORPORATION FAILS.

Another of the nitrogen fixing bacteria companies has succumbed to the difficulties of introducing its product, a petition in bankruptcy having been filed July 22 against the Standard Nitrogen Co. at New York.

The company is a South Dakota corporation, incorporated October 1, 1909, with capital stock of $10,000,000, divided into 2,000,000 shares at $5 each, to manufacture a patent fertilizer for agricultural purposes, by producing cultures of bacteria which absorb nitrogen from the air. The fertilizer was put up in small bottles, and a 50-cent bottle was said to inoculate a bushel of seed or 100 pounds of soil. The company, it is said, bought 2,500 acres of land at Tuckerton, N. J., and 1,000 acres at Norwich, Conn., for experimental purposes, and had a laboratory and plant at Richmond, Va.

Considerable money was spent in developing the business, but it did not prove as profitable as anticipated, and some of the men interested in the company withdrew. William P. Kellogg, former United States senator and governor of Louisiana, whose name appeared on the list of directors, withdrew, it is said, several months ago. G. E. Heyl is president. Liabilities of the company are said to be $86,000 and assets $11,800, consisting of stock $3,000, accounts $5,800, laboratory $2,000, and land $1,000.

J. C. Robinson, who in his address at Atlantic City as president of the American Seed Trade Association, said:

"The satisfaction of knowing just what your goods are to cost you much more than offsets this increase in rate. The whole situation is pertinently expressed by a heavy importer, who says: 'I may say that we are greatly pleased with the operation of the new measure. The possibility of being charged with fraud if goods were entered at the prices paid had been a nightmare to the company's officers for more than thirty years, and under the old system there seemed to be no escape from the dilemma of running the risk of fine or imprisonment on the one hand or submitting to the humiliation of swearing to false values on the other. No system of imposts could be worse than one entailing these consequences, and both as seedsmen and citizens we rejoice in the enactment of a schedule which applied equally to the importer of one pound or a thousand tons and which can be administered and complied with without stultification.' Tariffs may change, but the seed trade will always stand for specific duties as against ad valorem duties."

SEED TRADE IN ROCHESTER.

The seed trade in Rochester is doing its full share of the work of preparing the welcome for the Society of American Florists, which holds its annual convention there in August, and Charles W. Crosman, of Crosman Bros., has prepared an article, "The Seed Trade in Rochester," for publication in the Souvenir that is to be published to defray part of the expenses. He writes as follows:

"The extent to which both wholesale and retail production of seed is carried on in and about this city is very great and has been for many years. The cultivation of garden and flower seeds in large quantities began in this vicinity about 1838, and has been carried on ever since, gradually increasing from year to year. Tracts of land used for the cultivation of seeds in earlier days are now covered with fine residences, and in many instances business blocks have driven seed-producing interests to the suburbs of the city and farther into the country. The county of Monroe has in the past turned out many growers who have established themselves in the business, and have become popular throughout the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"Not only are standard varieties of vegetable seeds produced in this vicinity in large quantities, but flower seeds as well. In the immediate vicinity of Rochester upwards of 2,000 pounds of aster seed alone are annually produced, embracing not only the standard varieties but many of the choice and fancy strains of recent introduction, some of which originated on the farms of Rochester growers. The aster seed produced in this locality finds a market with the largest and most reliable seed houses in the United States, and also reaches the European market. The aster, having reached such a state of perfection and popularity, has been adopted as the emblematic flower of Rochester.

"The distribution of seeds from this city annually is very large. The wholesale seed trade, the commission seed business and the catalogue or mail trade run into carloads daily during the winter and spring months, while the retail or counter trade in the various seed houses and stores furnishes employment for fully 1,000 people. Modern inventions, by means of complicated machinery for making and filling the seed packets, are operated in different seed houses in this city. These machines very materially reduce the number of hands that would be employed, were we compelled to conduct business as we did ten years ago. In fact, it would require twice as many people as does the present manner of putting up and handling by machinery the vast quantities of seeds sent out from this city.

"Rochester, which is located in Monroe county, is in the center of what is undoubtedly the largest district in the world in the production of dwarf beans, while the acreage in the surrounding counties of dwarf or bush beans of the garden varieties runs into thousands of acres. The production of beans for consumption is enormous, and the production of sweet corn in Monroe county

The aster seed produced in this locality finds a market with the largest and most reliable seed houses in the United States, and also reaches the European market. The aster, having reached such a state of perfection and popularity, has been adopted as the emblematic flower of Rochester.

"The distribution of seeds from this city annually is very large. The wholesale seed trade, the commission seed business and the catalogue or mail trade run into carloads daily during the winter and spring months, while the retail or counter trade in the various seed houses and stores furnishes employment for fully 1,000 people. Modern inventions, by means of complicated machinery for making and filling the seed packets, are operated in different seed houses in this city. These machines very materially reduce the number of hands that would be employed, were we compelled to conduct business as we did ten years ago. In fact, it would require twice as many people as does the present manner of putting up and handling by machinery the vast quantities of seeds sent out from this city.

"Rochester, which is located in Monroe county, is in the center of what is undoubtedly the largest district in the world in the production of dwarf beans, while the acreage in the surrounding counties of dwarf or bush beans of the garden varieties runs into thousands of acres. The production of beans for consumption is enormous, and the production of sweet corn in Monroe county annually is very large, and the stock is of superior quality. The quantity of garden peas sent out from this city is also very large, but this stock is not produced in the immediate vicinity, as in order to produce a high-class sample of peas of superior quality and free from pea-weevil, or so-called pea-bug, seedsmen find it necessary to obtain their supply of peas from more northern districts, where cool nights prevail during the blooming season. Much more could be said in regard to the production and distribution of seeds from this city, but I hardly think it necessary, as the reputation sustained by seeds sent out from Rochester is quite sufficient to bear out the statement that Rochester is one of the largest and foremost of cities in the United States in that line.''

SEEDSMEN'S PERSONALTY.

The Albert Dickinson Seed Co., Chicago, will this year pay taxes on $430,000 personal property, in addition to its big assessment on real estate.

Under the Illinois law the assessors are required to add fifty per cent penalty to the assessments made against those who do not file schedules of their personal property. This is the first year the law has been enforced and the Dickinson concern was one of a large number that filed no schedules of personalty. The assessors put them down for $500,000 at West Taylor street and for $90,000 at the Clark street warehouse, which with penalty made a total of $885,000. On complaint to the board of review this was cut down to:

West Taylor street	$400,000
Clark street	30,000
Penalty	215,000
Total	$645,000

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its annual business meeting at Gundorf's restaurant, close to West End, July 21, and on the same occasion also celebrated the society's twenty-fifth anniversary by partaking of a delicious fish feast.

The annual meeting was held in a room adjoining the porch, and when Vice-president Herman Doescher, in the absence of President A. Alost, opened the meeting, the place was crowded. Charles R. Panter, the secretary, read a cablegram of congratulations from President Alost, who is now attending the exposition at Brussels, Belgium. Mr. Panter read another message of good wishes from Otto Abele, one of the old members, in the form of a telegram sent from Norfolk, Va. Mr. Abele is on his way to his old home in Germany.

Harry Papworth, of the Metairie Ridge Nursery, the state vice-president, and a former president of the local association, was appointed a committee of one to invite the S. A. F. to hold its convention in this city in 1915, the exposition year. Mr. Papworth will attend the Rochester convention and urge upon the florists the acceptance of the invitation.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Richard Eichling; vice-president, R. E. Simon; secretary, C. R. Panter; treasurer, John Eblen.

LILIUM HARRISII

Now Ready For Delivery

Our first consignments have just reached us, and our advance orders are all filled. In view of the fact that crop is shorter than last year, we advise those who have not already ordered to lose no time doing so. Last year we were not able to meet the demand for our selected Harrisii on late orders. At present we have a good supply, and will be able to take care of early orders; but there should be no delay in ordering, as there is sure to be a scarcity of good stock, especially in the large sizes. We offer selected stock of the original true Harrisii for early forcing, grown from the original true stock—splendid stock for early forcing, for which purpose Harrisii is so valuable. Our stock is not picked up indiscriminately from different sources, but is grown from one stock, and will be found very superior to the ordinary Harrisii usually offered, both in regard to freedom from disease and purity, and not the late type now so often furnished.

Secretary Panter thus enters upon his eighth term of office, and Treasurer Eblen succeeds himself for the twenty-fifth time.

The tables for the feast were spread on a broad gallery, which was swept by the lake breezes and enlivened by the music from a band in a near-by pavilion. Those present at the dinner were: President Richard Eichling, Secretary C. R. Panter, Vice-president Simon, Treasurer Eblen, Claude L. Ory, Robert Lockerbie, B. E. Eble, Henry Cook, Charles Eble, Paul Abele, George Thomas, Harry Papworth, H. E. Dresel, M. M. Jones, E. Baker, H. A. Despommier, J. Rausch, P. A. Chopin, Henry Rehfeld, Theo. Betz, John Roberts, I. Haake, A. E. Wells, C. L. Lieber, H. Scheuermann, H. C. Doescher, J. N. Muller, P. P. Steckler, U. J. Virgin, Joseph Steckler, J. A. Newsham, H. St. Mard, F. Dounoy, B. M. Wichers, U. Kraak, Otto Werner, T. Collongues, Frank Taylor, and Ed. T. Dunn, a guest.

Mr. Panter, in his usual bright and witty manner, acted as toastmaster, and called first upon Mr. Baker to do his part. Mr. Baker arose, and, on behalf of the society, presented to Mr. Eblen, the veteran treasurer, a handsome silver-mounted umbrella.

President Eichling made a ringing speech, calling upon the horticulturists to continue their good work, and promising, as their president, to give his best efforts to the cause. Others who spoke were Paul Abele, Joseph Steckler, Harry Papworth, C. Eble, J. F. C. Waldo, William Pfaff, P. A Chopin and J. A. Newsham.

Vincennes, Ind.—The excellent returns obtained by W. A. Reiman for this year's peony crop have done much to stimulate the planting of peonies for cut flowers in this part of the state.

Scranton, Pa.—Work on the greenhouse that is being built in Nay Aug park by John Cleland for presentation to the city, is practically completed and formal transfer of the gift will be made soon. A tablet will probably be installed announcing that Mr. Cleland presented the greenhouse to the city park. The expense of this will be borne by the city.

Vegetable Forcing.

WHITE FLY ON CUCUMBERS.

I am thinking of putting up a greenhouse for cucumbers and would thank you to advise me in regard to the effect of white fly (aleurodes) on cucumber vines. I have been told that white flies are a great enemy of cucumbers and yet I have seen these vegetables growing in greenhouses where white flies were plentiful, without any injury. I would plant cucumbers in the early fall—October 1 to 15—and during the months of November, December, January and February the white fly is not on the wing. I should think for this reason there would be no danger from white fly. R. G. M.

White flies are quite fond of cucumbers, but are not as injurious as most other greenhouse pests. They are not as large as they look and damage is not done so quickly as by the common green aphis. They cannot be killed off except by fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas, but are killed with very light fumigations of the gas. If they get into the house in the fall they will probably give some annoyance all winter long, unless held in check by occasional use of the gas. H. G.

NEMATODES OR EEL-WORMS.

There are knots on the roots of some tomato vines that are being thrown out. Naturally, some of the soil will be left on the benches. Will the insect or disease infest the next crop because of this soil? The soil that has been taken out is wanted next year. Will freezing kill the pest in this soil? Is there a remedy? R. B.

You no doubt have the nematodes or the root galls, called eel-worms, and unless you clean the benches and scrub them thoroughly and whitewash with good lime, you will surely have them again next crop and probably worse. Clean house most thoroughly; use clean, new soil, and let no old soil get mixed in with it when planting. The plants should be potted into clean, new soil also, and started on a clean bench.

If your soil is spread out thin, so as to thoroughly freeze through, there will be little danger in using it over again in a year or two, but new soil is always advisable. Sterilizing the soil will also exterminate the pests. H. G.

TO CLEAN OLD GLASS.

I have dismantled my greenhouse and wish to use the old glass. Will you kindly tell me what will remove the old paint and dirt from the glass? I tried lye, but it does not remove the dirt that forms between the laps. C. A. B.

If you cannot remove the dirt on the overlap by the use of concentrated lye, it will be a hard job to get it off. You might try corrosive sublimate. Great care must be used in handling this chemical, however, as it possesses strong caustic properties, and will burn the flesh wherever it touches.

Consult some painter. Painters generally have a recipe for this work.

PACIFIC COAST.

SAN MATEO, CAL.

The first section of the new MacRorie-McLaren greenhouses, just completed, is of the latest iron-frame construction and covers a space 100x230 feet. It is declared by many to be the best commercial structure of the kind on the Pacific coast. It will be used for the cultivation of orchids, exotics, trees, shrubs, philænopsis, Philippine orchids and other flora. To the rear of the main structure is a large lath house, 75x300 feet, which will be devoted to palms and tree ferns.

Mr. McLaren, of this firm, is a son of Superintendent McLaren, of Golden Gate park, and is one of the best known men in the trade in the far west. The firm contemplates the erection of more houses of similar construction in the near future.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather has turned cooler again and everything is lovely except the business, but that has completely disappeared from view for the time being. Wedding affairs, which were plentiful enough in June, have fizzled out and, with the exception of a few funeral orders, there is nothing worth mentioning. The pleasant weather has the effect of greatly improving the quality of the stock that is being sent into town. Rarely at this season do we have such quantities of high colored carnations and roses, and although the latter are not plentiful by any means, there is enough fair stock to fill requirements. Many of the growers are in the midst of replanting now, and this makes less stock to be had than we otherwise would be burdened with. The outside stock also shows the results of the cool spell and is of the best quality throughout.

Gladioli are now at their height and are selling well. They cost the stores from $2 to $4 per hundred, and there is no surplus of good flowers. The dahlia is not yet at its best, but we are receiving some fine cactus sorts, which have pleased the popular fancy and sell at good prices. Sweet peas, except in a few instances, are not long-stemmed, and the public seems to be tiring of them. Other kinds of outside stock are as usual. Maidenhair and asparagus are plentiful, and although they are held at the same price per bunch as formerly, the bunches are being made much larger, which, from the standpoint of the retailer, is a move in the right direction.

Various Notes.

H. M. Sanborn, of the H. M. Sanborn Co., has returned from an extended eastern trip.

Mrs. Frank Shibeley is on a month's visit to Howard Springs, Lake county, Cal.

All the retailers in town closed their stores July 24, so as to allow everyone to attend the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society's picnic at Santa Cruz. Some of the young folks were careless enough to say that was the first vacation they had enjoyed since the fire of 1906.

Arthur Zirkman, representing M. Rice & Co., of Philadelphia, is in town in the interests of his firm. He reports everything satisfactory from a business standpoint.

T. Moscow has retired from the retail florists' trade and has opened a fruit market on East street, near Market street.

According to newspaper reports, John McLaren, of Golden Gate park, is at outs with the present administration, and the question of politics will enter largely into the future actions of the commissioners having that branch of the city's patronage in charge.

G. W. Simmons, of Elmhurst, is cutting some good Pres. Carnot roses, which he is sending to Podesta & Baldocchi.

D. Rolleri & Co. have secured temporary quarters in the Central Bank building, Oakland, having had to give up their old location on Twelfth street on account of the remodeling of the property.

F. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., of New York, is in town for a few days, interviewing the local dealers. G.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

The stock in trade here now consists of poor roses, fair carnations in white, Enchantress, Winsor, America and Lawson, with the finest peas ever shown in the city, as well as phlox, Shasta daisies and candidums. All of the summer crops promise to be fine. Up to the first of this month there was a goodly amount of wedding and recital work, most of the latter calling for carnation bunches. Since the first of July funeral work has kept trade alive.

Various Notes.

H. E. Reimers has been offering odd lots of bedding stock at the city market.

Burnette Bros. have completed three of their houses, which they will plant in carnations and chrysanthemums. Two more houses will be erected in the fall.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. recently had as a special window a cozy corner with a settee on which were placed several floral cushions. A corner of gloxinias finished the front of the window, and behind the seat was a group of palms and ferns.

Miss Minnie Shaffer, of the Spokane Florist Co., is spending her vacation with a sister in Edwall, Wash.

Roy A. Neill, of the College View Greenhouses, Pullman, Wash., was a recent visitor among the trade in Spokane.

Arthur Zirkman, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, has been here and related his "holdup" adventures, the latest of which occurred on the O. R. & N. railroad. It was the historic hour for such affairs. After flagging the train and flogging the brakeman, the bandits went through the train in orthodox fashion, engineer, conductor, express messenger and day coach passengers being politely asked to hand over their valuables. All this while the Pullman passengers were sleeping peacefully. When word finally reached them of what was doing, the robbers took to the woods, and our friend finally awakened in the after excitement. Mr. Zirkman is receiving condolences for his disappointment. "I love my baskets, but oh, you diamonds!" S.

VENTILATION.

What do you think of constructing, say, a greenhouse thirty feet wide with a central flat space of about three feet covered with tin and raised about eighteen inches above the point where the upper ends of the rafters came, placing ventilators in the sides of this elevation instead of in the glass roof? Such would not exclude too much light or interfere in other ways, would it?

J. T. T.

I do not at all approve of such an idea. Of course if nobody ever did anything except what someone else had done before, there would be no progress, but this plan does not look like progress. All the effort is to do away with shade; hence the ridge has been made thinner and thinner, but here it is proposed to make it like the ridge of a foundry. No known method of ventilating will let the air out of a greenhouse so fast as the standard style ventilator sash hinged to the header.

...THE...
Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.: Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

J. N. PIERCEY, county inspector, says the nurseries of Okanogan county, Washington, will be able to furnish 1,000,000 trees for planting next year.

ACCORDING to those well posted, the apple crop of Colorado and the Pacific coast states that ship in bushel boxes will amount to 21,800 carloads, as compared with 14,600 cars last year.

HARLAN P. KELSEY, Salem, Mass., says the spring season of 1910 was "an unusually good one, and the demand seems to be for hardy shrubs and plants grown as specimen stock. There is a constantly increasing call for the better class of goods, grown in better shape than the ordinary nursery stock."

THE proprietors of the Valdesian Nurseries, at Bostic, N. C., say they have been receiving reports from all directions, north, south, east and west, to the effect that Amoor River privet proved itself genuinely hardy last winter, withstanding temperatures that destroyed other varieties, both roots and branches.

FREDERICK CRANEFIELD, secretary of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, has issued circulars advising the people of the state to beware of a "nursery swindle" which is likely to be perpetrated upon them. The scheme, he says, is as follows: Trees will be offered for sale which are guaranteed to be "free from the dangerous disease known as blackheart," and a clipping will be shown, probably from the papers, in which appears a statement about the disease written by one C. Alberts, representing himself as assistant United States forester.

THE annual inspection of Texas nurseries, now being made under the direction of the state department of agriculture, indicates that as a result of the thorough inspections made last year and the rigid enforcement of the law the condition of all nurseries with reference to insect pests and fungus diseases is far superior to what it was last year. The improvement in this respect would grade an advance of fully fifty to seventy-five per cent and in some cases 100 per cent over last year. The nurserymen as a body approve of the present nursery inspection law and appreciate its equable yet strict enforcement and administration.

A NEW ASSOCIATION.

The Texas Gulf Coast Nurserymen's Association was organized at Corpus Christi, July 11. About fifty nurserymen were in attendance.

The following officers were elected: President, R. H. Bushaway, of Algoa; vice-president, W. C. Griffing, of McAllen; secretary, R. W. Hobart, of Arcadia; treasurer, W. A. Stockwell.

The board of directors consists of F. G. Hutchins, Beeville; J. H. Arbenez, Carita; T. M. Johnson, Bayview; J. H. Leonard, Dickinson, and W. C. Griffing, McAllen.

Alvin was selected as the place for the next meeting, to be held on the first Monday in June, 1911.

EVILS OF THE REPLACE POLICY.

[A paper read by J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, Tex., before the American Association of Nurserymen at the Denver convention.]

The motive that prompts us to consider questions of reform is twofold: First, the promotion of our personal interests, and, second, an unselfish desire to be of real service to our fellowmen. I believe that he who stands for reform policies is sure of a cordial reception before the business world, for, in every avenue of trade, the demand is for "a better way of doing things." We often get a "scrap" on hand if our activities are social, political or religious, but the men who strive for preferment in the business world are broad of mind and heart, and welcome policies that mean increased influence, larger usefulness and greater earning capacity. They are willing to be shown, and this is true of the business man whether he be from Missouri, New York or Texas. Show the business man that certain policies are detrimental to the best interests of the particular business he represents, and my experience is that he is willing to quit those policies.

I say this is more nearly true of the business man than any other, and the exceptions prove the rule. He is today the broadest and most desirable American citizen, always willing to give reform measures a considerate hearing, and only asks that they be presented honestly. He does not ask if the north, south, east or west is responsible for a measure, for the broad mind of the business world knows no north, no south, no east, no west. He only wants to know if the suggestion is wise or unwise from the practical business view point, and he deals with it accordingly. He is for clean methods in business, and has a larger majority with him than ever before in the history of the world.

The Nurseryman as a Business Man.

The business nurseryman is no exception to the general rule, and I, for one, resent the oft-repeated insult that his methods are questionable. We have in the past made some errors; we have allowed some policies to come into our business that are unworthy, but what line of business has not made this mistake? It is concerning a business policy, or the results of a policy, that I am asked to speak to you today—the resultant evils of the replace policy.

My subject prejudges the policy as an evil, but even though it were otherwise, I doubt if one of you would feel disposed to defend the practice. Some of my Texas friends accuse me of believing this evil to be responsible for all our ills, and while I do not go that far, I do believe it should have at our hands the most careful consideration. If its practice is conducive to greater confidence between the nurseryman and the planter; if, from every view point, its influence is good; if it is right from principle and is making us money, it should be continued; otherwise we should have the courage to abolish it.

When and where the practice originated, I am unable to say, but this I know, that there are few retail nurserymen the country over but have practiced replace, or the promise to replace, at one-half price, free, or on some other nonsensical basis. Doubtless he who first conceived the idea believed it to be a business asset, but has it so proven? It has proven a millstone about our necks, branded us as "shysters," "grafters" and—what not?

We started out under the promise to "replace at one-half price all trees and plants that die the first year," but that was hardly liberal enough to suit some of our broad-gauged fellow nurserymen, who went the promoters of this policy one better, agreeing to replace "free." Oh, how liberal (?) we nurserymen have been! Some of us did not stop here. Why, down in Texas I have some competitors who are so liberal they are willing to replace my dead stock if, thereby, they can procure an order.

Reaping Tares That Others Sowed.

My friends, this insane policy, if not checked, will continue to keep us poor. It is the grossest misrepresentation, full of folly and license. Down in my state a few years ago a certain nursery firm, through its traveling salesman, guaranteed its trees for five years after planting. Did they live up to their contract? Did they intend to live up to such a contract? That is hardly the question. We are today reaping the harvest from this abominable sowing, for I say to you that you not only reap what you sow, but you reap where you sow not. A business policy detrimental to the common good should be suppressed, whether in our own business or that of our competitor, for our fields are so close by that if one sows tares we all get our share of the harvest. We have a perfect and legitimate right to demand clean methods of one another, and he who fails to guard the common good will only half succeed in an individual way. Questions of policy have been, and will always be, vital to the best interests of our business. If our policies are right, we shall succeed; if wrong, we fail or only half succeed.

Before the Texas association during January we thrashed this question out, and by an almost unanimous vote resolved to "sin no more," adopting a resolution declaring the policy "unwise, unbusinesslike, and wholly unnecessary." The best part about the resolution adopted at the Texas meeting is that it is being lived up to, and I believe that before January 1, 1911, every nurseryman worthy of mention in our state will fall into line on this proposition.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Everything is quiet here just now and funeral work is about the only thing that helps out. There are plenty of outdoor flowers. Carnations are getting poor and small. Asters are just beginning to bloom and will take the place of carnations for the next two months or so.

Carnations retail at 35 cents per dozen; roses, $1 per dozen; gladioli, $1 and $1.20 per dozen; asters, 35 cents per dozen, and sweet peas at 50 cents per hundred blooms, though these flowers are generally sold in bunches. Gypsophila and candytuft work in finely for sprays or bouquets, and a great deal of these is grown around here.

Some good aster blooms are to be seen grown under glass. There is this advantage with inside culture, that the water problem can be solved. Mum stock is looking fine in general.

The weather continues warm and we certainly need some rain to help out the stock in the fields.

Various Notes.

E. Y. Peirce has a nice batch of young asparagus plants.

F. Treadup, Jr., will have an immense lot of asters to cut from.

Wm. E. Mosher will have about 6,000 aster plants to cut from.

Julius Rositzsky, manager for Wm. P. Peirce, spent several days last week in Boston and vicinity. W. L.

Gloversville, N. Y.—The greenhouse property belonging to George Main, 102 North School street, has been sold to Henry McLean, who will divide it into lots for the erection of houses. Mr. Main intends to close out his stock of plants and shrubs and go to Washington, D. C., where he will join the colony of the followers of Koresh.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Like our city, which has grown to 141,000 inhabitants, so also has the florists' and seed business grown in proportion. Unfortunately, we have no organization; we are, however, kindly disposed towards each other. All the florists here in their modest way report excellent trade for the past season and June in particular, which went off in a whirlwind finish with all lines of cut stock plentiful. July finds us with an occasional wedding, dinner party or funeral. Stock is scarce save for a fine cut of lilies and asters grown by A. J. Koenig, which fill a large want.

Hugh Seals wears a pleasant smile, with reports of good business. He finds himself up with all his planting and with good prospects for an early cut.

Theo. Smith, after a successful year, is treating himself to an extended trip to Philadelphia, New York and other points. He has just completed a fine new plumosus house, installing steam heat.

Our veteran florist, Geo. Luttman, is planning a trip east in search of high-class nursery stock.

A. J. Koenig looks happy after completing all his planting and is preparing for a camping trip. Mr. Koenig's store, in connection with that of the Amzi Godden Seed Co., has proved a success. The show windows have for the last three months been noted for their originality and attractiveness. In fact, policemen are compelled to clear the sidewalk in front of those windows, one a seed and the other a flower display. Each stands ten days, with a small change daily. Jno. A. Lambert, formerly with Jno. L. Parker, has taken charge of this retail flower department of A. J. Koenig and the Amzi Godden Seed Co.

Jno. L. Parker has been busy in all lines of the business, with fine prospects for the coming season. Frank Scott, who has charge of the store for Mr. Parker, contemplates a trip to the convention.

The little lady who so bravely ventured upon dangerous seas at Five Points, in this city, Miss Black, seems happy in her well-appointed store and enjoys a fine trade.

Mr. Luther, located in a thriving suburb, Ensley, has just completed a new and well-equipped greenhouse, which is being planted in plumosus.

Wm. Skews, of Bessemer, our rival city, has joined our ranks as a florist and has about completed another new house for carnations.

SEEDS.

A limited quantity of Steele's Mastodon pansy seed is again offered. It is grown in Oregon. We don't include the word "giant" in describing our pansies because all pansies are "giants," see newspapers, journals and magazines. But when it comes to size, color, form and substance, we must have all four qualities because 90 per cent of our income is from the sale of PLANTS IN BLOOM. That is the reason why we grow pansy seed. We sow and sell from the same sack. 1/12 oz., $1.00.
Steele's Giant Pansy Gardens, Portland, Oregon.

Seed packets and bags. Catalogue, clasp and commercial envelopes, printed or plain. "If it's a Spangler bag it's a good one." Estimates furnished.

POSSIBILITIES.

Being much interested in the welfare of florists throughout the country, I take the liberty to write this, in the hope of getting the opinions of my fellow florists, through the columns of The Review, in regard to the introduction of better methods and equipments. I believe that our business has just as much opportunity for improvements as any other class of work and there is special need at present of accomplishing something for the benefit of the trade in the way of more economical production. The chief obstacle in the way of such improvements is, that we are all so much interested in the art of floriculture, so as to obtain the mere necessities of life, that we have little leisure for the bringing about of the desired conditions. In connection with the present high cost of living, what we need is something cheap and beneficial to the small florist—in fact, to the whole trade—as in many instances the price of flowers cannot be raised to meet increased expenses.

What will be the possibilities in time to come, when the florist is rushed for cut flowers, to be furnished within twenty-four hours, and they are not likely to be ready in time to fill the order? He will then force them out in a few hours by artificial sunlight, rather than lose the order. This will be done in the near future, and will be brought within the means of every energetic florist.

What will it mean when the florist will not need to sit up at night to fire his boilers or regulate ventilation, but will let the steam itself attend to the firing and regulate the ventilation and heating? It is possible and it is coming. Think of the meaning of this alone.

What will it mean to handle all the soil and empty and refill the greenhouse benches by some mechanical contrivance, at half the usual cost and with little labor? This is not coming, however, but is already here, and needs only to be brought to a state of perfection.

Are we all asleep? Let us wake up and see what we need. Submit your thoughts about the matter, and thus give us all a better chance to get our brains busy on the subject. Do not laugh if someone should tell you that you can sometime have violets for the Fourth of July, or asters or peonies for Christmas. It is possible and will be practicable, and it is coming. Such improvements as that will make a hit; they will bring us the money, and that is what we want.

George G. Willius.

Greenhouse Heating.

How big are the coal sheds? If they will not hold three months' winter supply, enlarge them—and keep them full till toward spring.

Overhaul the heating plant now. Don't wait for the arrival of frosty nights to decide what changes are needed or that, after all, you will need a new boiler.

Inquiries on any subject connected with greenhouse heating will be answered in this column. It only is necessary to state the facts fully, that a proper understanding of the conditions may be had, and to sign full name and address, these latter not for publication.

GET YOUR COAL NOW.

"I know several operators in the state of Illinois who last summer were able to run their mines less than three days a week, due to lack of orders, and when winter came they could still operate less than three days per week, due to lack of cars," said W. C. Goodnow, the Minneapolis coal man, recently. "Those operators want to dig more coal than they do. Argument will not bring them any more cars in December, but argument, if based upon common sense, may bring more orders during the summer when cars are plentiful. The operator, of course, would prefer to run his mines full time in the winter when prices are high, but failing in that he wants to increase his summer shipments even though extra business comes at a time when prices are low. And he has more than one reason. The more coal he digs, the less it costs him per ton, but he also has this desire: He wants to line up some good customers, and he wants to take care of them the year round. He knows that every customer will demand more coal in the winter time than in the summer and he knows fully as well that he cannot ship as much coal in the winter as he can in the summer.

"Then we come to this question of car shortage. It would seem that we certainly had a lesson last winter that should not easily be forgotten. When a car pinch comes we are all apt to sum the whole condition up in one hot sentence against the railroad. That is a narrow way of looking at the situ-

A Kitts Improved Hydraulic Damper Regulator.

Florist Peter Crowe, Rose Place, Utica, N. Y., voluntarily writes:—

"I am very much pleased to let you know that the Damper Regulator I bought from you last fall is by far the best apparatus for greenhouse purposes. I had my book-keeper compare my coal bill of last with that of this year and I find a saving of one quarter the amount of this year's coal over last year's; also the past winter was a great deal colder and longer than the winter before.

"There is another very good feature about the Damper Regulator, as it keeps a uniform heat in all the houses at all times by putting on and shutting off pipes. And I find that my Roses and Ferns did far better this winter than any winter so far, as the temperature was so uniform at all times.

"My reason for writing you is to let you know, and also to thank you for bringing my attention to the Regulator, and I assure you I cannot speak too highly of this machine."

Are not facts like these worth an investigation?

ation. There is no doubt in my mind that every railroad wants to haul every pound of coal that is offered to it, but conditions that they positively cannot control render it impossible for them to have on hand all the time sufficient equipment to handle the traffic when the volume is at its greatest. Last winter the car shortage and slow movement to destination was much worse than usual, and yet we have had expressions from the officials of many western railroads stating in effect that we can hardly look for anything better next winter. It may be better or worse, according to weather conditions, but the roads are in no better shape than a year ago.''

There are fewer idle coal cars now than there were a year ago. The florist who is wise will not delay filling his sheds to their utmost capacity—and then enlarging the sheds for more coal. Take in the whole season's supply if you can.

A PARTITIONED HOUSE.

We wish to build a new house, 20x80, and, if possible, to construct a propagating room at one end, for carnations, geraniums, salvia, etc. Could we partition this room off and use the same heat—hot water—as would circulate through the rest of the house?

F. F. C.

There is no reason why a room cannot be partitioned off for a propagating house at the end of the carnation house, but the exact arrangement will depend upon the location of the benches and whether there is a door in the end of the room. While it would be possible to use the same system for both rooms if one had the exact data, there is really little gained by so doing. The supply pipes for the carnation room could be taken off from the mains just before they reach the propagating house.

If a space ten feet in length is taken for propagating purposes, it will be advisable to use about 200 lineal feet of 2-inch pipe for that portion of the house, all of which should be under the benches.

MILWAUKEE.

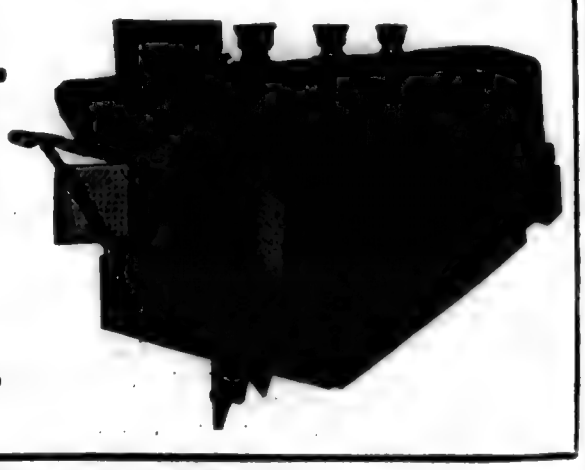
The Market.

The report from the retailers' standpoint is that there is not much doing, only funeral work and a few odds and ends—just enough to keep one out of mischief. But the local wholesale houses claim that business is good; there are quite a few shipping orders coming in and it is not an easy matter to satisfy all. Carnations of last season's crop are practically out of the market, owing to the work of housing and benching the new plants. In roses the new crop does not cut much figure yet. Asters have not yet made their appearance, and the few gladioli that come in are readily disposed of. All in all, owing to rather unfavorable weather conditions, the supply of outdoor stock is not up to that of former seasons. There are plenty of lilies coming in and, as there is not much of anything else, they are readily disposed of.

The supply of green goods is ahead of the demand.

Various Notes.

Robert Zepnick says that this year's June wedding work was fully ten per cent ahead of last season. Of late, however, there has not been much doing outside of funeral work. "I had a good season, and I now have a chance to rest," is what he has to say about it.



About the most satisfied retail florist these days is William Zimmermann. The lease of his present location expired a short time ago, and now, after considerable dickering, he has secured a lease for a lengthy period. He intends to remodel the place and make it one of Milwaukee's foremost flower stores.

James Fox, Jr., of J. M. Fox & Son, spent the first part of last week in Chicago.

At the store of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. they are taking turns at resting after a most successful season. Miss Rose Semler, vice-president of the firm, left July 25 for a vacation of four weeks, which will be spent in the far east.

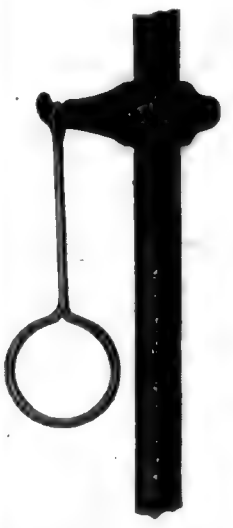
Heating Systems

The Different Types We Make and Install

IF you have an impression that we are wedded to any one system for heating, dispel the thought at once, for we are prepared to install any system you want. Our heating department has developed at a remarkable rate in the last few years, because it has been under the direction of heating engineers who thoroughly know their business; men who appreciate the very vital difference between a beautiful theory and the practical dollar and cents side of it.



The Burnham Cast Iron Sectional Boiler is a greenhouse boiler made especially for greenhouse work.

The Types. Up to the present time we have installed three distinct types of hot water heating: Gravity, Part Gravity and the Forced Circulation System, where the water is returned to the boiler by a pump. Where steam power is not available for returning water to the boiler, we use a powerful little pump that can be run by either kerosene or gasoline.

One of our recent jobs is the forced circulation system put in for Robert Craig & Sons, where a centrifugal steam pump is used to return the water to the boilers, which are set on the level of the greenhouse. Another very interesting feature is the forced draft arrangement, that enables them to burn cheap fuel.

As for steam, there is the Gravity System again, and its opposite, where the water has to be returned to the boiler by a pump or trap.

For any one of these types we are prepared to furnish the equipment, or to install them complete, as you wish. If you have some ideas of your own that you want to talk over, let's get together and thresh them out. We may have just the system for your particular needs, and we will be only too glad to give you every assistance to make it a success. Let us hear from you.

ERIE, PA.

The Market.

We are having warm days, with the thermometer hovering between 80 and 90 degrees in the shade. Trade has been good, considering that this should really be the dull season in the florists' business.

Various Notes.

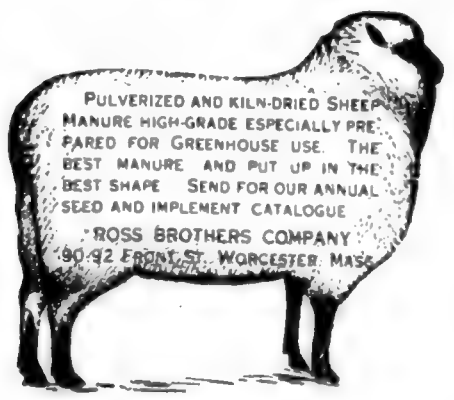
Miss Jennie Adams, saleslady for the Robb Floral Co., spent her vacation with friends in Pittsburg and New Castle.

Mrs. M. Baur and children, of St. Joseph, Mo., who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Niemeyer, left for Warren, Pa., to visit Mrs. Baur's sister, Mrs. Harry Clawson.

Gustav Reising, representing L. Baumann & Co., Chicago, was in Erie July 14.

Jesse Howe, formerly with the Baur Floral Co., has located in Bradford, Pa.

W. H. Carney, of J. B. Murdoch & Co., Pittsburg, visited the Erie florists July 25. Mr. Carney spent part of his vacation at Cambridge Springs.



Mrs. G. W. Phillips, who has been on the sick list, is convalescent. B. P.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Washington Florists' Club is making unusually extensive and thorough preparations for its fall show, which will be held this year in Convention hall, in conjunction with the exhibition of the National Manufacturers and Householders. William F. Gude, chairman of the flower show committee, entered into negotiations with the management of the Householders' show for the purpose of securing a portion of the hall, and succeeded in obtaining 10,000 feet of floor space.

The combined exhibition will be held October 24 to November 6. Mr. Gude declares that the flower show will be the most elaborate ever undertaken in this city. A special committee of florists is now at work on the designs.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.—Henry P. Wagner, whose store is at 56 South Fourth avenue, has a range of new greenhouses on Pelhamdale avenue, North Pelham, where he will produce much of the stock required for his prosperous retail business.

Campbell's Patent Sulphur Vaporizer

Best remedy extant for destroying Rose, Vine, Carnation and all other mildews and diseases of plants in greenhouses; also kills Red Spider.

Extract from paper read by John H. Dunlop before a convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association: "Campbell's Sulphur Vaporizer is an English patent and a trifle expensive, but very effective, and eliminates almost all of the danger of ignition. We are using eight of them at present with excellent results."

"A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE"

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

INDIANA FLORISTS MEET.

At the annual convention of the Northern Indiana Florists' Association, held at Winona Lake, Ind., July 20, the society adopted articles of incorporation as a social and industrial organization, with no capital stock. The following officers were elected: President, W. W. Dederick, Warsaw; vice-president, Harry White, North Manchester; secretary and treasurer, A. J. Wagoner, Columbia City; directors, one year, D. C. Noble, A. J. Wagoner, Columbia City; two years, Geo. Pastor, Huntington, and J. H. Shelton, Rochester; three years, J. S. Stuart, Anderson, and W. S. Kircher, Rochester.

Five new members were elected and a committee consisting of W. W. Dederick and A. J. Wagoner was appointed to prepare a program for the next meeting, which will be held at South Bend, Wednesday, October 19. A banquet was served and a number of interesting discussions completed a meeting that was voted a great success by everyone present.

Freeport, Ill.—The Freeport Floral Co. is constructing five houses, 20x100 each, which will be used for pot plants.

Rochester, N. Y.—The first asters on the Rochester market were received July 4 and were grown by Ferd. Teute, of Westfall road, Rochester. The blooms came from a hybrid of Queen of the Market.

Washington, Ia.—Joseph P. Malinskey, who last September purchased the greenhouses of the Keck Floral Co., is making a number of changes and improvements, including the rearrangement of the heating pipes and the erection of a propagating room. He is getting the houses well stocked, largely with chrysanthemums, carnations and roses.

The Market.

Last week saw several prominent funerals, which gave the retailers about all they could handle.

Home-grown stock is scarce. Carnations are about through for this season. Brides and Maids are to be had, but are only a little better than nothing. Asters are slow in coming in. A few Easter lilies are to be had, but most of them are being shipped in, as are Beauties, Killarneys and gladioli.

Various Notes.

Otto Heinl and party, of Terre Haute, stopped in the city on their way to Dayton in an auto.

H. W. Rieman is contemplating a trip to Yellowstone Park in the near future.

Ed Bertermann is back to work after a two weeks' vacation.

John Rieman is going to move back to the city from his summer home above Broad Ripple. He says the fish are not biting.

E. A. Nelson is spending a few weeks at the lakes.

The feature of the picnic, which is to be held about the first week in August, is a ball game between the North Sides and Fred Hukreide's South Side team. There is considerable feeling between these two teams, as the North Side team won by one run last year. Mr. Hukreide expects to make a better showing this year and is taking his team out for practice daily.

C. R. Green, of A. Wiegand & Sons, is camping on Eagle creek for two weeks. H. L. W.

FRANKLIN, PA.

The Bell Floral Co. is adding 280 feet of house, eighteen feet in width, to its establishment here. This addition will be used to increase the space already devoted to chrysanthemums, and for growing other plants that require a greenhouse temperature. Extensive cold-frames also will be added before the beginning of winter.

Previous to the opening of the plant season of the current year, the firm constructed two buildings near the entrance to the principal cemetery, which are mainly covered with glass and will be used as a supplementary salesroom for plants and cut flowers, and for storage purposes. There, also, most of the planting of vases and veranda and window boxes was done.

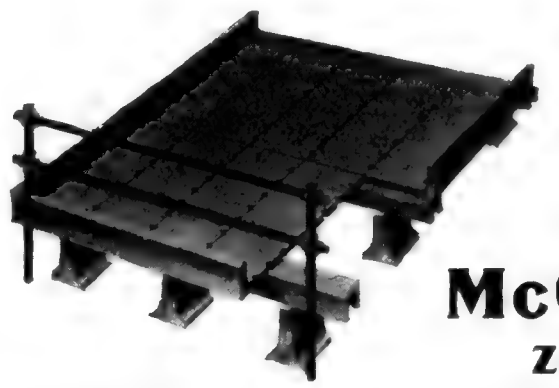
KING IRON FRAME GREENHOUSES

"Ask the Man Who Has One"

A Word from England

HAMPTON-ON-THAMES, ENG., AUG. 31ST, 1909.



Gentlemen:—

With reference to your Trussed Iron Frame House, I am pleased to let you know that it is just finished. I am well satisfied with the general appearance of the structure and find it really imposing and every detail of the construction is well thought out. The trussed steel material makes the House wonderfully light and yet very rigid at the same time, especially when one considers a width of 42 feet without posts. The ventilating machinery is strong, neat and works easily. I am sure this style of house will be the style of the structure for commercial horticulturists in this country as well as in America.

Wishing you every success, I remain Yours sincerely.
(Signed.) E. VICTORS.

How to Save Money

No. 4

TAKE advice where it is good. The makers of greenhouse material are designing houses every day for all kinds of stock and purposes and they know what the growers in various parts of the country are doing. Everything new in construction and every advantage in building comes to their notice. You can many times save much money by asking for this advice before building. Your houses may not be operating as economically as they should and you may not get all the stock you should from your benches. Before you put up that new house write us for some information about construction.
